M. of the first part, R. W. esq; and R. C. esq; of the second part, T. W. esq; and W. C. esq; of the third part, T. C. esq; and M. F. esq; of the fourth part, and dame P. M. (the now wife of the said Sir J. M. by her then name of P. W. daughter of Sir G. W. baronet deceased) and sister of the said T. and C. W. of the fifth part, reciting (among other things) that a marriage was agreed and intended to be had and solemnized between the said Sir J. M. and the said dame P. his now wife (then P. W.) in consideration of the said then intended marriage, and of the marriage-portion of the said dame P. and for other considerations therein mentioned, the said Sir J. M. did grant, release and convey unto the said R. W. and T. D. All those manors or lordships of T. D. To hold unto the said R. W. and T. D. and their heirs, To and for the several uses, intents and purposes, and under and subject to the several provisos, conditions and agreements therein after mentioned and expressed, viz. to the use of, &c. In Trust for the raising and paying the said portions and yearly maintenance to and for such younger and other child or children as afore is mentioned; so as and always provided, that the said sum of money so to be charged and raised for the portions and maintenances of such younger and other child and children as aforesaid, or the term and terms of years to be limited and appointed for the raising thereof, do not in any manner affect, charge, or take place or commence, in or upon the said manors and premises in the said county of W. until after the decease of the said dame P. (then P. W.) And whereas soon after the making and executing the said in part recited indentures of lease and release of marriage settlement, the said marriage between the said Sir J. M. and the said D. P. his now wife, did take effect and was solemnized; And the said Sir J. M. has issue by the said D. P. his wife, two sons and two daughters (viz.) C. J. P. and C. M. And whereas the said Sir J. M. is about marrying the said P. his eldest daughter, unto J. H. of, &c. esq; And whereas in a cause depending in the high and honourable court of chancery, wherein the said Sir J. M. was plaintiff, and the said C. M. and J. M. sons of the said Sir J. M. by the said D. P. (being infants under the age of 21 years by J. M. of the parish of St. A. H. of the county of M. esq; guardian) were defendants, it was declared by the right honorable the lord high chancellor of Great Britain, that the plaintiff, by virtue of the said settlement, had a power, and might in pursuance thereof make one or more mortgage or mortgages of the said settled premises, or any part thereof, for raising portions for his younger children, not exceeding in the whole the sum of 4000 l. but not to take place or be made upon the said premises in W. of the said lady P. M. rent-charge of 500 l. per ann. settled upon her for life as aforesaid; and his lordship did thereby order and decree, that the plaintiff Sir J. M. be at liberty as to the premises in the said county of W. so as it be without prejudice to the said rent-charge, so settled on the lady P. as aforesaid, or the arrears thereof, which may happen to be had at the time of her decease, to raise the said sum of 4000 l. or any part thereof, so as the same be applied to the portions of his younger children as aforesaid, and to no other purpose, at such time or times as he should think fit, by making one or more mortgage or mortgages of the premises, or any part thereof, with power to the mortgagee or mortgagees to enter thereon, in default of payment of the principal or interest, at the day or days to be therein appointed, as is usual in mortgages; It is thereby ordered and decreed, that when any mortgage or mortgages should be made for that purpose aforesaid, the plaintiff, his executors and administrators, do keep down the interest of the money which from time to time should grow due during his life, but not the principal of the mortgage or mortgages of such premises as should be mortgaged, was and were notwithstanding the said plaintiff was thereby decreed to keep down the interest of the mortgage,

H. by his last will and testament in writing, bearing date, &c. after several legacies thereby given, did (among other things) give the residue of his estate both real and personal unto his children begotten, and to be begotten on the body of dame S. his wife, equally to be divided (but his eldest son to have a double share); but for want of such issue, or in case of death before 21 years of age, or day of marriage without issue, then he gave the residue of his said estate to the said dame S. his wife and to his three daughters by his former wife, to be equally divided between them, and made the said dame S. his wife and T. L. esq; (both since deceased) and the said R. M. and W. P. W. executors of his said will: And whereas the said dame S. and T. L. did both depart this life in the life-time of the said testator: And whereas the said Sir G. H. the testator did afterwards depart this life, leaving issue by the said dame S. one son and one daughter, viz. L. H. and S. H. being infants under the age of 21 years; soon after which said decease of the said Sir G. H. the testator, the said R. M. and W. P. W. being the surviving executors of his said will, did prove the said will in the prerogative court of C. And whereas by a decree or decretal order made and pronounced in the said court of chancery the 9th day of October, in the 5th year of the reign, &c. in a cause there depending, wherein the said L. H. and S. H. (the infant children of the said testator) by dame M. L. their prochein amy were plaintiffs, and M. H. (since deceased) N. S. and the said R. M. and W. P. W. and others were defendants, it was ordered and decreed by the said court (among other things) that the said dame M. L. and all the defendants in the said last mentioned cause should severally account before Mr. M. one of the masters of the said court, for all the estate of the said testator Sir G. H. and that as any money due on any of the securities belonging to the said Sir G. H.'s estate should be paid, the same should, from time to time, be brought before the said master, and by him placed out at interest on security, to be by him approved of, subject to the trust in the testator's will as by the said indentures of lease and release of marriage settlement, last will and testament, decrees or decretal orders and other proceedings in the said court of chancery, relation being thereunto respectively had, may more fully appear: And whereas the said S. H. daughter of the said Sir G. H. by the said D. S. his wife, lately departed this life: And whereas the said Mr. M. with the consent and approbation of the said R. M. and W. P. The commission and certificate thereon.

THIS Indenture Tripartite, &c. Between R. T. of, &c. and M. his wife, (one of the six daughters and co-heirs of S. B. and F. his wife, both deceased) of the first part, J. B. of, &c. upholder, and L. his wife, (one other of the six daughters and co-heirs of the said S. B. and F. his wife) of the second part, and G. J. of, &c. gent. of the third part. Whereas, by a decree or decretal order made and pronounced in the high court of chancery at the rolls, on the fourth day of March, which was in the second year, &c. in a certain cause then and there now depending, wherein H. B. and E. his wife, A. W. widow, and T. P. and J. his wife, were plaintiffs, and J. B. (since deceased) and F. his wife, the said L. B. then L. H. widow, the said M. T. then M. B. spinster, an infant, by the said J. B. her guardian, and J. T. et al', defendants, whereby, after reciting or setting forth as therein mentioned, it was (amongst other things) ordered and decreed that a commission should issue out of the said court to divide the premises in question therein mentioned, into six parts; and that the said plaintiffs and defendants, the six children and co-heirs of the said F. B. were respectively to name commissioners for that purpose; and the said commissioners, so named, were to divide the said premises into six parts, and allot to each of the said co-heirs a sixth part thereof; and the said plaintiffs and defendants the co-heirs and their heirs were to hold and enjoy their respective sixth part, according to the allotment made thereof to them by the said commissioners; and it was thereby further ordered, that it should be referred to Mr. K. one of the masters of the said court, to take an account of what was due to the said defendant T. for principal money, interest and costs, by virtue of a mortgage therein recited to be made from the said F. B. deceased, to the said J. T. of four messuages or tenements therein mentioned (being part of the said premises) for securing payment to him of the sum of 1000 l. and interest, and that the same was to be paid to him by the said co-heirs in equal proportions, at such time and place as the said master should appoint, and thereupon the said defendant T. was to convey the said mortgaged premises to such person as the said co-heir should appoint, in such manner as in the said decree is expressed: And whereas the said master in pursuance of the said decree, by his report dated — (after setting forth as therein mentioned) did thereby certify, that there was then due to the said defendant T. for principal money, interests and costs, by virtue of his said mortgage, the sum of 1069 l. And whereas the said release being tripartite, and made between the said J. T. of the first part, the said H. B. and E. his wife, A. W. T. P. and J. his wife, J. B. and F. his wife, L. H. and M. B. of the second part, and E. W. of the third part, reciting in the said release (inter alia) the herein before recited decree and master's report, and that there was then due to the said J. T. the sum of 1069 l. it is witnessed, that for that sum paid by the said E. W. to the said J. T. by the said J. T. (by the direction of the said H. B. and E. his wife, A. W. T. P. and J. his wife, J. B. and F. his wife, L. H. and M. B. testified as therein mentioned) bargain, sell and release, and they the said H. B. and E. his wife, A. W. T. P. and J. his wife, J. B. and F. his wife, L. H. and M. B. did thereby grant, ratify and confirm, and to the use of the said E. W. his heirs and assigns, the before mentioned mortgage hereditaments and premises; Subject nevertheless to a proviso in the said indenture of release contained for redemption of the said premises, on payment of the said sum of 1069 l. and interest, in manner as therein mentioned: And whereas R. A. C. K. H. J. P. P. L. and S. C. commissioners named, authorized and appointed, in a commission made out in pursuance of the said recited decree for dividing the said premises in question by their certificate under their hands, dated the 10th day of February now last past, thereby certify unto the lord high chancellor of Great Britain, that they had entered and viewed the estates in question late of her the said F. B. deceased; and as to her estate in the parish of St. J.'s. (being six messuages or tenements, with the appurtenances in street near G. square in the county of M. being part thereof) they the said commissioners had divided the same in six equal parts, which they by balloting had allotted to and among the said six co-heiresses, according to the tenor of the said commission; and as to the several parts of them the said M. Y. (then M. B.) and L. B. the same was allotted to them in the manner as therein and herein after mentioned, viz. They the said commissioners did hereby allot unto the said M. B. (now M. Y.) and to her heirs, one messuage, &c. and as therein particularly bounded, &c. in the occupation of captain R. W. at 30 l. per ann. and they the said commissioners did hereby allot unto the said L. B. and her heirs, the messuage, &c. and garden, in the occupation of R. A. esq; at 53 l. 15 s. 6 d. per ann. and is by the said certificate mentioned, that in regard the said messuage or tenement in the possession of the said R. A. allotted to the said L. B. was of greater value than any of the other five messuages or tenements allotted to the rest of the said parties; therefore the said commissioners, in order to make the allotment of each party of equal value, did charge the said messuage or tenement, in the possession of the said R. A. allotted to the said L. B. with the several sums of money to be paid by the said L. B. as follows. viz. To the said M. B. (now M. Y.) 21 l. to the said A. W. 21 l. to the said E. A. W. E. B. and L. B. were subject to a mortgage of 1000 l. made by all the said co-heirs, and that the same was to be borne equally by all the said co-heirs, therefore the houses thereby allotted to the said J. P. and F. B. were by the said commissioners certified to contribute an equal share of the said 1000 l. and interest, with the houses charged with the said 1000 l. and interest: And whereas by a subsequent order made in the said cause, dated the 11th day of March now last past, it was ordered, that the before recited certificate, and all the matters and things therein contained, should stand ratified and confirmed by the order and decree of the said court to be performed by all parties thereto, according to the tenor and true meaning thereof, unless the parties concerned, or their respective clerks in court having notice thereof, should, within eight days after such notice, shew into the said court good cause to the contrary: And whereas by another subsequent order made in the said cause, dated the 18th day of the instant June, whereby (after setting forth the last recited order) upon motion made by Mr. F. counsel for the defendants J. B. and L. his wife, and M. B. it was alledged, that the clerks in court for the other parties, plaintiffs and defendants, had been duly served with the same order, as by affidavit appeared, and that no cause had been shewn to the contrary, as by the register's certificate appeared; it was therefore prayed, that the order of the 11th of March last might be made absolute against the said plaintiffs and defendants so served therewith, which was ordered accordingly, as in and by the said part recited decree, master's report, indentures of lease and release, commission, certificate and subsequent order, relation being to them respectively had, more fully at large may appear: And whereas by virtue of the said recited decree, commission, certificate, and subsequent orders, the the said M. Y. and her heirs, are now legally entitled to the fee-simple, and inheritance of one of the said messuages or tenements and premises situate in Q. street aforesaid, now in the occupation of the said R. W. so allotted to her as aforesaid, (Subject nevertheless to the payment of her sixth part of the principal and interest monies so secured to the said E. W. thereon as aforesaid;) they the said R. (at their request) hath agreed to advance the same to them, and to accept of the demise by them herein after made of the same premises, for securing repayment thereof with interest, in such manner and subject as herein after is for that purpose mentioned: And whereas the the said L. B. and her heirs, by virtue of the said decree, commission, certificate and subsequent orders, is now also legally intitled to the fee-simple and inheritance of another of the said messuages or tenements in Queen-street aforesaid, now in the occupation of the said R. Y. so allotted to her as aforesaid; (Subject nevertheless to the payment of her sixth part of the said principal and interest monies so secured to the said E. W. thereon as aforesaid, and also subject to the payment of the said several sums of 21 l. 21 l. 57 l. and 75 l. so charged and payable out of the same premises to them the said R. Y. A. W. E. B. J. P. and F. B. as aforesaid); And they the said J. B. and L. his wife, having also occasion to borrow the sum of 50 l. he the said G. Y. (at their request) hath agreed to advance them the same, and to accept of the demise by them herein after made on the same premises, for securing re-payment thereof, with interest, in such manner and subject as herein after also for that purpose mentioned and expressed: Now Indenture witnesseth, that for and in consideration of the sum of 116 l. of lawful money to them the said R. D. of the fourth part; in consideration of a marriage then intended and which soon after took effect and was solemnized between the said D. G. and Lady M. H. since deceased, and of the marriage portion of the said Lady M. H. therein mentioned, he the said G. H. (did among other things) in pursuance and exercise of the power in him for that purpose vested by the said recited will, charged all the hereditaments and premisses devised by the said will of the said G. H. and also all the hereditaments which after his decease had been purchased with any part of his residuary personal estate, and every part and parcel thereof, with the sum of — l. to his younger child or children in case of his leaving an eldest or only son who should attain the age of 21 years, and with any sum not exceeding — l. for his daughter or daughters, in case of his not leaving any son who should attain that age, (which latter provision has failed by the death of the said Lady M. H. without leaving any daughter); And the said D. G. did direct and appoint the said sum of — l. to be equally divided among his younger children, share and share alike, at their respective ages of twenty-one years, if son or sons, and if a daughter or daughters, at their respective ages of 21 years or day of marriage, and if but one such younger child, or if more than one, and all except one should die before his or her age of 21 years or day of marriage, then the sum of — l. to be paid to such surviving child at his or her age of 21 years or day of marriage, And that of the age of ——— years, or thereabouts, and no other child; and the said R. S.

 testament on his attaining the age of 21 years; And whereas by a decree or decretal order of the high court of chancery made and pronounced on the ——— day of ——— before the right honourable the Master of the Rolls, (and since duly inrolled) in a cause by original supplemental bill, wherein the said D. G. was plaintiff, and W. T. esq; H. M. and R. S. were defendants, it was amongst other things ordered and decreed, that the decree and proceedings in the said former cause bearing date the ——— day of ——— should be received and be carried into execution, and that Mr. H. one of the masters of the said court, to whom the said cause stood transferred, should enquire and state to the court whether any part of the personal estate of the testator G. H. had been laid out in the purchase of lands, pursuant to the directions of the decree in the said former cause, not being settled according to the directions of the said decree, and in case that the said master should find that any such lands had been purchased, then that the same should be conveyed and settled in the same manner directed by the said former decree; And whereas the said Master H. to whom the said causes were transferred) made his report in the said last mentioned supplemental cause bearing date the ——— day of ——— and thereby certified amongst other things, that he found that the said B. R. esq; and M. P. esq; both deceased, had, with the approbation of the then late Master M. (to whom the former cause stood referred) laid out a sum of one hundred thousand seven hundred and sixty-nine pounds sterling money, part of the personal estate of the said testator G. H. in the purchase of certain freehold manors, lordships, towns, messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments situate, lying and being ——— then the estate of T. J. as appeared by the report of the said late Master M. in the former cause on the ——— day of ——— and that the said manors, lordships, lordships, messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments had been, by indentures of lease and release dated respectively the ——— and ——— days of ——— and which said indentures of lease and release were approved by the said late Master M. duly conveyed to and to the use of the said B. R. and M. P. their heirs and assigns, upon trust to convey, settle and assure the same to such and the same uses, upon such and the same trusts, and to and for such the same intents and purposes, and by, with, under and subject to such and the same covenants, provisoes, payments, charges, conditions, restrictions and limitations, as by the will and testament of the said G. H. and the decree in the said former cause, were directed to be limited of and concerning the lands to be purchased with the residue of his personal estate, so far as the deaths of parties and other contingencies would permit, and to for no other use, trust, intent or purpose whatsoever, but that no such conveyance and settlement was made by the said B. R. and M. P. or the survivor of them, or the heirs of such survivor, and that the said Master H. had therefore, pursuant to the said decree in this said second cause, settled and approved of a proper conveyance and settlement of the said manors, lordships, towns, messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments to the said defendant W. T. the only son and heir at law of the said M. P. deceased, who conveyed the said B. R. (the other trustee) to such uses and upon such trusts and with such limitations, and for such intents and purposes, and for the benefit of such persons as were directed by the said testator's will; And whereas the said Master H. afterwards made his general report in both the said causes, dated the ——— day of ——— and did thereby amongst other things, certify that as to the account directed by the decree in the original cause to be taken of the said testator's debts, no person had proved or claimed any debts, either from the said late Master M. or his successor Master C. or before him the said Master H.
 from the said testator, but that it was admitted before him that an annuity of ——— l.
 was paid by the said testator G. H. to H. L. still remained subsisting, but that all arrears of had been paid to the ——— day of ——— by the said D. G. and that the funeral expenses, and also the several legacies which were given by his will, were paid by the said
D. G. and M. P. and as to the annuities given by the said testator's will, no claim for any of any such annuities had been brought in before either of the said late Masters, or before him the said Master H. but he found from the affidavit of the said D. G. who, upon

F. his wife, &c. or any of them, their or any of their heirs, of or in the said manor, &c. shall be, and so for ever hereafter shall be judged, construed and taken to be to and for the only use and behoof of the said A. A. the younger, his heirs and assigns, for ever, and to and for no other use, intent or purpose whatsoever, and furthermore, that all and every other person and persons, and his and their heirs, and every of them to whom any of the said conveyance or intended conveyances or assurances or any of them shall be so had or made as aforesaid, by force hereof and of these presents shall stand and be seised of and in all and singular the said manors, &c. to the only sole proper use of the said A. A. the younger, and the heirs of the said A. A. the younger, for ever, and to no other use, intent or purpose whatsoever, and also that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful to and for the said A. A. the younger, and dame A. his wife, and the heirs of the said A. A. the younger, and every of them into all and singular the said manors, lands, &c. and every of them to re-enter, and the same and every part thereof to retain, re-possess and have again, as in his and their former estate, any thing in the presents contained or otherwise to the contrary thereof notwithstanding. (a)

Proviso for revoking the Uses declared in a Deed.*

PROVIDED always, and it is further hereby agreed and declared by and between the said parties to these presents, that if the said A. B. at any time hereafter during his life, shall be minded upon any cause or occasion seeming meet or convenient to him, to revoke, annul, make void, alter or change all and every the uses, estates, trusts, powers and provisos, or any of them, limited, declared, raised, implied, intended or made by these presents, of and concerning all the said manors and premises contained in these presents, or else touching some part or any part thereof and thereupon, by any writing or writings subscribed with his name and sealed with his seal, in the presence of two or more witnesses, or by his writing under his seal, and in any of the courts of record of the king's, or his heirs or successors, to be inrolled, do and shall signify and declare, that his intent and pleasure is to revoke and make void the uses, estates, trusts, powers and provisos, or any of them, limited, declared or appointed, in or by these presents, touching the said premises, or touching some or any part thereof, that then and from thenceforth, all the uses, estates, trusts, powers and provisos, made, limited and appointed in or by these presents, shall be utterly void and of none effect, touching all such part, and so much of the said premises in and concerning which the said A. B. shall so signify and declare, that his will and pleasure is, that the uses, estates, trusts, powers and provisos aforesaid, or any of them shall be void or of none effect, and that then the said parties, and every, any or all of them, and all and every other person and persons that now stand or are seised of all and singular the said manors and premises, or of or in any part thereof, shall from thenceforth stand and be seised of all and singular the said manors and premises in which the said A. B. and for the payment of his debts or legacies, or any other necessary purpose, it shall be lawful to and for the said A. B.

(a) Note; If a proviso be put absolutely in a deed without dependance upon any particular covenant or exception it will be construed as a condition extending to the whole estate. But if a proviso be annexed to an exception 'tis but as an explanation. And a proviso added at the end of a covenant extends no further than to declare the covenant, unless there be words added as that then the grant shall be void. Moore's Rep. 106.

A condition is not extinguished by a fine, if there be a clause that all assurances shall enure to the uses of the indenture in which the condition is; for thereby all that is conditional in the indenture remains also conditional in the use of the fine and recovery without being extinct; as in Puttigham's Case. Dyer. 2 and 3 Ph. and 10. but a condition without there was such agreement would be extinct by fine though levied for further assurance or by feoffment, or by general entry upon a warranty, or by being received generally. Moore 106.

Of Common Recoveries.

(A) Recovery what, and how a Common Recovery differs from other Recoveries.

A Recovery in general is the obtaining of any thing unjustly taken or detained, by judgment or trial at law.

And it is either a common recovery, which is such a recovery as is used for common assurance of land, or a true recovery, which is not used as an assurance of land.

A true recovery is an actual or real recovery of any thing, or the value thereof, by judgment; as if a man buys land of another with warranty, and this land is afterwards recovered by a third person, the buyer has remedy against the seller to recover it in value, that is, to recover so much money as the land is worth. F. N. B. 124.

But the common recovery (which is here proposed to be treated of) is fictio juris, a feigned formal thing by consent, and is used where a man is desirous to cut off an estate-tail, &c. in lands or tenements, to the end to sell, give or bequeath, as he thinketh meet, for the assurance of them that shall have the land.

And this is somewhat after the example of the recovery upon title, which is without consent, and contrary to the will of him against whom the same is had: for there is in this a colourable suit, wherein there is a demandant, who is called the recoveror, and a tenant, who is called the recoveree, and one that is called to warrant upon a supposed warranty, which is called the vouchee. Co. Lit. 154. Vide the preamble of the stat. 32 Hen. 8. c. 10. 23 Eliz. c. 3. Doct and Stud. 41.

(B) Of the Origin of Common Recoveries.

Common recoveries and fines are said to have been first invented when intails fell out to be inconvenient; for before the stat. de donis conditionalibus, Westm. 2. cap. 1. Feoffees after they had issue had power to alien and disinherit the issue contrary to the mind of the donors.

And by this statute in Edward the First's time, the inheritance was made so strong, that the tenant in tail could not put away the land from the heir by any act of conveyance or attainder, nor let it, or any way charge or incumber it longer than for his own life.

But from this statute there arose many inconveniencies; for by this means the lands were made so sure to the heir, as that the father could not put it from him; and hereupon the son oftentimes proved disobedient, negligent, wasteful, &c. knowing he could not be disinherited; and many times the owners themselves of such intailed lands were less fearful to commit felonies, murders, manslaughters and treasons, for that they knew that none of these acts could hurt the inheritance of their heir.

Again, such as had intailed lands could make little or no profit of them; for none would give a fine of any value upon such an uncertain estate as that of the owner's life only, neither would they much improve the lands for the same reasons, with many other inconveniencies.

For the remedy whereof several later statutes were made; as 4 H. 7. c. 24. 32 H. 8. c. 36. whereby a tenant in tail may disinherit his son by fine and proclamations.

By 26 H. 8. c. 13. tenant in tail forfeits his land for treason.

By 32 H. 8. he may make leases for twenty-one years or three lives, &c.

By 33 H. 8. intailed lands are liable by extent for the king's debt.

And by 13 Eliz. c. 4. they are saleable for his arrearages upon his account for his office.

Also for the remedy of those inconveniencies of intailed lands these common recoveries were first invented, and men began to cut off intails by such means as they could find law for it; and now by use these recoveries are become common assurances against intails, and against remainders and reversions, and are the greatest assurances that purchasers have for their their money, being grounded upon the strictest principles of the law, though by consent; for a fine will bar the heirs in tail, but not the remainders or reversions; but these recoveries will bar them all. Co. 22. 62.

Mr. West in his Symbol. part 2. § 1. saith, That the end and effect of a common recovery is to discontinue and destroy estates, remainders and reversions, and to bar the former owners thereof.

(C) The Nature and fictitious Formality in suffering Common Recoveries.

THE common recovery is sometimes with a single voucher, which is when the writ is brought against him that is to pass the land immediately, and he does vouch over the common vouchee.

And sometimes it is with a double voucher, which is when the writ is brought against another to whom he that is to pass the land has aliened it, and he does vouch him that is to make the assurance, and he does vouch over the common vouchee; and this is the surest way, and the safest kind of recovery.

The formality of a common recovery is, that by agreement of the parties a real action is begun by a Writ of Entry brought by him that is to have the land, assured against him that is to make the same assurance, if it be with a single voucher; or if it be with a double voucher, against him to whom he that is to make the assurance has aliened the land.

See concerning vouchees, post.

And in this suit the recoveror that brings the action surmises that the tenant against whom the writ is brought has no right to the land, but that the recoveror has right thereto, and that the tenant came to it from such a stranger whom the demandant does name.

And to this the tenant does appear in person or by attorney, and then enters into defence of the land, but in pleading vouches to warrant, alledges that he bought the land of J. S. a stranger, who in the conveyance thereof bound himself and his heirs to warrant and make good the title to him or them to whom it is conveyed, and thereupon he prays that J. S. may be called in to defend the title, and then he is allowed by the court to call in J. S. to say what he can for the justifying of his right to the land before he so conveyed it.

And hereupon J. S. appears and makes shew as if he would defend the title, but prays further day may be assigned to him to make his defence, which being granted by the court, at the day appointed he by agreement, covin and assent of the parties, does not come in, but makes default.

And thereupon the land is to be recovered by him that brought the writ against the tenant, and he is left for his remedy to J. S. upon this warranty, and accordingly judgment is given by the court that the demandant or recoveror shall recover the land demanded against the tenant, and that the tenant shall recover so much land of J. S. of his own land in recompence for the land recovered from him, which he ought to have warranted and defended, but suffered to be lost. See Co. 94. 10 Co. 43, 45.

And this recovery over is called a recovery in value or pro rata.

But if the recovery be with a double voucher or a treble voucher, J. S. is upon his appearance to call or vouch to warrant J. D. and to alledge in the same manner as the tenant does, and to pray that J. D. may come in, and thereupon J. D. appears and makes default: and so if there be more vouchers, and then there must be several recoveries over in value against every one of them; but he that is the last vouchee is always the common voucher, who is one of the criers of the court of common pleas, a man not worth any thing, and one that has no land to render in value upon the supposed warranty.

And by his devise grounded upon the strict principles of law the first tenant does willingly go the land for the assurance of the purchaser, and yet in truth has no recompence over, because the vouchee has no land to render in value.

And by this means, if one has an estate-tail in lands which he is desirous to sell or to convert into an estate in fee-simple, the same is commonly done; for the tenant in tail causes the purchaser, or some friend of his, to bring a writ of entry against him for this land, and he appears to the writ, and in pleading says, that the land came to him or his ancestors from such a man or his ancestors, who in the conveyance bound themselves to warrant it.

And thereupon that man is called in, who appears and makes default, and thereupon judgment is had against him in manner as aforesaid.

Or if he would have the recovery with a double voucher, then he by fine, feoffment, or deed of bargain and sale inrolled discontinues the land; and then causes the recoveror that is to have the land to bring this writ of entry against the discontinuee, and he vouches the tenant in tail, who vouches over the common vouchee, and so it is done.

Recovery in value or pro rata, what.

And by this the estate-tail that the tenant in tail has or had is barred and bound, for that it appears now he had no power to intail the land whereunto he had no just title, and besides he shall recover recompence over in value; and this is adjudged in law to go in succession of estate as the land should have done, which is the reason why the recovery is a bar to all that are in remainder and reversion as well as to the issues in tail. F. N. B. 134. 9 Co. 6.

Warrant of attorney.

And in the suffering of these recoveries the tenants and vouchees do appear most commonly in person in court, and so the recovery is finished in the court presently without more ado; but sometimes they will not or cannot appear in person, and then they appear and suffer the recovery by attorney, and in that case there must be a consuance for a warranty of attorney taken to authorise the attornies in the manner mentioned in the second volume of this work.

There must be two attornies at the least, with authority jointly and severally, that if one of them dies before the recovery be suffered, the other may have power to do and dispatch it.

Dedimus Potestatem.

And these warrants of attorney for the suffering of recoveries are to be acknowledged and certified in the same manner as the consuance of fines acknowledged in the country are, except that the recognisances for warrants of attorney for recoveries may be taken by any judge of the court of common pleas, or any serjeant at law, without a dedimus potestatem.

But if any others take it, they used to do it by special dedimus potestatem, which is to command the commissioners therein named to come to such persons and to take the names of their attorney or attornies in the suit, and to certify the same in the chancery under their seals such a day.

Examination.

And if a feme-covert be to make the consuance, it seems she is to be examined as in the case of the consuance of a fine.

And when this is done the recoveries may be suffered by the attornies without the personal appearance of the parties.

Summoneas.

And this is as good a recovery as the other which is suffered by the persons themselves appearing in court; but it will require longer time for the perfection of it; for in this case there must go forth a summoneas ad warrant, which must have nine returns before the recovery can be perfected, and by that time one of the parties may be dead.

Habere facias seisinam.

And when the recovery is thus suffered by the parties in person, or by their attornies, the same is to be entred by some one of the clerks of the court of common pleas upon the rolls of the same court, there to remain upon record.

And herein there must go forth a writ of execution called an habere facias seisinam, which is sent to the sheriff of the county where the land lies to put the recoveror in possession of the land, except a recovery be of a reversion of land after a lease for years of it, in which case the reversion shall be in the recoverors by a claim without any writ.

And this writ the sheriff returns as executed according to the contents thereof, although in truth he never does any thing upon it.

And after all this the same proceeding is to be exemplified by the clerk of the same court. Co. 94. 10 Co. 43.

(D) The Use and Operation of Common Recoveries.

A Recovery being matter of record is much of the nature of a fine, and such a thing as whereof the law takes notice; for it is now become a formal and orderly manner of assurance of lands, and one of the common assurances of the kingdom, or a common way and means to pass lands from one to another.

And therefore if a tenant for life suffers such a recovery of his land, it is a forfeiture of his estate; an use may be averred upon it as well as upon a fine, and it may be avoided in conu as well as any other kind of conveyance.

But it is of special use, and has a special virtue to bar and bind estates in tail, and all the remainders and reversions thereupon.

And because many of the inheritances of the kingdom depend upon this assurance, it is oftentimes the greatest security purchasors have for their money, therefore it has much favour from the law at this day.

And therefore the law will not endure it shall be disputed against, for communis error facit legem; and hence it is that it shall not be avoided for small errors; for it is another rule of law.

consensus tollit errorem. 5 Co. 41. 10 Co. 37. 39. 3 Co. 5, 6. 41, 42. Dr. & Stud. 41. 49, 50. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 5. 23. c. 3. 7 H. 8. c. 4.

And if a recovery be suffered by a tenant in tail, hereby he has not only discontinued, barred and destroyed the estate-tail, and so defeated himself and his issues, the former owner of the land, and all the remainders and reversions thereupon that should take place after the estate-tail, whether they be in esse or contingent only, but also all former estates, leases and charges made by him in remainder or reversion.

For when the estate-tail in possession is not barred by a recovery, the estates in reversion or remainder are not barred, for quod non in magis propinquo non in magis remoto valebit; so it converso; where the estate tail in possession is barred by the recovery, all the remainders and the reversions, conditions, charges, incumbrances and estates dependent upon it are barred also, except it be in some special cases where the remainder or reversion is in the being. And therefore,

If A. be tenant in tail, the remainder to B. in tail, the remainder to C. in fee, or B. or C. makes a lease for years of the land, or grants a rent-charge out of the land, or enters into a statute, or the like, or grants the remainder or reversion upon condition, and after A. suffers a common recovery of the land, and after dies without issue; in this case the recoveror shall hold the land discharged of all these estates and charges in remainder.

But it is otherwise if A. himself makes a lease, or enters into a statute, and then suffers a common recovery of the land, in this case this recovery does not avoid but affirm the lease or charge; for whereas it was before avoidable by the issue in tail, or him in remainder or reversion, now it is good against them all, and the recoveror also shall hold it charged and subject to the lease and charge of the tenant in tail.

This kind of assurance therefore is in some respects better than a fine; for a fine will bar the heir in tail, but not him that is in remainder or reversion, but a recovery will bar them all. Co. 62. 25. Doct. & Stud. 49. 44 Ed. 3. 22.

(E) What is the Reason that Common Recoveries are a Bar.

THE recompence in value is the reason of the bar by common recovery against the issue in tail, but it is not the reason of the bar quoad him in reversion, or him in remainder; but the reason of this is, that the recoveror by supposition of law is in of the estate-tail, and he had in judgment of law a continuance still; as at common law the nee post prolem suscitatur might have aliened and barred the donor; and a common recovery is as a conveyance excepted out of the stat. de donis conditionalibus, and the recoveror is of the estate that the vouchee had; but the issue in tail is barred of his claimer in respect of the intended recompence by the recovery, and the estate-tail having in judgment of law continuance, nothing upon the reversion or remainder may take place; and this is the reason that a charge made by him in remainder cannot take place after the recovery suffered by tenant in tail. 2 Lev. 27.

(F) Who is bound and barred by a Common Recovery.

COMMON recoveries should be in such a case as is not prohibited by some statute-law; for, if the king gives any of his own lands whereof he is seised, or cause or procure another in consideration of money or other land to give the lands whereof he is seised in tail to any of his subjects or servants in recompence of their service, or the like, the remainder to the king in fee-simple or fee-tail; such estates in tail cannot be barred by a common recovery: and therefore if such a tenant in tail shall suffer a recovery of such land, it is void, and it will neither bar the issues in tail, nor any of them in remainder, nor the king. But if the king makes such a gift in tail, keeping the reversion to himself, and after the reversion to another; in this case the tenant in tail may suffer a recovery, and the estate-tail and the reversion also.

And where a subject by the king's provision makes such a gift in tail, and then grants the remainder to the king for life or years only; in this case the estate-tail, remainder or reversion also may be barred by a common recovery.

In other cases where a subject makes a gift in tail, the remainder to the king in fee; the estate-tail may be barred by a common recovery.

And therefore, if there be tenant in tail, the remainder or reversion in fee to another, he in remainder or reversion by deed indented and inrolled bargains and sells his remainder mainder or reversion in fee to the king; or if one covenants to stand seised to divers uses in tail, the remainder to the king in fee; in these cases the estates and the reversions and remainders depending thereupon may be barred by a recovery.

So if a man makes a gift in tail, the remainder in fee, and he in remainder grants his remainder to another for life, the remainder to the king in fee on condition the estate shall be void upon the tender of 20*l.* in this case the estate-tail, and the reversion also and condition thereupon may be barred.

So if the duke of Lancaster had made a gift in tail, and the reversion had descended to the king; this estate-tail might have been barred by a recovery.

So if prince H. son of H. 7. had made a gift in tail, the remainder to H. 7. in fee, which remainder by the death of H. 7. had descended to H. 8. in this case the tenant in tail might have barred the estate-tail by a recovery.

And yet if the king makes a gift in tail, the remainder in tail, or grants the reversion in tail; in these cases a common recovery may not be suffered to bar the intail, remainder or reversion. Stat. 34 H. 8. c. 20. Co. Lit. 371. 2 Co. 5. 16. 8 Co. 77, 78.

Husband and wife's jointure.

And if the husband for the advancement of his wife in jointure, and the preferment of the heirs of their two bodies, makes an estate in tail to him and his wife and the heirs of their two bodies, and the wife after her husband's death alone by herself, or with any other husband suffers a common recovery of the land whereof this estate is made; this recovery will not bar the estate-tail.

But if in this case the recovery be suffered by the heir in tail, or by the heir and his mother together, it is a good recovery.

And therefore if A. be seised of land in fee, and he makes a feoffment in fee, to the intent that the feoffee shall re-convey it to him and his wife and the heirs male of his body; and this is done accordingly, and they have issue a son, and the feoffee surrenders and makes a forfeiture, and he enters and suffers a recovery; this is a good recovery and a bar to the estate-tail: or if the writ be brought against the mother, and she vouches the heir in tail, and so a recovery is had, this recovery will bar the estate-tail. Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. 3 Co. 58, 59. 61.

And howsoever at the common law a recovery against a tenant for life with a voucher upon a lawful warranty and a recovery in value was a bar to him in remainder or reversion; and there was no remedy in this case; yet at this day it is otherwise.

Forfeiture.

And therefore if tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct, tenant by the curtesy, or any other tenant for life, suffers their lands to be recovered from them by covin and agreement, either as immediate tenants or as vouches upon feigned titles, without the assent and to the prejudice of him in remainder or reversion; such recoveries are void, and will not bar the remainders or reversions, but are forfeitures of the estates of such tenants for life.

Infomuch that if tenant for life be made tenant in fait to the writ, or tenant in tail upon the voucher, and so a recovery be had; as if tenant for life makes a lease for years and the lessee for years makes a feoffment in fee, and the feoffee suffers a common recovery in which the tenant for life is vouched, and he vouches the common vouches; these recoveries will not bind the reversions or remainders.

But there is no provision made at this day to preserve the reversion or remainder expectant upon an estate-tail, nor to avoid a recovery of the tenant for life where he in the remainder is agreeing and assenting to it.

And therefore if there be tenant for life, the remainder to A. in tail, the remainder to B. in tail, &c. with divers remainders over, and the tenant for life suffers a common recovery, in which he vouches A. who vouches the common vouches; in this case this is a good recovery, and bars the estate-tail, the remainders and reversions also.

And if one be seised of land in fee, and have two sons, A. by his first wife, and B. a daughter by his second wife, and he devises the land to his wife for life, the remainder to B. his son in tail, and the reversion of the fee descends to A. and the writ of entry is brought against the tenant for life, and she vouches B. and he vouches the common vouches, and so a recovery is had without the assent of the heir in reversion; this is a good recovery, and a bar to all the estates in possession, remainder and reversion.

And if a writ of entry be brought against the tenant for life, and he makes default after default, and then the next in remainder in tail is received, or he prays in aid of his in reversion or remainder, and then they vouch over, and so a recovery is had; this is a good recovery, and a bar to all the estates in remainder and reversion.

But if the writ of entry be brought against the tenant for life and him in the remainder in tail together, and they vouch in the common vouches, and so a recovery is had, this will be no good recovery to bar the estate-tail. Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 8. 10 Co. 43. 3 Co. 6.

And if spiritual persons, as bishops, deans, parsons, and such like, suffer a recovery of their ecclesiastical lands; such a recovery is void, and will not bind the successor. Co.

But if it be not in some such prohibited case as before, and the recovery be had and offered by and between such persons, and of such things, and in such a manner as aforesaid; such cases, although there be in truth no warranty made upon which the voucher is had, and although there be nothing to be recovered in value, for that the vouchee has no land to recover over in recompence, and although no execution be done in the life-time of the party against whom the recovery is had; yet is the same regularly a perpetual bar to the parties against whom the same is had and their heirs, of all the estates they have in fee-simple, estate-tail or for life in them, and against all them in remainder or reversion, and their remainders and reversions that are depending upon the estates; with this difference, the recovery with the single voucher does not bar any estate but such as the tenant in tail has in possession at the time of the recovery had; so that if the tenant in tail be in any other estate, as by disseisin, or the conveyance of the disseisor, or the like; this estate is not barred.

But the recovery with the double voucher does bind and bar all interests, estates and titles that the vouchee has at the time of the entry into the warranty. 10 Co. 373. 1 Co. 94.

If the writ of entry be brought against the tenant in tail, and he vouches the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had; this recovery with a single voucher is a good recovery, and a bar to the estate-tail if it be then in possession, and not put to a right, and to all the remainders and reversions depending thereupon. 3 Co. 5. 10 Co. 37.

So if lands be given to A. in tail, the remainder to the right heirs of B. (B. being then living) and the writ of entry is brought against the tenant in tail, and he does vouch the common vouchee; this is a good recovery, and a bar to the estate-tail and the remainder also.

But if the tenant in tail be disseised, and then suffers a recovery with a single voucher; if the disseisor makes a new estate in tail to the tenant in tail, and then the tenant in tail suffers a recovery with a single voucher; or if the tenant in tail makes a feoffment in fee of land, and then takes back a new estate to himself from the discontinnee in tail in fee, and then suffers a common recovery with a single voucher, by this recovery the estate-tail is not barred.

But by a recovery with a double voucher, in these cases the estate-tail is barred.

And therefore where the tenant in tail levies a fine, makes a feoffment, or bargains and sells the land by deed indented and inrolled, and the writ is brought against the conusee, feoffee or bargainee, and he vouches the tenant in tail, and he vouches the common vouchee; this bars the estate-tail, and the remainders and reversions depending thereupon.

So if in these cases the conusee, feoffee or bargainee, makes a new estate in tail to the tenant in tail, or he disseises the conusee, feoffee or bargainee, and then levies a fine, makes a feoffment, or bargains and sells to another against whom the writ of entry was brought, and he vouches the tenant in tail, and he vouches the common vouchee; this recovery the first and second estate-tail, and all the remainders and reversions depending thereupon, are barred. 1 Co. 135, 136. 3 Co. 59. 10 Co. 45. 12 Ed. 4. 19.

So if lands be given to J. S. and the heirs male of the body of his wife engendered, and he has issue a son, and after his wife dies, and he discontinues and takes an estate to himself and the heirs female of the body of his second wife, and after discontinues again, and takes an estate to him and the heirs female of his own body, and after discontinues again, and the writ of entry is brought against the last discontinnee, and he vouches the tenant in tail, who enters into the warranty generally, and voucheth the common vouchee; this is a good recovery and a bar to all the estates in tail, and the remainders and reversions also.

And if A. before the statute of uses had been tenant in tail, and had made a feoffment in fee to B. and he and B. had after made a feoffment to C. to the use of A. and his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, and then she had died, and after A. had entered upon C. as feoffee, and made a feoffment to W. in fee, against whom J. S. had brought a writ of entry, and he had vouched A. the tenant in tail; this had been a good recovery and a bar to all the estates. 3 Co. 5. Plotw. in Manxel's case, post. 568.

And if lands be given to husband and wife and the heirs of the body of the husband, Husband and wife, and the heirs of the body of the wife, and the husband alone discontinues the whole land by wife, or feoffment, or bargain and sale by deed indented and inrolled, and the writ of entry is brought against the discontinnee, and he vouches the husband alone without the wife, and the husband vouches the common vouchee; and so a recovery is had; this is a good recovery.

covery for the whole land, and a bar to all the estates in tail and remainder or reversion but not to the estate of the wife for her life after the husband's death.

But if lands be given to the husband and wife and the heirs of their two bodies, with remainders over to strangers, and the husband alone discontinues, and the recovery is suffered, as in the last case; it seems this is no bar to the estate in tail, or remainder or reversion, for any part of the land.

And yet if lands be given to J. S. and J. D. in tail, and J. S. discontinues the whole and the writ of entry is brought against the discontinuee, and he vouches J. S. alone; this is a good recovery for the one half of the land, and a bar to all the estates.

And if lands be given as before to husband and wife and the heirs of their two bodies and the writ of entry is brought against them both, and they vouch the common vouchee, or the husband alone does continue, and the writ is brought against the discontinuee, and he vouches the husband and wife both, and they enter into the warranty and vouch the common vouchee, and so the recovery is had; these are good recoveries for the whole and a bar to all the estates in tail, and to the estate of the woman, and to all other estates. 3 Co. 5, 6. 32.

And where lands are given to a man and his wife and the heirs of the body of the wife, or to the wife and the heirs of her body, and the writ of entry is brought against the husband and wife, and they vouch the common vouchee; these are good recoveries, and will bar the husbands and wives, and the estates in tail, remainder and reversion.

And where a man has land in which his wife has a jointure, or to which she will have the title of dower after his death, if the writ of entry in this case be brought against them both, and they vouch the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had, this recovery will bar them both: but the husband alone without her cannot bar her of any such estate by a recovery; for she may falsify and avoid it after his death. Plow. 514.

And if land be given to husband and wife and the heirs of the body of the husband and the writ of entry is brought against the husband alone, and he vouches the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had with a single voucher; this is no good recovery of any part of the land, nor bar to any of the estates, although the husband survives the wife. 3 Co. 5. 1. 12 Ed. 4. 14.

And yet if lands be given to two others, and the heirs of the body of one of them, the remainder over to a stranger, and the writ of entry is brought against one of them, and he vouches the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had; this is a good recovery, and a bar to all the estates for the one half of the land.

If lands be given to A. in tail, the remainder to B. in tail, the remainder to C. in tail, the remainder to D. in fee, and A. makes a feoffment in fee, and the writ of entry is brought against the feoffee, and he vouches B. (being him in the second remainder in tail) to warranty, and he vouches the common vouchee; this is a good recovery, and a bar to the second estate-tail, and all the remainders and reversions depending thereupon; and yet it is no bar of the first estate-tail which A. has. 3 Co. 6.

If the writ of entry be brought against a mortgagee, and he vouches the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had; this is no good recovery to bar or bind the mortgagor, but that he may enter upon the condition broken.

So if one gives lands to B. and his heirs so long as C. shall have heirs of his body, and B. suffers a common recovery, and vouches the common vouchee; this is no good recovery to bar the donor of the possibility, for in both these cases he that is to be barred has no remainder or reversion, but an interest or possibility, which cannot receive a recompense in value.

But if in these cases the mortgagee vouches to warranty the mortgagor, or B. the donor vouches the donor, and so they vouch over the common vouchee, and so the recovery is had; these will be good recoveries to bar both them and their heirs for ever.

And if one has an estate in fee-simple determinable on a limitation or a condition, or if lands be given to A. and his heirs until B. pays to him 100*l.* and then that it shall remain to B. and his heirs, and A. in this case suffers a common recovery, and vouches the common vouchee; it seems this is no bar to B. and his heirs, but that upon payment of the 100*l.* he shall have the land.

So if one by his will devises his land thus: I give unto A. my son and his heirs for ever my land in W. paying 20*l.* to B. when A. shall come to twenty-one years of age, and then that A. and his heirs shall have it for ever; and if A. shall die without heirs of his body, C. being then living, that then C. shall have it to him and his heirs for ever, and A. pays the 20*l.* to B. at his full age, and then suffers a recovery of the land; this is no bar to C. of his estate. Cur. Mich. 18 Jac. B. R. & vide the case of Pell and Brown.

But note in the cases before, where it is said that a recovery is void, it is meant, as to the parties and them in reversion and remainder; for as to the parties themselves that suffer the recovery, the same is for the most part good, and binds them by way of estoppel and conclusion.

And note also, that a stranger that has right to the land at the time of the recovery ^{Stranger.} suffered is not barred at all by the recovery, or by his want of non-claim, &c. as in the case of a fine. 3 Co. 5.

He that is in an estate in possession by title above the recovery, shall not be bound by the recovery. Co. 96. a.

Where lands were devised to A. for life, and if A. should die leaving issue-male, then to such issue-male and his heirs for ever; but if A. should leave no issue-male, then B. in fee; and A. suffered a common recovery of these lands, and five years passed: the right heirs of the testator were barred, in regard they ought to have entered upon the forfeiture, and had no new title of entry upon the death of the tenant for life. Ill. 520.

On a recovery it was objected, that a recovery was a wilful forfeiture in point of law, was voluntary, and upon no condition; and that it ought not to be supplied or maintained in equity; but the court decreed it. Chan. Ca. 49.

(G) Of the Parties in Common Recoveries in general.

Every good and binding common recovery it is requisite there be a demandant, a tenant, and a vouchee, as the efficient causes thereof; for if either of these be wanting, it is not a complete recovery.

And therefore if a common recovery be had against the tenant in tail without a voucher, it is void.

And for this it is to be known that such persons and by such names may be demandants, tenants and vouchees in recoveries, as may be cognisors and cognisees in fines. 2 West. tit. recoveries. Co. Lit. 372.

And therefore a recovery suffered by an infant appearing by his guardian is good, and will bind him and all others. Hob. 275.

Also a recovery had against a woman that has a husband being joined with her husband binds her and all others. 10 Co. 43. Plow. 515.

(H) Of the Demandant.

THE demandant is he who brings the writ of entry, and may be termed the recoveror.

(I) Of the Tenant.

THE tenant is he against whom the writ of entry is brought, and may be termed the recoveree.

It is necessary in a recovery that there be a lawful tenant to the præcipe, i. e. that the Tenant to the præcipe of entry be brought against one that at the time of the writ brought is tenant of the freehold, either by right, i. e. that has an estate for life at least in the land, or by disseisin, i. e. that is a disseisor of the land demanded, and whereof the recovery is had. 252. Co. Lit. 46. 3 Co. 6.

And therefore in this case the course is where the land to be recovered is in possession, a fine and a recovery is had of it together, the fine is sued out first; for this makes the tenant of the freehold of the land, and then the recovery is had against him.

And when the recovery is to be had of a reversion, and that there is an estate for life in the land whereof the recovery is to be had, (for an estate for years, or any like estate, will not hinder the suffering of a recovery) there the course is to get a conditional surrender for the tenant for life of his estate to him in reversion or remainder, so that he may be perfect tenant of the inheritance, and then the writ of entry may be brought and the recovery had against him; for if a writ of entry be brought against a tenant in tail, and he vouches the tenant in tail in possession of the land, and so a recovery is had; or if there be tenant for life of land, the remainder or reversion to another in tail, in fee, and a stranger brings a writ of entry against him in the remainder or reversion, 6 L. 111.

sion, or against a stranger who vouches him, and so a recovery is had; these recoveries are not good.

And yet if the writ be brought against the tenant of the land and a stranger that has nothing in the land together, and so a recovery be had; this recovery is good enough.

And if a disseisor makes a gift in tail of the land to another, and the writ is brought against him, and he vouches the disseisee, and he vouches the common vouchee; this is a good recovery. 3 Co. 6. Co. Lit. 46. Lit. § 519. Plow. 514. Dr. & Stud. 49.

I bargain and sell lands to you and your heirs, the bargainee has an estate before entry and he is a good tenant to the præcipe in a common recovery, yet he cannot bring trespass. Carter 78.

In a case, Mic. 29 Car. 2. amongst the serjeants, it was held by Ellis, Newdigate and Dolbin, that if a bargainee suffers a recovery by writ of entry returnable crast' Marti, after the deed is inrolled; in such case the bargainee was sufficient tenant to the præcipe before inrolment by this relation subsequent, and that this bargain and sale may lead the way of this recovery. But Raymond doubted that the inrolment coming after the return of the writ of entry, came too late to make a tenant to the præcipe; and it was said 4000*l.* was lost upon this title. And lord Hobart in Duncomb and Wingfield's case, is of opinion, that the defendant be tenant to the præcipe, either at the time of the writ purchased, or at the return of it, it is sufficient.

Tenant in tail, remainder in tail, the remainder in fee. The tenant in tail was attainted of treason, office was found. The king by letters patent granted the land to A. who bargained and sold it by deed to B. and B. suffered a common recovery, by which the tenant in tail is vouched, and afterwards this deed was inrolled. Per Holt Ch. Just.—This is a bar of the remainder, because before inrolment nothing passed but by way of conclusion and the bargainee was not lawful tenant to the præcipe. Godb. 218. 2 Inst. 675.

A common recovery cannot be suffered where the estate-tail is expectant on an estate for life, tenant for life not being made tenant to the præcipe. Vent. 360. This is true in a writ of entry in le post, (which is commonly used; and the reason is, that such a writ supposes a disseisin) which cannot be when there is a tenant for life in possession.

A lessee for life, remainder to B. in tail, and a præcipe is brought against B. if B. happens to have a surrender of the lessee for life at any time before the recovery, it is a good recovery, and the præcipe is made good. Noy's Rep. 126.

If a tenant to the præcipe is made by lease and release, it is good though there be no consideration. Mod. Rep. 262. 2.

The conferee of a fine, oſtab. Pur. is a good tenant to the præcipe of a recovery the same day; and the court will suppose a privity the same day to support a conveyance. H. 2. Car. 2. B. R. Fettiplace's case.

Tenant for life, and he in remainder in tail suffer a common recovery, in which they both vouch the common vouchee; this shall not bind the estate-tail, for he in the remainder in tail is not tenant to the præcipe, but the tenant pur vie; and in truth the land is recovered against tenant pur vie only, and the recompence cannot vest in him in remainder only, because the land is in truth recovered against tenant for life. 3 Co. 5. cited in Cupledike's case.

Plowden's opinion in Manxell's case, post. 568. that if there be tenant for life, the remainder or reversion over in tail; and a common recovery is had against him in remainder or reversion, it shall bar the estate-tail, was denied for law by all the judges; for there is no tenant to the præcipe, but only by admittance and collusion, which shall not bind the tenant in tail. Præcipe against tenant for life, who vouched him in remainder in tail, who vouched the common vouchee, he in remainder is barred. Andr. 275.

If there be a bargain and sale, and a fine to a lessee for years or in reversion to make them tenants to a præcipe, this does not destroy the reversion for years. 2 Roll. Rep. 249.

If lessee for years be made tenant to the præcipe, it does not extinguish his term, because it was in him for another purpose. Mod. 107.

In error of a judgment in ejectment in C. B. where a special verdict was found, that a writ of entry was brought against M. C. returnable quind' Martini; that on the return he appeared, and the demandant counted against him; that he vouched L. the tenant in tail, and a summoneas ad warrantizand' issued, returnable oſtab. Pur'; after the seſſe before the return of the summons, viz. 1 January, L. the tenant in tail conveyed to M. C. by lease and release for life, and at the return thereof L. appeared and entered into warranty, and vouched over the common vouchee, and so a recovery was had. And this being held good in C. B. the plaintiff in error's counsel insisted in B. R. that M. C. was not tenant to the præcipe at the return of the writ of entry: he agreed, if he had purchased before the return thereof, the recovery had been good (aliter if after, as here) to him and his heirs and assigns, and a stranger.

ingers, or the issue in tail, though it might be good between the parties by way of estoppel, because the tenant could not render the lands at the return of the writ of entry, and a voucher always supposes a seisin; for it is always a good counterplea, that the voucher had nothing at the time of the voucher, and the nec unquam postea is not material; and if the tenant does not plead non-tenure, as he might and ought, that only binds himself and those that are parties and claim under him by estoppel. E contra argued, that the issue shall be bound where he may have execution for the value; and it is not a sufficient counterplea of voucher, to say the voucher had nothing tempore, &c. without adding nec unquam postea. And so it is of non-tenure. Where the tenant appears on the return of writ of entry, and a recovery is then had, there the tenant must have the freehold of him at the return of the writ, because it is a recovery then suffered; but otherwise where there is a voucher over, or interpleaded, as in this case; for there it is sufficient if he comes tenant before judgment. And of this last opinion, both as to the counterplea of voucher, non-tenure, &c. was Holt Ch. Just. And he also held, that if the tenant to the præcipe gains a freehold before judgment, it is sufficient, for it cannot be said to be a recovery against him that had nothing; and therefore a writ may be made good by a subsequent purchase, and so may a voucher; and it is the more reasonable, because the demandant may have a good cause of action though the tenant have not the land; for it is his being tenant to the præcipe, but the demandant's having a right to the land, that is the foundation and cause of the action; and therefore it is sufficient in law if the tenant has the land to render at any time before judgment; and the judgment in C. B. was affirmed causa. Cause was afterwards endeavoured to be shewed, sed non allocatur: and then Ch. J. further observed, that the recompence in the case of common recoveries was ratio, but non unica why they barred; for a reversion expectant is thereby barred, and yet the recompence cannot extend to that; which (he said) was a bold advance in favour of common recoveries. The rule was made absolute. 2 Salk. Lacy v. Williams.

A recovery is good, though a stranger that has nothing in the land be made tenant to the præcipe with the tenant in tail; for the recompence in value shall go to him that lost it; and being a common assurance, it shall be favourably expounded. Vent. 358.

In a quare impedit, the plaintiff intitled himself to an advowson by a recovery suffered by him in tail; and in pleading the recovery, he alledged two to be tenants to the præcipe, did not shew how they became so, or what conveyance was made to them by which it appeared they were tenants; the court thought it was not well pleaded, but gave no judgment. 2 Mod. 7. Mod. 219.

If he in reversion suffers a common recovery to divers uses, his heir cannot plead that his father had nothing in the land at the time of the recovery, for he is estopped to say, that he was not tenant to the præcipe; and it was a good recovery against him by estoppel. b. 141. 4 Leon. 238. Cro. Eliz. 21.

On producing a common recovery at a trial, the counsel on the other side pressed them to prove who was tenant to the præcipe at the time of the recovery; but the court would not allow it, for it shall be intended a good recovery; and if it were otherwise, the proof ought to be made by the other party. Cro. Jac. 455.

By stat. 14 G. 2. intituled, An act to amend the law concerning common recoveries, &c. rec- Tenant to the præcipe.
That whereas several leases have been heretofore, and are hereafter likely to be made, of honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments, for one or more lives, under particular rents thereby reserved, and to be reserved: and whereas procurors, surrenders of such freehold leases, or the tenants thereof to join, in order to make return to the writs of entry, or other writs for suffering common recoveries, frequently occasions great trouble, difficulty and expence to tenants in tail, and the same cannot in many cases be obtained, by reason of the uncertainty in whom the legal estate of freehold in such leases is vested, and also by reason of the disabilities and incapacities of such tenants, or persons claiming under them, by means whereof purchases and family settlements are often delayed, and may be in great danger of being defeated, if some proper remedy be not provided: for remedy whereof it is enacted, that all common recoveries suffered, shall be suffered in his majesty's court of common pleas at Westminster, or in any other court of record in the principality of Wales, or in any of the counties palatine, or in any other court having jurisdiction of the same, of any honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments, without any surrender or surrenders of such lease or leases, or without the concurrence of, or any conveyances or assurance from such lessee or lessees, or other persons claiming under such lessee or lessees, in order to make good tenants to the writs of entry, or other writs, whereupon such recoveries have been or shall be had, shall be as valid and effectual in law, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, as if such lessee or lessees, or any other person or persons claiming under him, her or them, had had conveyed, or joined in conveying, or shall convey, or join in conveying a good estate of freehold to such person or persons as has or have been, or shall become tenant or tenants to such writs of entry, or other writs, whereupon such common recoveries have been or shall be suffered.

Common recoveries to be valid without conveying the freehold.

Provifo.

Provided always that nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to make any common recoveries valid and effectual in law, unless the person or persons intitled to the first estate for life, or other greater estate (in case there be no such estate for life in being, in reversion or remainder next after the expiration of such leases) has or have, by some lawful act or means, conveyed or assured, or joined in conveying or assuring, or shall, by some lawful act or means, convey or assure, or join in conveying or assuring an estate for life at the least, to such person or persons as has or have been, or shall become tenant or tenants to the writs of entry, or other writs, whereupon such common recoveries have been or shall be suffered.

Provided also that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to extend to prejudice the estate of such lessee or lessees, or any person or persons claiming any interest under such lessee or lessees.

A surrender of tenant for life shall be presumed on a recovery of 40 years standing. 2 Stra. 1129.

If A. be cestuy que trust for life, remainder in trust for B. in tail, remainder in fee to C. B. cannot bar the remainder by suffering a recovery if there be a good tenant to the præcipe. Chan. Ca. 64.

But if there be no legal tenant to the præcipe, in order to the suffering a recovery, yet after a length of time it shall be presumed that there was. Mod. Ca. in Law and Eq. 143.

And though there be no tenant to the præcipe, yet a recovery is good by way of estoppel against the party that suffered it, but not against remainder-men, strangers, &c. Lucas 45.

A common recovery, though defective as to a tenant to the præcipe, will bar an equitable estate-tail in trust only. 2 Vern. 132. 2 Chan. Ca. 63.

A recovery is good in which the tenant to the præcipe is made tenant of the freehold before the return of the summoneas ad warrantizandum. Id. Raym. 227, 475, 477.

(K) Of the Vouchee.

Who.

THE vouchee is he whom the tenant vouches or calls to warranty for the land in demand.

• Child in ventre sa mere.

A child in ventre sa mere it is said may be vouched in a common recovery, a bill may be brought in its behalf, and an injunction to stay waste, &c. 2 Vern. 711.

(L) Of the Use of Vouchers, and the Intent of Recoveries with single, double, treble, &c. Vouchers.

THE effect of a recovery, as is said before, is to bar intails, and all remainders and reversions that should take place after intails; and they are most usually suffered either with a single voucher, double voucher, or treble voucher, and sometimes with a quadruple voucher.

Intent of recoveries with single voucher.

The intent of a common recovery with a single voucher, is to bar the tenant and his heirs of such estate-tail only which then is in him, to destroy the estates which others have of any reversion expectant, or remainder dependent upon the same; and of all leases and incomes derived out of such reversions or remainders.

But where the king is the giver of an estate-tail, and keeps the reversion in himself, it is said that such a recovery against the tenant in tail will not bar the issue in tail of his entry, nor discontinue his estate, nor pluck such reversion or remainder out of his majesty. 28 H. 8. b. 34 H. 8. c. 20. Dyer 132.

A recovery with single voucher bars only such estate as the tenant has in possession at the recovery, and the dependencies thereon; as if lands be given to A. in tail, the remainder to the right heirs of B. (B. being then living) and the writ of entry is brought against the tenant in tail, and he vouches over the common vouchee; this is a good recovery and bars to the estate-tail and remainder also. Co. 135. 3 Co. 59.

But if the tenant in tail be not in possession, or be in of another estate by disseisin or conveyance, &c. as if tenant in tail be disseised, and then suffers a recovery with single voucher.

voucher; or the disseisor makes a new estate to the tenant in tail, and then the tenant in tail suffers a recovery with single voucher; or if the tenant in tail makes a feoffment in fee of land, and then takes back a new estate to himself from the discontinuee in tail or in fee, and then suffers a common recovery with single voucher; by this the estate in these last cases is not barred. Ibid. But by double voucher they may.

A recovery with double voucher, is intended to bar the first voucher and his heirs of every such estate as at any time was in him, or any of his ancestors, whose heir he is, of such estate; and all other persons of such right to a reversion or remainder as was thereupon at any time expectant or dependant, and of all leases, charges and incumbrances derived out of any such reversion or remainder, and will be also a perpetual bar of such estate whereof the tenant was then seised in reversion or remainder expectant or dependant upon the same.

But by a recovery with double voucher, in the cases before where a single voucher is no bar, the estate-tail is barred, and all interest, estates and titles that the vouchee has at the time of the entry into the warranty.

And therefore where the tenant in tail levies a fine, makes a feoffment, or bargains and sells the land by deed indented and inrolled, the writ is brought against the cognisee, feoffee or bargainee, and he vouches the tenant in tail, who vouches the common vouchee; this bars the estate-tail, and the remainders and reversions thereupon.

So if in these cases the conusee, feoffee or bargainee, makes a new estate to the conusor, feoffor or bargainor, or he disseises the conusee, feoffee or bargainee, and then levies a fine, makes a feoffment, and bargains and sells to another against whom the writ of entry is brought, and he vouches the tenant in tail, and he vouches the common vouchee; by this recovery the first and second estate-tail, and all the remainders and reversions depending thereupon, are barred. Co. 135. 3 Co. 59. 12 Ed. 4. 19. 10 Co. 45.

The intent of a recovery with a treble voucher is to make a perpetual bar of the estates of the tenant, and of every such estate of inheritance as at any time had been in the first second vouchee, or any of them, or either of their ancestors, whose heirs he or they are of such estate, and as well of every reversion thereupon dependant; as also of all leases, charges and incumbrances derived out of such reversion or remainder.

Note; In that called a single recovery, you will find two recoveries included; the first by the demandant against the tenant, and the second by tenant against the common vouchee.

2. In that with a double voucher you will find three recoveries included; one for the demandant against the tenant, the second for the tenant against the voucher, the last for the tenant against the second or common vouchee.

3. And also in a recovery with a treble voucher are included four recoveries: first by the demandant against the tenant, the second by the tenant against the first voucher, (otherwise called vouchee) the third by the first against the second, and the fourth by the second against the common vouchee.

(M) Of the due Order and Form required in Recoveries.

It is necessary that every good common recovery be had and suffered in that order and form as the law requires, viz. that there be a writ of entry brought, and appearance of the tenant in fact, a voucher, and an appearance of the tenant in law the vouchee, judgment and execution; for if there be any substantial defect in these things, the recovery may thereby avoided by writ of error; but if it be only in form, it will not hurt. 3 Co. 3. 23 Eliz. c. 3.

If a recovery be intended with single voucher, the præcipe must be brought against the tenant in tail in possession, and he must vouch the common vouchee.

But if your recovery be intended with a double voucher, you must either by fine, feoffment, bargain and sale inrolled, or lease and release, make him (you intend to be) tenant in tail at the time of the writ of entry brought; for every writ of entry must always be brought against him that must be a perfect tenant of the freehold of the land demanded at the return of the writ, 18 R. 2. and Dyer fol. 252. pl. 98. because the estate of the tenant in tail (who is the first vouchee) is barred in respect of the supposed recompence adjudged over against the common vouchee; for in strict law the recompence adjudged over is to go in possession of the estate, as the land lost should have done; and then it were not reason to give the heir liberty to keep the land, and also to have a recompence in value, therefore the writ is to be brought against the land, and is to trust to the recompence. Dyer 252. 3 Co. 6. Co. 42.

But in a feigned recovery the recompence is but imaginary, and no such thing really in case.

How the writ of entry must be brought.

If there be a fine as well as a recovery, you must make him cognisee to the fine who to be tenant in the recovery, and he must vouch the tenant in tail, and in such case the writ of covenant for the fine must bear teste, and be returnable before the writ of entry.

And if a tenant has but an estate for life, or be tenant in dower, or by the curtesy in England, it is requisite for the strengthening of a recovery, and saving his estate, that he makes a conditional surrender of his estate to him in the reversion or remainder, to the end he may be a present tenant of the inheritance, and then to bring the writ of entry against him; and after the recovery is executed, the particular tenant, for breach of the condition, may enter and enjoy his term notwithstanding such surrender. See the form of the surrender in the second volume, but see the stat. 14 G. 2. c. 20. before p. 604.

The form of recovery with single voucher.

Recoveries are mostly used for assurances of land in the form whereof the parties do agree, that one who is called the demandant shall bring an action real, (as if he has good right) against the tenant of the freehold of the land, as though he had no right of entry to the same; but after a disseisin, which Hugh Hunt (the common name of the supposed disseisor) had unjustly made to the demandant, &c. and hereupon the tenant calls to warrant to him the lands—— (or the common vouchee, one of the criers of the court, which vouchee is supposed to appear in court, and warrant the lands to the tenant (or defendant) whereupon the plaintiff or demandant claims the lands against the common vouchee who is supposed to appear and defend his right, and pleads, that Hugh did not disseise the plaintiff or demandant, as by his declaration he supposes, and puts himself upon the country to try it; whereupon the demandant prays a day to imparl, or speak to the plea; and a day being given, the demandant is supposed to come again into court in proper person, and the common vouchee then is supposed to make default, and withdraw in contempt of the court; and thereupon judgment is given, that the demandant shall recover in value against the common vouchee, &c. and so by this device, grounded upon the strict principles of the law, the tenant loseth the land, and has nothing for it; but it is by his own agreement and for the assurance of him that buys the land, &c.

Double or treble voucher.

And so it is if it be with double or treble vouchers; as in a double voucher the tenant calleth to warranty the first vouchee, who warranteth and calleth the second or common vouchee, who pleads to the country, and after imparlance and return of the demandant makes default, and then judgment for the demandant against the tenant, for the tenant to recover in value of the first vouchee, and the first to recover in value of the second or common vouchee; and it is in the like manner with treble voucher, &c.

(N) Who may suffer a common Recovery.

ANY person who is not disabled by law may suffer a common recovery. Such disabilities are either by the common or statute law.

By the common law infants, feme-coverts, persons attainted, and aliens, are disabled. But as to ideots and madmen, a recovery suffered by them is unavoidable.

Those disabled by statute are for some particular reasons therein given, on account of the abuse of common recoveries.

Tenant in fee-simple. Donee in tail on condition. Tenant in tail contrary to his covenant.

A tenant in fee-simple may suffer a common recovery of land, and it will bind him who suffers it, his heirs, and all others.

A condition that a donee in tail shall not alien, is void; and therefore such a donee in tail may, notwithstanding such condition, by recovery bar it. 9 Co. 127.

By a settlement A. was made tenant for life, remainder to the heirs of his body, his wife, and in the same deed A. covenanted not to suffer a common recovery, but that the lands shall be enjoyed according to these limitations. A. suffered a recovery, and then devised the lands; this recovery was held good to bind the assets; but A. being tenant in tail, and as such having a power to suffer a recovery, the land devised shall not be affected. Wil. 104. 2 Vern. 635.

Tenant in tail, mortgagor or cognitor, &c. Mortgagee.

If tenant in tail makes a mortgage, or confesses a judgment, &c. and after suffers a common recovery, the recovery shall enure to make good all his precedent acts and cumbrances. Chan. Ca. 120.

If a mortgagee suffers a recovery, it will not bar the mortgagor; but if the mortgagor be a party to the recovery, it will be good. Cro. Jac. 592, 593.

Cestuy que trust.

A common recovery, suffered by cestuy que trust of an estate-tail, has the same effect in equity to bar the intail and remainders, as it would have at law in case he had the fee estate in him. 1 Vern. 13, 440. 2 Vern. 132. 2 Chan. Ca. 71. 2 Vent. 350. Wil. 91.

If A. be cestuy que use for life, remainder in trust for B. in tail, remainder in fee to B. cannot bar the remainder by suffering a recovery if there be a good tenant to the præcipe. 2 Chan. Ca. 64.

Where a cestuy que trust in tail brings a bill against the trustees to the intent they should in a recovery, this is not proper; but it is proper to pray that the trustees may convey the premises to cestuy que trust in tail who may then suffer a recovery; though if the trustees are also trustees for any annuity subsisting, they are not compellable to part with the legal estate out of them to the cestuy que trust in tail. 2 Wil. 134.

In a marriage settlement the husband was made tenant for ninety-nine years, if he so long lived, remainder to trustees during the life of the husband, &c. remainder to the first and other sons by the marriage in tail-male, remainder to the first and other sons by any other wife, remainder over; a son was born and of age; the wife died, and there were no other sons by a subsequent marriage; the trust for preserving contingent remainders descended to an infant: a court of equity will, if it be for the benefit of the family, decree the infant trustee to join in a recovery.

If an infant tenant appears by his guardian either as defendant or vouchee, he shall be bound as well as one of full age; and if the guardian feint pleads, or mispleads, the infant is a good action against him.

Where an infant comes in person as vouchee, error lies not after full age, because it must be tried by inspection, which cannot be after full age.

And if he appears by attorney, and suffers a common recovery, then it shall be reversed for error; aliter per guardian. Sid. 321. 2 Keb. 14. Mod. 48. Style 248.

Recovery against an infant who appears by guardian, and vouches over, is not erroneous. Earl of Newport and Sir H. Midway's case. 6 Co. 40.

A. tenant in tail, remainder to B. in fee. A. sold the land to J. S. and his heirs, and by assurance made a feoffment in fee, and levied a fine to J. S. to the use of J. S. and his heirs: by the indenture of bargain and sale A. covenanted to make such further assurance within two years as the said J. S. or his heirs, or their counsel should advise; before any assurance made J. S. died, his son and heir within age; it was devised that, for such further assurance and cutting off the remainder, a common recovery should be suffered in which the said infant should be tenant to the præcipe, and should vouch the vendor; and that the said recovery should be to the said infant and his heirs. After some doubt upon the appearance of a good and sufficient guardian for the infant, the recovery passed. Leon. 29. b.

The king, by letter under his privy signet and sign manual, signified to lord Hobart and his fellow justices of C. B. that he was petitioned by Mountjoy Blunt, under the age of twenty-one years, and by his friends, kindred and feoffees, into whose custody the late earl of Devonshire did commit his estate in trust, that he might be admitted to suffer a recovery of his manor of W. for payment of his debts, &c. Says lord Hobart, though we did never hold such recovery unlawful, or void in law, yet we have refused many motions of that kind, as holding it very inconvenient; but conveniency is discerned by circumstances: whereupon I (said his lordship) sent for the young gentleman, and secretly examined him, and he, being eighteen years of age, satisfied me that he conceived it necessary for his estate; and I called the earl of Southampton, lord Davers, and Mr. Wakeman, the persons to whom the estate was committed in trust; they all confessed it was necessary, and the recovery passed openly at the bar against M. Blunt in person, and the said earl, lord, and Wakeman, were admitted his guardians. Hob. 196.

Sir John St. Alban being of the age of nineteen, his sister (who was next in remainder, and also his heir) having married one of his footmen, he petitioned the king for leave to suffer a recovery, who referred it to the judges of C. B. before whom several precedents of such recoveries, suffered by privy seals, were cited, viz. one Bivarny, 1 June 10 Car. 1. one Lang, 23 Novemb. 11 Car. 1. another 13 Car. 1. another 14 Car. 1. another 1 Jac. 2. and two others, 2 Jac. 2. and another by John the son of Sir John Croke, 10 Car. 2. But the judges observed that seven of these petitions were by fathers upon the marriage of their sons, and an equal recompence given; whereas here was neither father nor marriage to induce a recovery, and said, that this matter had been carried too far already, and therefore disallowed it. 2 Salk. 567.

See of infant feme covert, post.

A common recovery suffered by a feme covert jointly with her husband is good, and will bind them, their heirs and all others; but if she be an infant, and appears as vouchee by her attorney, this recovery will not bind her. 10 Co. 43. Plow. 515. Bridgm. Rep. 69, 70, 71.

And in Pas. 8 W. 3. Stokes and Oliver, a common recovery suffered by an infant feme covert was reversed for error; and the error assigned was, that she, being vouchee and under age, age, had appeared by attorney; and it was said, that if she had vouched in person, or guardian, it should not have been reversed for error after full age, because a guardian made by the court, who will not admit of any one but such as shall be answerable for the loss the infant may sustain through his default: but an attorney is made by the party, and an infant is not supposed to have discretion enough to chuse an attorney who will be faithful to him; and therefore she having appeared by attorney and suffered a recovery, shall be reversed for the same after she comes of age, because it shall be tried by the court, whether the warrant of attorney was made when under age or not. Neither can the husband, though of full age, make an attorney for himself and his wife who is under age, so as to bind the inheritance of the wife; but she being the principal, must be barred by her own act, and therefore must appear in court in such manner as the law has directed by reason of her infancy. And it may be a question, whether she can be barred by an act of her own besides that of a fine; for she is not examined in a common recovery, but she is in a fine. But this is not like the case of a fine levied by an infant, for that cannot be reversed but by the infant himself during his nonage: for it being the act of the court to suffer such a one to levy a fine, the court must therefore reform the same by inspection which cannot be after full age. 5 Mod. 209, 210.

See more of infants, ante.

Baron and feme are tenants, and vouch the common vouchee; the feme was an infant and appeared in person, and not by guardian; therefore it was reversed. Cro. Eliz. 321.

If there be tenant for life, remainder to the husband and wife and their heirs, and the husband and wife suffer a recovery, being vouched by the tenant for life; this shall bind the wife. Style 320.

Where husband has land wherein his wife has a jointure, or to which she may have title of dower after his death, and the writ of entry is brought against them both, and they vouch the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had, this recovery will bar them both but not if against the husband alone, for in that case she may falsify and avoid it after his death. Plow. 514. 3 Co. 5.

A recovery cannot be suffered to bar an intail, where there is an estate for life in jointure, without the feme joins therein. 5 Mod. 210, 211.

If a woman who has an estate in dower, for life, or in tail jointly with her husband, or only to herself, or to her use, in any lands, &c. of the inheritance or purchase of her husband, or given to the husband and wife by the husband's ancestors, or any seized to the use of the husband or his ancestors, do, after the husband's death, sole, or with another husband, suffer a recovery of it, it shall be void; and he to whom the land ought to belong after the death of the said woman, may enter as if the woman was dead; and yet if in this case she does it with the consent of the next heir, or shall join with him, it is a good recovery; or if a writ be brought against her, and she vouches the heir in tail, and so the recovery is had. Stat. 11 H. 7. 20. 3 Co. 51. 59, 60.

Where lands are given to husband and wife, and the heirs of the body of the wife; or to the wife, and the heirs of her body, and the writ of entry is brought against the husband and wife, and they vouch the common vouchee; this is a good recovery, and will bar the estates of the husband and wife, and of them in remainder and reversion expectant thereupon.

If land be given to husband and wife, and the heirs of the body of the husband, the remainder over, and the husband alone suffers a common recovery; this is no bar to the remainder. 3 Co. 5.

If the husband be tenant in tail, the remainder to the wife in tail, and he suffers a common recovery of the land, she is barred.

But if land be given to two others, and the heirs of the body of one of them, the remainder over to a stranger, and the writ of entry is brought against one of them, and he vouches the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had; this recovery is good, and binds all the estates for one half of the lands; but between husband and wife there are no moieties. 3 Co. 5, 6.

Where an estate is to the husband and his wife for life, remainder to his heirs-male on the wife begotten; the husband cannot dock this estate by a recovery during his wife's life. 2 Salk. 568.

If the husband and wife be jointenants of an estate in fee-simple or fee-tail of land by coverture, and the husband alone suffers a recovery of it; this is good for a moiety.

And if husband and wife be jointenants after the coverture, and then they suffer a recovery together; this will bind them.

And if they be jointenants for life, the remainder to the heirs of the husband, and they suffer a recovery of it; this is no bar to the issue of any part of the land. Moor 350.

Persons attainted are disabled to suffer recoveries; and therefore,

If tenant in tail be attainted, and office found, the land granted to A. who sells it to Attainder. who suffers a common recovery, and therein vouches tenant in tail, the remainders are not barred. Godb. 218. But Allen in 1 Keb. 30. contra arguendo, 1 Keb. 398. But notwithstanding the opinion in Godb. yet it seems there is such a scintilla juris in the tenant in tail after attainder, that by a common recovery he may bar the issue, reversions and remainders, if there be a good tenant to the præcipe; for if the king pardons the party and restores the land, though the attainder is in force, he may bar the intail.

Aliens are also disabled to suffer recoveries.

Aliens.

If an alien be tenant in tail, the estate-tail is good, but not descendible to his issue. Co. 141.

But if lands are given to an alien in tail, remainder to C. in fee, and the alien suffers common recovery, and after an office is found, the recovery bars C. and the king has a good fee; for till office he was seised, and there was a good tenant to the præcipe. Godb. 102. Co. 137.

Besides the before-mentioned natural and legal disabilities, conveniency, decency and order prevents some from suffering recoveries; and therefore,

The king cannot suffer a common recovery, for if he does, he must be tenant or vouchee; King. and in both cases the demandant must count against him; which the law does not suffer, so cannot come in as tenant by receipt; but if the party has any warranty, he may pray in aid. Cro. Eliz. 96, 97.

But a recovery suffered by an idiot or madman is unavoidable, because the law has a great regard to matters of record; as is manifest in 2 And. 163. where a fine levied by an idiot was held good, for both the idiot and his heirs are estopped to say he was an idiot; and the court would rather judge the office void, than bring this judicial act in question, or the judgment of the court that accepted the fine. Ideots and lunatics.

1) Of what Things a Writ of Entry may be brought, i. e. of what a common Recovery may be suffered, and what it will bar.

In every good common recovery it is requisite that there be land demanded as the matter, and that the thing be demandable.

And for this it is to be known, that of such things and by such names as a writ of entry for the levying of a fine may be had, a writ of entry for the suffering of a recovery may be had, save only it may not be de fossato, stagno, piscaria, un' carucat' terræ, estove, bomag', fidelitat', de servitiis faciendis, de bovata marisci, de felion terræ, de gardino, cottagio, fto, virgata terræ, fodina mineræ, mercatu, nec de superiori camera; and yet of some of these it may be by other names. Of what things entry may be.

But a common recovery may be of an honour, island, barony, castle, messuage, curtilage, dovehouse, land, meadow, pasture, underwood, chapel, river, county, warren, tory, view of frankpledge, waif, estray, felon's goods, deodands, furze, heath, moor, trees, &c.

Also a recovery may be had of a rent, common, advowson, franchises, and the like, but not of any annuity. Doct. & Stud. 52. 5 Co. 40, 41. 2 West. Tit. Recovery.

A præcipe for a writ of entry is a præcipe quod reddat.

A præcipe quod reddat lies of

One acre of Land.

Land covered with water, or an acre of land. 12 H. 7. 1. 4.

A water-pit. 10 Ed. 3. and 14 Ed. 3. 842. F. N. B. 191.

A ferry. F. N. B. 191.

A bailiwick. 34 Ed. 4. 423.

An office. 27 H. 8. 12.

The advowson of a church (vide infra) or fourth part of tithes, Dyer 84. pl. 83.

A certain parcel of land. Dyer 84. pl. 83.

The wardship of lands and heirs, or the wardship of lands. Regist. 161. 22 Ed. 3. 29.

Also lies of all manner of ecclesiastical or spiritual profits; as of

A rectory, vicarage, portions, pensions, tithes, &c. Per stat. 32 H. 8. c. 7.

All and all manner of tithes, great, mixt and small, within the vill or hamlet of B.

A fourth part of the tithes and oblations of the church of St. P. &c. 16 Ed. 3.

A certain portion of tithes or lands, not shewing how much. 1 H. 4. 1. Dyer 84. pl. 83, 85, 86.

In old time, of a hide of land; per Glanville.

A plough-land. 4 Ed. 361.

An ox-gang of land. 6 Ed. 3. 991.

Six feet of land in length and four in breadth. 14 Aff. 13.

It also lies of

A toft and fcite of a mill. 14 Ed. 3.

The hundred of C. and bailiwick of B. 34 Ed. 1. 3 Ed. 3.

The pasture of fix oxen. 3 Ed. 3. 23. 4 Ed. 2.

A rood of land. 3 Ed. 5.

An advowson. 34 Ed. 1. 4 Rep. 74. But note, that this must be understood an advowson appendant to a manor; for how can it be of an advowson in gross, since the party has the freehold; and therefore it ought not to be by writ of entry in le post, but by writ droit de advowson; which has been and now is the practice.

A certain portion of land. 11 H. 4. 40. 5 H. 7. 9.

A moiety of one rod of land. 41 Ed. 3.

A shop. Regist. 3.

Four acres of alderwood. 11 Aff. 13.

Turbary, by the name of Moor. 1 Ed. 3. 387.

And it lies in a town and not in a hamlet. 8 Ed. 3. 55. 7 Ed. 3. 9.

Moiety, third part.

If a man has a moiety or third part of lands, and suffers a common recovery of the whole, the moiety or third part passes, and shall be to such uses as are declared by the common recovery.

So if lands be given to two and the heirs of their bodies, remainders in tail, and one suffers a recovery of the whole; the tenant as well as the vouchee may by pleading the writ: but if the writ be admitted good, the moiety well passes to such uses as are declared by the deed that leads the uses of the common recovery, and the jointure is severed. 3 Co. 3.

So if one seised of a third part of land bargains and sells a moiety, and a common recovery is had of a moiety; this is a good recovery of an entire third, and not of a moiety of a third part. Cro. Car. 110.

Condition.

A condition that runs with the land cannot be barred by a common recovery; aliter a condition collateral. 2 Salk. 570.

Contingent estates limited over.

A. seised in fee of the manors of B. and C. devised them to E. for life, and if E. should have issue-male, then to such issue-male and his heirs for ever; but if E. should have no issue-male, the manor of B. to J. S. in fee, and that of C. to J. N. in fee; E. suffered a recovery of these manors; this barred the contingent estates limited to J. S. and J. N. Will. 509.

Rent de novo.

A recovery may be of a rent de novo; and therefore if one grants a rent in tail to B. remainder to C. in tail, by a common recovery, the remainder to C. may be barred. 285. 2 Keb. 55.

But if one grants a rent in tail to B. who suffers a common recovery to the use of C. and his heirs; B. dies without issue, the rent is determined, because by the common recovery the rent cannot be enlarged to the manifest prejudice of the tenant, and the recovery cannot give the rent a longer continuance than the grantor gave it. 2 Lutw. 1225.

A reputed manor may pass by a common recovery. Lev. 28.

So may lands within a liberty; as,

If S. and C. be two adjacent towns, and a tenant in tail of lands in both towns being within the liberty of S. suffers a common recovery of lands in both towns, but the record is only in the town of S. and liberties thereof, yet it is good to pass the lands in C. 2 Vent. 32.

Trust-estate.

A recovery may be had of a trust-estate; as,

If cestuy que trust in tail is in possession with remainders over, under the trustees, who have the legal estate, and suffers a common recovery; though there be no good tenant to the præcipe, yet the recovery will bar both the estate-tail and remainder and reversion. 2 Chan. Rep. 63. 79.

Copyhold estates.

Common recoveries are not suffered in the court of common pleas of copyhold estates (they being in the eye of the law only tenancies at will, secundum consuetudinem manerii; and in their institution only impleadable in the lord's court).

Lord Coke is of opinion, that copyholds could not be intailed without a custom co-operating with the statutes. 3 Co. 8.

But lord Hale was of the contrary opinion, 3 Lev. 327. which seems the better opinion because the copyholder of inheritance has power by surrender to make any estate.

A copyholder cannot make any tenant to the præcipe but by surrender; therefore the way to suffer a common recovery of a copyhold intailed is either,

1. By committing a forfeiture by custom; as,

If W. S. being tenant in tail of a copyhold, makes a voluntary lease for twenty-one years without the lord's licence, which lease is presented at the next court, and the lands are seized into the lord's hands, and W. S. appointed the forfeiture to be to the use of A. S. and his heirs, and a custom is found that these forfeitures were used to bar intails, and held good. 2 Sand. 422.

Or if tenant in tail, by custom, commits a forfeiture, and then the lord makes three proclamations, and seizes the copyhold, and then grants it to the copyholder and his heirs.

Or if tenant in tail, by other custom, makes a surrender to the purchaser and his heirs, and the purchaser commits a forfeiture, on which the lord seizes, and on the proclamations made, the estate-tail and remainders are barred. Sid. 315. Keb. 752. 2 Keb. 127.

But where there is none of these customs, then the way to bar the estate-tail is,

2. By surrender made by the tenant in tail of the copyhold estate to another person to make him tenant to the præcipe, i. e. to a plaintiff, who is admitted, and then a plaintiff in the nature of a writ of entry in le post is brought against him, who vouches the tenant in tail, and he the common vouchee, and so a recovery is had; and then the recoveror surrenders to the use of the tenant in tail and his heirs, who is admitted accordingly, and thereby the estate-tail and remainders are barred. Vide Co. Ent. 206, 207. pl. 10.

A common recovery of lands in ancient demesne is good and in force till reversed by the writ or disceit. 4 Leon. 123. See 1047, 1048. Ancient demesne lands.

A common recovery may be of lands in a place known, though it be neither a vill nor hamlet, as well as a fine may be of lands in a lieu connu. 2 Mod. 49. Place known.

Every thing as incident, appendant and appurtenant, passes by a common recovery as in other common conveyances. 6 Co. 67. Incidents, appendants, and appurtenants.

And the acres mentioned in common recoveries are computed according to the custom of the county, and not strictly according to the stat. de terris mensurandis. 6 Co. 67. Vide Co. 66, 67. Cro. Car. 308. Cro. Eliz. 52. Lev. 28. Keb. 592.

(O) Of what Things a Writ of Entry does not lie.

Præcipe quod reddat lies not of a ditch, nor of a pool, nor of a fishery, 8 E. 3. 381.

Nor of an advowson of tithes of one plough (or wain) land. Regist. 29.

Nor common of pasture. 27 H. 8. 12.

Nor of estovers. 2 Ed. 3.

Nor of homage of fealty, nor of services to be done. 6 Ed. 2.

It lieth not of an oxgang of marsh land. 13 Ed. 3. 3.

Nor of a felion of land, Ed. 1. for the uncertainty, because a felion is a parcel of land, sometimes containing an acre, sometimes more, and sometimes less.

It lieth not of a garden, cottage or croft. 14 Aff. 13. 8 H. 8. 3. 22 Ed. 4. 13.

A rod of land. 41. 43. 13 Ed. 3.

A quarry, a mine, a market. 13 Ed. 3. For they lie not in demesne, but in gain, nor in upper chamber. 3 H. 6. 1. 2 West's Symb. 77. b.

It lies not of an annuity, nor of a tenement, but it must be of houses and a certain quantity of acres. Moor 953.

A writ of entry ought not to contain one and the same thing twice; as a messuage and house, parcel of the same messuage. 3 Ed. 4. 28. 46 Ed. 3. 26.

Or to name a town and an hamlet within the same town. 22 Ed. 3. 14. 41 Ed. 3. 22. Test. 77. b.

But the practice is now otherwise as to this, and some other of the things before mentioned, you may observe before, that a præcipe quod reddat is said not to lie of a fishery, estovers, nor of a garden, nor of common of pasture; but the use is otherwise; and though it may be meant that a præcipe lies not of one of those things singly alone, as of a common; yet if joined and expressed with other things, it may well lie, and is every day's practice.

(P) Rules to be observed in placing Particulars in a Writ of Entry.

THE more worthy things must be placed before the things less worthy; as a castle before a manor, a manor before a messuage, a messuage before a toft or mill,

Things general must be put before things special; as lands being the general or genus meadow, pasture, &c. is placed before meadow, &c.

3. Intire

3. Intire or whole things are to be put before parts; as one messuage, and the moiety one messuage, &c.

For the more orderly and formal placing of particulars in a writ, observe this method.

Three parts of one messuage.

A moiety of one messuage.

A moiety of one messuage, common of pasture to all the parts aforesaid, as also moiety and third part of common.

(Q) How to suffer Recoveries.

IF the parties live in London, or so near it that they can appear in person in court, it is much the easiest and cheapest way; but sometimes they either will not or cannot appear in person, and then they appear and suffer the recovery by attorney: of both which in order.

First, Of suffering a Recovery by the Parties in open Court.

Draw your præcipe upon a piece of paper, wherein must be named the demandant and the tenant, the quantity of land, and what nature, how many acres, what manors, messuages &c. and in what place or places they lie.

See the form infra.

Next you may carry it to the curfitor of that county where the lands lie, for a writ of entry. But note; it is the common use to pass a recovery at the bar before a writ of entry is sued out; therefore having drawn your præcipe, then enter it upon the prothonotary's remembrance-roll, and put the voucher or vouchers' names in the margin.

Upon this remembrance, after the præcipe, enter the return and teste of the writ of entry. But the recovery may for dispatch be passed first at the bar, which is the common practice.

Therefore having entered your præcipe on the remembrance, (or it is common to enter afterwards) and having your tenant and vouchers ready at the bar, the court being at bar, the method used to be to deliver the remembrance on which your præcipe is entered (which remembrances were always brought to the hall in the term time) to one of the serjeants at the bar, having your clients ready; but the demandant needs not to appear, only the tenant and voucher.

If your client be a nobleman, you must place him in the middle of the bar between the king's serjeants, or the two other eldest serjeants in their absence.

Your præcipe being delivered, the serjeants will plead, and soon dispatch your business.

If the recovery be with single voucher three serjeants plead it; one for the demandant, one for the tenant, and the third for the vouchee.

If with a double voucher, then four serjeants.

If with a treble voucher, then five serjeants.

Every serjeant's fee is said to be 3s. 4d. out of which each serjeant allows to the clerk who sues out the recovery 1s. 4d. so that you pay them only 2s. 3-piece.

But the most modern way is to deliver the præcipe to one of the serjeant's clerks, to whom you pay,

If it be with a single vouchee,	o 6 o
With a double vouchee,	o 8 o
With a treble vouchee,	o 10 o
With a quadruple vouchee,	o 12 o
And if the tenant appears by attorney,	o 4 o more.

The tenant appearing personally, some of the serjeants at the bar will repeat the count, and pray of an imparlance.

Then give the præcipe to one of the criers of the court, who will carry it to the secondary, whom you pay 4s. 6d. and 2s. more if it be by warrant of attorney, and he marks the præcipe thus: at bar. And it is usual to give the crier 6d.

After the præcipe is passed at bar, make a copy of it for the curfitor to make out the writ of entry by.

And as to entering it on the remembrance-roll, that may be done when you pass the examination at the prothonotary's office.

The manner of the serjeant's pleading in a recovery with a single voucher is thus: the serjeant, who has the remembrancer, (or præcipe) will ask which is the tenant, and cause him to stand up, as also the vouchers, to the intent they may be shewn to the court; then the judge will ask, who knows the parties? which you or some other will answer, you know them to be such parties; lest there should be fraud in it, as there has been formerly, where a husband brought in another woman a stranger, saying she was his wife, and suffered a recovery of his wife's land to cut off her estate without her consent.

And note, that Roll Ch. Justice said, that though it was not necessary to examine a feme-sole when she joins with her husband to suffer a recovery, yet he held it prudential, and he used to do it. Præf. Regist. 134. 295.

Then the first serjeant counts by the prothonotary's remembrance, (or the præcipe) according as the writ is there entered, after this manner, viz.

[1st serjeant] This shews to you J. D. that J. S. has deforced him of the manor of D. with Single appurtenances in the county of E. and that this is his right and inheritance whereof he himself voucher: seized in his demesne as of fee and right in time of peace, in the time of the present king, and taken the profits to the value of half a mark and more, and into which the said J. S. has not entered, but after the disseisin which Hugh Hunt thereof unjustly and without judgment has made the said J. S. within thirty years last past; if the said J. S. will deny this, you have here the said J. D. who has brought his proof thereof.

[2d serjeant who is for the tenant.] You have here the said J. S. who defends his right, and vouchers to warranty Edmund Wilson, and prays that he may be summoned within the county as said by the aid of this court.

[3d serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilson, who is here present to enter into warranty, and prays that the demandant may count against him.

voucher.

1st serjeant.] The same count, changing what ought to be changed.

3d serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilton, who defends his right, and says, that the said H. Hunt did not disseise the said J. D. in manner as the said J. D. by his writ and count supposes; and thereupon puts himself upon the country.

1st serjeant.] With your leave we will imparl.

If it be with a double voucher, then the first serjeant counts as before.

1st serjeant.] This shews to you, &c.

2d serjeant.] He counts for the tenant as before, only instead of calling the common vouchee, he calls the first voucher A. B.

3d serjeant.] For the vouchee, desires the judges to record the appearance of the vouchee (and so of every vouchee, unless it be the common vouchee) which done, he must say, You have here the said A. B. who is here ready to enter into the warranty, and prays that the demandant may count against him.

1st serjeant.] The same count, changing what ought to be changed.

3d serjeant.] You have here the said A. B. who defends his right, and vouches to warranty Edmund Wilton, and prays that he may be summoned within the county aforesaid by the aid of this court.

4th serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilton, who is hereby ready to enter into the warranty, and prays that the demandant may count against him.

1st serjeant.] The like count, changing what ought to be changed.

4th serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilton, who defends his right, and says, that the said H. Hunt did not disseise the said J. D. in manner as the said J. D. by his writ and count doth suppose; and thereupon puts himself upon the country.

1st serjeant.] With your leave we will imparl.

And so in like manner if it be with treble voucher mutatis mutandis.

Secondly, Of suffering Recoveries when the Parties appear by Attorney.

When the tenant or vouchee lives distant from London, and cannot or will not appear in person, they appear by attornies.

Such warrant may be taken two several ways:

1. Either by any of the judges of assize of either bench, barons of the exchequer, and as some say, by serjeants at law in their circuits, without a dedimus potestatem; or,
2. By a dedimus potestatem directed to the commissioners in the county.

I. By Warrant before a Judge, &c.

Draw up the warrant wherein there must be two attornies at least, and their authority joint and several, that if one dies the other may proceed, &c.

See the form infra.

Then go before the judge, and he will subscribe the date of the caption.

There must be a transcript in a paper, to which the judge also puts his hand, and then it is to remain with the clerk of the fines.

Then make out a præcipe for the writ of entry, &c. ut postea.

II. By Dedimus Potestatem.

When the vouchee lives in the country, and his attorney employs an agent in town, then the usual way is to make the country attorney demandant, who has no occasion to be in court; the agent-tenant who appears personally at bar, and then there needs only a dedimus potestatem to take the warrant of attorney of the vouchee.

How to sue out a Dedimus.

*Præcipe for

A præcipe for the dedimus potestatem must be made out on paper, and left with the cur-sitor. See the form infra.

You pay the cursitor 1 l. 5 s. 8 d.

Then send it down into the country, and there a day must be appointed for two at least of the commissioners to take acknowledgment of the warrant of attorney, which you must have ready, written on parchment, together with a copy of the præcipe. See the form infra.

When the acknowledgment of the warrant of attorney is taken, annex the warrant to the dedimus potestatem, and indorse the dedimus, as infra.

If one of the commissioners who took the cognisance be not a knight, (as many times is the case) then a certificate must be drawn up on the back of the præcipe and warrants, and the judge's allocatur had thereon.

Thirdly, How to sue out the Writ of Entry.

The præcipe being passed at the bar, if both the tenant and vouchee appeared in person, you must make a copy of it for the curfitor to make out the writ of entry by; if you had a dedimus potestatem, as before mentioned, you only carry that to him, with the warrant of attorney annexed; for these contain sufficient instructions, both for the writ of entry and the mittimus and transcript. You pay 7 s. 6 d. to the curfitor for the writ of entry, and more if very long, by reason of a great number of parcels.

Having got the writ of entry from the curfitor, the attorney makes out the writs of summons and seisin himself.

There must be five returns inclusive between the return of the writ of entry and the return of the writ of summons; for example,

If the writ of entry be returnable in three weeks from the day of St. Michael, then the writ of summons must be returnable on the octave of St. Martin.

If the writ of entry be returnable in one month from the day of St. Michael, then the summons must be in fifteen days from the day of St. Martin.

If the entry be returnable on the morrow of All Souls, then the summons must be on the eve of St. Hilary.

If you account the return of the writ of entry one, then the fifth return is the return of the summons.

And so it is between one summons and another.

The first summons must be tested the fourth day inclusive from (i. e. the appearance day) the return of the writ of entry, and so must the second summons from the return of the first.

The writs of summons and seisin must be signed by the prothonotary, for which he takes nothing till he signs the exemplification.

Then they must be sealed, which costs 7 d. a-piece.

Fifthly, Of passing the Writ of Entry, and of returning it, and the Summons.

When you have got the writ of entry from the curfitor, carry it to the alienation office to be compounded by the commissioners, who attend from nine to ten in the morning in term time, and for one week after every term.

When the writ of entry is compounded, you pay the composition-money to the receiver of the king's fines, who is at the same office; and after that you must leave it lying in the office for it to be entered, and for the commissioners to indorse their names on the back of it.

You pay to the clerk of that office in term, ———
 And to the receiver, ———
 If out of term whilst the commissioners are at the office, ———
 And after that, to the clerk, ———
 And to the receiver, ———

They pin the writs of entry, summons and seisin together, and leave them at the return-office, in Mr. Borret's office, to be returned; but it is usual for readiness to indorse the return of the seisin (except the sheriff's name) before you carry it there. You pay 10s. for each.

When you have got these writs from the return-office, carry the writ of entry to the attorney-general's clerk, and he will get the attorney-general's hand to it, for which you pay 10s.

Sixthly, Of drawing Recoveries, and entering the Summons, Mittimus, Transcript and Return on the Rolls.

The recovery may be drawn, entered on the rolls and exemplified either during the writs are passing through the offices, or afterwards, as opportunity permits.

When a draught is made of the recovery, it is usual to get the prothonotary, or one of his clerks, to peruse it to avoid mistakes.

There must be one roll for the summons, called the summons roll.

And where there is a dedimus potestatem to take the warrant of attorney of any of the parties, then the mittimus and transcript must be entered on the recovery-roll in small secretary-hand before the recovery, the recovery being immediately after ingrossed in the German text, or secretary-hand, in the manner and form described infra.

Seventhly, Of exemplifying the Recovery, examining, docketing, signing and sealing it, &c.

The recovery must be exemplified on a 10s. stamp, in the manner and form mentioned infra.

You must teste the exemplification after the return of the writ of seisin, if such writ be returnable in the same term in which judgment was given; but if there be not fifteen days between the return of the writ of entry (or a writ of summons when by summons) and the end of the term, then must the writ of seisin be returnable indilate, and the exemplification must bear teste the last day of the term in which the writ of entry (or summons) came in; or if the writ of seisin be returnable of a subsequent term, then teste the exemplification the last day of the term in which judgment was given.

If the writ of entry (or summons when necessary) be returnable so late in the term that the writ of seisin cannot come in returnable in the same term, but that it must be returnable the next term; then in your exemplification you must observe, that after the return of the writ of seisin, you must break off and conclude; and then upon the top of the bottom of the exemplification, or on the label, you must indorse the words quem diem.

When the exemplification is finished, (the writs having been returned, &c. as aforesaid) carry it together with the writ of entry, mittimus and transcript, and the writs of summons and seisin and the rolls, to the prothonotary's office, and there you must docket the rolls; enter the recovery on the remembrance-roll, and the prothonotary, or one of his clerks, will examine the writs, entries and exemplification, and then sign the exemplification.

	l.	s.	d.
You pay the prothonotary for the entry of the recovery, filing the writs and signing the exemplification, if the recovery be with a double voucher by warrant of attorney,	1	5	0
When a double voucher in person,	0	13	0
At the seal-office for sealing,	0	2	2
But if the recovery is not past of the same term it is of, it must be signed by the clerk of the treasury before it be sealed, for which pay,	0	2	0

(R) Of Execution after Recovery, and the Estate the Recoveror has by the Recovery.

AFTER the demandant has judgment in a common recovery against the tenant, and the tenant against the voucher, and he against the common vouchee; the court awards an habere facias seisinam to the sheriff of the county where the lands lie, which the sheriff returns, and so the recovery is complete and executed.

The manner of suing out such writ, and getting it returned, is already mentioned.

And though this is only matter of form, yet in many cases it is not safe to proceed till there is a return of the habere facias seisinam; for,

Whenever a recovery is to uses, as all common recoveries are, no seisin is in recoveror, nor no use raised till the execution of the recovery; for before then the land does not pass. Moor 281. T. 7 H. 4. 17.

So if no use arises till execution of the recovery, the party to whose use the recovery is declared to be, cannot convey the thing recovered; for nemo dat quod non habet.

If tenant in tail dies after recovery and before execution, execution may be sued out against his issue. Plow. 55. 375. Co. 6.

If A. has lands conveyed to him and his heirs with warranty, and he suffers a common recovery to him and his heirs, it is but the old estate in degree and privity, as before.

So if he has lands conveyed to him in fee, with warranty to him, his heirs and assigns, and he suffers a common recovery to the use of a stranger, the recoveror may vouch as assignee. Hob. 27.

When a man suffers a common recovery to his own use, he is in the estate as he was before.

If a tenant in tail mortgages his lands, and after suffers a common recovery to make a jointure, this recovery extends the estate-tail, and lets in the precedent mortgage in prejudice of the jointure, because the recoveror comes in, in continuance of the estate-tail, and subject to all incumbrances of tenant in tail; and in this case the court of chancery will not relieve. 1 Chan. Rep. 20.

(S) The Remedy of Recoveries against Lessees for Rents, Services and Waste.

THE recoverors in common recoveries, their heirs and assigns, have the like remedy against lessees for lives and years of the land recovered, their executors or assigns, by distress, avowry, or action of debt, for the rents and services reserved upon their leases that shall be due after the same recoveries had: and also like actions for waste after the recovery had: and like remedy upon a disturbance in a presentation to an advowson, and in like manner and form as the lessor should or might have had if the same recoveries had never been had, although the same lessees do never attorn to the same recoverors.

And if a man makes a lease for years to begin at Michaelmas, reserving rent, and before Michaelmas he suffers a recovery; in this case the recoveror shall distrain for this rent which the lessor before the recovery could not distrain for.

But if the recovery had not been had, he might have distrained. Stat. 7 H. 8. c. 4. or 31. Co. Lit. 104.

(T) Of Evidence allowed in Common Recoveries, in what Time to be disputed, or deemed valid, and of its Validity as to the Time of making Tenant to the Præcipe. See Burrow's Reports 147. 375. 376.

BY stat. 14 G. 2. reciting, that whereas by the default or neglect of persons employed in suffering recoveries, it has happened and may happen, that such recoveries are not entered on record, whereby purchasers for a valuable consideration may be defeated of their just rights: for remedy thereof it is enacted, that where any person or persons hath or have purchased, or shall purchase for a valuable consideration, any estate or estates in lands, tenements or hereditaments, whereof a recovery or recoveries is, are or were necessary to be suffered, in order to complete the title, such person and persons, and all claiming under him, her or them, having been in possession of the purchased estate or estates from the time of such purchase, shall and may, after the end of twenty years from the time of such purchase, produce in evidence the deed or deeds, making a tenant to the writ or writs of entry, or other writs for suffering a common recovery or common recoveries, and declaring the uses of a recovery or recoveries, and the deed or deeds so produced (the execution thereof being duly proved) shall, in all courts of law and equity, be deemed and taken as a good and sufficient evidence for such purchaser and purchasers, and those claiming under him, her or them, that such recovery or recoveries was or were duly suffered and perfected according to the purport of such deed or deeds, in case no record can be found of such recovery or recoveries, or the same should appear not to be regularly entered on record: provided always, that the person or persons making such deed or deeds as aforesaid, and declaring the uses of a common recovery or recoveries, had a sufficient estate and power to make a tenant to such writ or writs as aforesaid, and to suffer such common recovery or recoveries.

Which act also recites, that whereas it has frequently happened that the deeds for making the tenant to the writ of entry, or other writs for suffering common recoveries, have been lost, or that the fines or deeds, making the tenants to the said writs, have not been levied or executed till after the judgment given in such recoveries, and the writ of seisin awarded; by reason whereof great doubts have arisen, whether such recoveries, for want of proper tenants to the writs are good and effectual in law; to prevent such doubts for the future, and in order to render common recoveries more certain and effectual, it is enacted, that every common recovery already suffered, or hereafter to be suffered, shall, after the expiration of twenty years from the time of the suffering thereof, be deemed good and valid to all intents and purposes, if it appears upon the face of such recovery that there was a tenant to the writ; and if the persons joining in such recovery had a sufficient estate and power to suffer the same, notwithstanding the deed or deeds for making the tenant to such writ should be lost or not appear.

And it is further enacted, that from and after the commencement of this act, every recovery already suffered, or hereafter to be suffered, shall be deemed good and valid to all intents and purposes, notwithstanding the fine, or deed or deeds making the tenant to such writ should be levied or executed after the time of the judgment given in such recovery, and the award of the writ of seisin as aforesaid, provided the same appear to be levied or executed before the end of the term, great seisin, session or assizes in which such recovery was suffered, and the persons joining in such recovery had a sufficient estate and power to suffer the same as aforesaid.

Provided always, that nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to make any such common recovery heretofore suffered, valid and effectual in law, which has been avoided by any lawful act or means, or which shall hereafter be avoided by entry duly made on or before the sixteenth day of January one thousand seven hundred and forty, or by judgment or decree had or obtained upon some action or suit at law or in equity, commenced or to be commenced on or before the said sixteenth day of January, and prosecuted with due diligence; but every such common recovery shall remain and be of such force and effect only, as the same would have been if this act had never been made, and of no other force or effect.

Provided that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to prejudice or affect any question of law which may arise upon common recoveries not remedied, or intended to be remedied by this act; but all such common recoveries shall remain and be of such force and effect, as the same would have been if this act had never been made, and of no other force or effect.

(U) Of avoiding Recoveries.

A Recovery may be defeated, frustrated and avoided (which is called falsifying of a recovery) in part or in all for many causes, as for that there is some gross and substantial error in the manner of the proceeding.

But a recovery is not avoidable for false or incongruous Latin, rasure, interlining, mis-entering of any warrant of attorney, mis-returning or not returning of the sheriff, or other want of form in words, and not in matter of substance, because it is done by the consent of the parties.

Or it may be avoided for that he against whom the writ of entry is brought is not tenant of the freehold by right or wrong at the time of the writ brought; as when the writ is brought against a stranger that has nothing in the land, and he vouches the tenant in tail in possession of the land.

Or a recovery may be avoided for that he that has the estate and the right is neither party nor privy to the recovery; as when the writ of entry is brought against a disseisor: and he vouches a stranger that has nothing in the land, or a recovery is had against the husband alone of the land whereunto his wife has title of dower.

Or a recovery may be avoided for that another has some estate in the thing whereof the recovery is had at the time of the recovery suffered; as when there is a recovery had of land whereof there is a lease or estate for years by statute, elegit, or the like.

Or it may be avoided for that the recovery is had by covin; as when it is suffered by tenant for life to disinherit him in reversion, or when it is gotten by some undue practice and sinister dealing; for in this case it is sometimes made void by a vacat or sentence of a court.

And where a recovery is avoidable or reversible for any of these or such other like causes, it must be avoided by him whom it does concern that is barred and bound by the same recovery, that should have had the land if the same recovery had not been, and not by any other whom it does not concern; as,

If an erroneous recovery be suffered by tenant in tail; in this case his issues, or if they fail, the next in remainder or reversion shall defeat it.

So also if the land be recovered against a stranger, the tenant in tail shall avoid it; and if the land be recovered against a disseisor, the disseisee shall avoid it; and if the land be recovered against him in reversion or remainder, the tenant for years by statute or elegit shall avoid it: but in these last cases they shall falsify and avoid it during their particular estates only.

So also the wife shall falsify the recovery suffered by the husband alone as to her title of dower only, and no longer and further.

And he in the reversion or remainder shall falsify and avoid the recovery suffered by the tenant for life either in the life-time of the tenant or afterwards.

But neither he in reversion or remainder, or any one by or under him, or any other, can falsify a recovery suffered by the tenant in tail in possession, except it be for some such cases as before.

And the recoveror himself cannot falsify a recovery.

So neither can a guardian or a tenant of a manor; as if one holds land of a manor, and a stranger recovers the manor by a feigned title, a tenant of the manor cannot falsify this recovery.

And in all these cases where a recovery is avoidable, and a man has power given him to falsify, he must do the same sometimes by writ of error, as in the case of an erroneous proceeding; and sometimes by pleading and setting forth the special matter, as in the case where the tenant is not tenant of the freehold; or when the recovery is had by covin against the tenant for life, or the like; and sometimes by the shewing and setting forth of the practice to the court, and a motion made that a vacat may be made upon the judgment for the causes alleged. Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 3. 5 Co. 40. 21 H. 8. c. 15. Co. Lit. 46. 104. Dyer 249. Co. 4. 78. Dyer 249. Co. 62. Plow. 515.

(W) Of Errors in common Recoveries, and in what Cases they may be amended.

THE law gives common recoveries all the favourable constructions imaginable; and for their support (they being common assurances of land) the stat. 23 Eliz. c. 3. enacts, that no common recovery shall be reversed for false or incongruous Latin, rasure, interlining, mis-entry, or omission of the return of the sheriff, or any other want of form.

An

An erroneous common recovery is good till reversed, by reason of the intended recompence; and if tenant in tail suffers an erroneous recovery, and after disseises the recoveror, and dies, his issue shall not be remitted, for the recovery shall be presumed good till it is reversed. 3 Co. 3. 10 Co. 38.

And common recoveries being only common assurances, the court of common pleas amends and supplies the defects in the entries of such recoveries, or in writs relating to the same.

And by the stat. 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 14. No fine or common recovery, or any other judgment, shall be reversed for error, unless a writ of error be brought in twenty years; if persons infra, &c. then within five years after the impediment removed.

Error to reverse a recovery is barred by 20 years though the title of plaintiff accrued within the time. 2 Stra. 1257.

Of Mistakes in naming the Parties.

A common recovery was agreed to be suffered, wherein John Chapman and Richard Elton were to be demandants, and by mistake of the clerk the writ of entry was sued out in the name of John Chapman and John Elton, and the recovery was suffered in the name of John Elton instead of Richard, and this recovery was amended. Trin. 2 Car. 1. Chapman versus Bacon.

A warrant of attorney was given in order to suffer a common recovery by William Reynolds and Hester his wife; but the serjeant who took the warrant of attorney, certified the same to be given by the said William Reynolds and Margaret his wife, and the mittimus and transcript were made of a warrant given by Margaret, and the recovery entered accordingly; all were ordered to be amended. M. 4 C. 1.

A common recovery suffered by R. Callow and Ux', but the name of the wife was totally omitted; ordered to be amended. M. 8 Car. 1. Turban v. Pautry. 2 Vin. 377. pl. 1.

In naming the Particulars of the Lands, &c.

A common recovery was agreed to be suffered of two messuages and one garden, and suffered only of one messuage; ordered to be amended. T. 13 Car. 1. Brooke v. Bidolph.

As to the Place where the Lands lie.

A common recovery was agreed to be suffered of lands in Alphampton and Magna Harney in Com' Essex, but by mistake the same was suffered of lands in Alphampton and Lamarph; ordered to be amended in the writs of entry, seisin, and the entry of the recovery. M. 6 Car. 1. Skinner v. Land.

A common recovery was agreed to be suffered of lands in New-Church, Levington and Mersham, but New-Church was omitted in the recovery; this upon reading the indenture was ordered to be amended. T. 13 Car. 1. Whetwell v. Masters.

A fine and common recovery were agreed to be levied and suffered of the manor of Islefield in Shropshire, and by mistake the same was made Inglefield; both were ordered to be amended, viz. the fine in the record of the king's silver, in the foot and note of the fine, and in all the places of the said fine and recovery; in the writ of covenant, writ of entry, exemplifications, and habere facias seisinam. 9 W. 3. Int. J. Fostre Ar' & Ux'.

A fine and common recovery were agreed to be levied and suffered of lands in Cranley in Com. Surry, and by mistake the same was written Crawley; on perusing the deed to make tenant to the præcipe, and declaring the uses of the fine and recovery, they were ordered to be amended in the several parts of the fine and recovery, and in the writs of covenant, entry and seisin. T. 4 Jac. 2 Freeman, gent. plaintiff, Montague, jun. Ar' & Ux' deforc.

A common recovery was agreed to be suffered of lands in Weston in Gloucestershire, and by mistake it was written Waston; ordered to be amended in the record, and other places of the recovery, and in the writs of entry, seisin, &c. *M. 11 W. 3. A deed to make a tenant to the præcipe was executed, dated 1 Nov. 33 Car. 2. and a common recovery suffered thereon, and the writ of entry made returnable tres Mic. before the date of the deed; ordered to be amended, and the writ of entry made returnable Craſtin' Animarum. M. 4 W. & M. Bunce, & al v. Greenway & al. 2 Vin. 377.

A deed to make a tenant to the præcipe was dated 11 Nov. and a common recovery suffered, and the writ of entry made returnable Mens. Mic. before the date of the deed; ordered to be amended. M. 5 W. & M. Wattry v. Joddrell. 2 Vin. 377.

A common recovery was suffered, and the writ of entry made returnable before the date of the deed which led the uses of it, and which made the tenant to the præcipe; on reading the deed, this was ordered to be amended. M. 5 W. & M. Warkhouse v. Watts. 2 Vin. 377. pl. 12.

As to the Appearance.

If tenant be present and vouch to warranty A. and one appears for him, it is error, and the appearance is void; for he ought to appear in person, or else a sum' ad warr'; and where summons is entered on the roll, there, at the return, the vouchee may appear in person, or by attorney. Leon. 86.

As to the Warrant of Attorney.

Error was assigned, that the summons was dated after the dedimus potestatem, and so no warrant of attorney at the time of appearance; but held good. Sid. 219. And in this case, to support a common recovery, the court will intend there was another warrant of attorney. T. Raym. 11. 34. 90. Keb. 34. Lev. 130. Dyer 220. contra, Leon. 86.

And in T. Raym. 71. it is held that the dedimus potestatem is no part of a fine, though a warrant of attorney is of a recovery; but if the party be dead, then it is ill. 2 Vent. 96. 20 H. 7. 9.

As to the Writ of Seisin.

The writ of entry was sued out returnable craſtin' animar', and a recovery suffered thereon; but the writ of seisin was made returnable the same return as the writ of entry; ordered to be amended. Pas. 16 Car. 1. Doncaster v. Champion. 2 Vin. 377. pl. 11.

A recovery without seisin is imperfectly found, and no venire facias de novo shall go. Stra. 1185.

As to the Death of Parties, and Non-age.

If the vouchee dies before judgment, or be under age, and appears in person, or by attorney, it is error. Roll. 301. Dyer 90. Palm. 224.

Or it is the conveyance of a man's interest or right which he has unto a thing to another that has the possession thereof, or some estate therein. Terms de la Ley v. Release. Noy's Max. 74. West's Synod. Part. 2. § 466.

He who makes a release is sometimes called the releasor, and he to whom it is made the releasee.

(B) Kinds of Releases.

There are two Kinds of Releases, viz. expressed and implied.

A Release expressed or in deed, is a purposed release, when the act done or deed made is intended a release; and this is always made by writing; and then it is defined by some to be an instrument whereby estates, rights, titles, actions and other things are sometimes extinguished, sometimes transferred, sometimes abridged, and sometimes enlarged, which is after this manner: Know, &c. that I A. of B. have remised, released, and wholly of me [or for me] and my heirs, quit-claimed to E. of D. all the right, title and claim which I have had, I have, or in what manner soever I may for the future have and in one messuage with the appurtenances in T. &c.

A release implied or in law is when the law by intendment and construction, and by way of consequence makes a release of an act done to another purpose, and this is sometimes by writing, and sometimes without writing.

The releases are sometimes of a bare and naked right, and sometimes of a right accompanied with some estate or interest, and sometimes they are of actions real, or in lands or tenements, and sometimes of an action personal, or of goods or chattels and sometimes actions mixed, partly in realty, and partly in the personality. Co. Lit. 264, 265.

And a release may either be made by deed poll or indenture; and it needs no other execution than sealing and delivery, and will operate without any consideration.

what.

An acquittance is a sort of a release, and is a discharge in writing or by bill of a sum of money, or other duty, which ought to be paid or done; as,

If one be bound to pay money on an obligation, or rent reserved upon a lease, or the like, and the party to whom the money or duty shall be paid or done, upon the receipt thereof, or upon some other agreement between them, makes a writing under his hand witnessing that he is paid, or otherwise contented, and therefore doth acquit and discharge him of the same; this is such a discharge and bar in the law that he cannot demand and recover the same again; contrary thereto, if the acquittance be shewed. Terms de la Ley, Acquittance. Dyer 5.

An acquittance is only an evidence or proof of payment, but not pleadable because no deed

* The last day of the term.

The obligor is not bound to pay money upon a single bond unless the obligee makes to him an acquittance or release: nor is he bound to pay it before he has the acquittance. And in this case the obligor may compel the obligee to make him an acquittance. And so it is in case of a statute-merchant, one is not bound to pay the money thereupon before he has the acquittance or release of the plaintiff. But otherwise it is in case of an obligation with a condition, for there a man may aver payment. 22 Ed. 4. 6. 41 Ed. 3. 25. H. 7. 15. 22 Ed. 4. 6. Bro. Debt. 43. Oblig. 10. (1)
But now by the stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 16. If an action of debt be brought upon a single bill, if the defendant has paid the money due upon such a bill, such payment may be pleaded in bar of the action upon such bill.

Where a man is not bound to pay money without any acquittance.

(C) What shall be said a Release in Law or not, and how.

If there be lord and tenant, and the lord purchases the tenancy; by this means the services are released and extinct in law. And if the lord disseises his tenant, and makes a feoffment in fee, by deed or without a deed; this is a release in law of the seignior. Co. Lit. 264.
If a disseisee disseises the heir of the disseisor, and makes a feoffment with or without a deed; this is a release in fee in law of the right. And if he makes a lease for life, this is a release in law of the right, so long as the lease doth last. Ibid.
If a creditor as an obligee or the like, makes a debtor, as the obligor, &c. his executor; by this means the action is released by act of law, and yet the duty remains still; the executor may retain so much of the goods of the testator. And if the creditor be a woman, and she marries with the debtor; by this the debt is released in law. And if there be two obligees or debtors, and one of them being a woman, is married to the obligor; this is a release in law of the debt, although the creditor be an infant. Co. Lit. 264. Ed. 4. 3. 21 Ed. 4. 2.
But if there be a woman executrix to the debtor, and she takes the debtor to husband; there is no release in law. Mich. 30 & 31 Eliz. B. R. adjudged.
And if an obligor be made an administrator of the goods and chattels of the obligee; there is no release in law. 8 Co. 136.

(D) The Nature and Operation of a Release in general.

Release is much of the nature of a confirmation; for in most things they agree and produce the like effects.

It is therefore said sometimes to enure by way of mitter le estate, i. e. by way of giving or transferring, or enlargement of an estate or interest, and so gives some new interest or estate him to whom it is made.

And sometimes it is said to enure by way of mitter le droit only, by way of giving, transferring and discharging of a right, title or entry unto him to whom it is made.

And so it sometimes perfects an estate that was imperfect and defeasible before, and enures by way of entry and feoffment.

And sometimes it enures to make a conditional estate absolute.

And sometimes also it works and enures by way of extinguishment or discharge.

And then also sometimes it enures by way of discharge or extinguishment, as against all persons, and so as that whereof all persons may take advantage.

And sometimes it enures only as a discharge against some persons only, and as to or against other persons by way of mitter le droit.

And some of these in deed enure by way of extinguishment, because he to whom the release made cannot have the thing released.

And some of them have some quality of such releases as are said to enure by way of extinguishment, but in truth do not, for that he to whom the release is made may receive and take the thing released.

And in some cases also a release like a confirmation enures by way of abridgment.

But a man cannot bar himself hereby of a right that shall come to him hereafter. And before it is held that these words used in releases [quæ quovismodo in futuro habere potere] are to no purpose. Co. Lit. 193. 273. 277. Co. Lit. 147. § 606. 459. 465. 466. (a)

Contra, If the release be with warranty; for then it shall bar him of all right that shall come to him after warranty made. Thus a release of the heir in the life-time of his ancestor, without a warranty will be no release after the death of the ancestor, but otherwise if with a warranty. Br. Releases 10 Noy. Case 37. Of releases. Though

Where a will shall not operate as a release.

Though a will cannot enure as a release, even supposing it to be sealed and delivered, for want of its taking effect in the testator's life-time, yet provided it were expressed to be the intention of the party that the debt should be discharged, the will would operate accordingly. Will. 85. Vide 2 Will. 332. where A. devised to B. the debt which B. owed him, and it was said, this could not operate in strictness as a release.

(E) How and after what Manner Things may be released.

IF the charge or duty grows by record, the discharge and release thereof must be by record also.

And if it grows by writing, the discharge and release must be by writing also. Nil magis rationi consentaneum quam eodem modo quodque dissolvere quo conflatum est.

And therefore a duty growing by a verbal agreement may in some cases be released by words without writing.

But regularly lands and tenements cannot be given, nor rights and titles to lands and actions be discharged by release without a deed in writing. A release that enures by way of mitten le estate, mitten le droit, or extinguishment, may be made upon condition, or with a defeasance, so as the condition or defeasance be contained in the release, or delivered at the same time with it: for no defeasance made after can avoid the force of a release made before. And yet a release may be delivered as an escrow and so the force of it may be suspended for a time. But a release of a condition may not be made upon a condition. Nor may a release of a chattel be upon a condition subsequent, but it may be upon a condition precedent. Co. Lit. 274. Perk. § 718. Lit. 467. Co. 111. 21 H. 7. 24.

And therefore if a man releases a debt to another upon condition that the releasor may have such a debt owing from a third person to the releasee; this is a good condition. Per 9 Car. B. R. Barkley and Perk's Case. Ret. 262.

A release of all actions may be made until a time past, as until the first of May last, or until the day of the date of the release: and this will discharge all actions till then, and none after. But a release cannot be made of a right or action for a part of an estate, or for a time only, or for one year, or until Michaelmas next, or the like; for a release of such a thing for one day, or for one hour, is a release of it for ever. And yet a man may release his right in a part of the land. And therefore if a man be disseised of two acres, he may release his right in one of them, and enter into the other acre. Dyer 307. 21 H. 7. 24. Co. Lit. 274. Lit. § 467.

Also a release in the nature of an acquittance may be part of a debt. And therefore if one be bound in an obligation of 400 l. to pay 200 l. at Michaelmas, and at Christmas, after the obligee by his deed releases 390 l. parcel of the said 400 l. this is a good release for so much and no more. Adjudged Hil. 9 Car. B. R. Barkley and Perk's case.

(F) What Things may be released or not.

LA N D S, tenements and hereditaments themselves may be given and transferred by way of release, and all rights and titles to land (a) may be given, barred and discharged by release, and so also may rights and titles to goods and chattels.

Also all actions, real, personal and mixed, may be given discharged or extinct by release for howsoever rights and titles of entry cannot be granted by act of the party, nor an action may be granted from one man to another by the act of the law or the party, yet these may be released to the terre-tenant.

And a right to a freehold or inheritance, feigniory or rent in presenti or futuro, may be released five manner of ways; and the first three ways without any privity at all.

First, To the tenant of the freehold in deed or in law.

Secondly, To him in the remainder.

Thirdly, To him in reversion.

The other two ways in respect of privity without any estate or right, as by demandant and vouchee, donor to donee, after the donee has discontinued. 10 Co. 48. Co. Lit. 268, 266 (b).

(a) But a release to him, who at the time of the release, has nothing in the land, is a nullity; the releasor must have a freehold, or a possession or privity. Consequently if a disseisor leases lands to a stranger for years and the disseisor releases to the termor all his right, this will be void, because the lessee has but a chattel and there wants privity. Bro. Tit. Rel. 92.

(b) Therefore he that hath aliened hanging the writ, may, as long as that writ is pending, accept a release of the demandant; so may a vouchee, after he has entered into the warranty: for though they be not tenants, yet the law and the parties have allowed them as tenants, inter se, for that suit. Hob. 222, 338.

Also conditions annexed to estates, powers of revocation of uses, warranties, covenants, tenures, services, rents, commons, and other profits to be taken out of lands, may be discharged, extinguished and determined by release to the tenant of the land, &c. Bro. Release in toto.

Also possibilities of land, &c. if they be near and common possibilities, although they be not grantable over to another person, yet they may be released to him that has the present estate of the land. And therefore if a man possessed of a term devises it to A. for life, the remainder to B. and his heirs male during the term; in this case although B. may not grant his interest over, yet he may release it to A. And if A. devises to B. 20l. when he comes to the age of twenty-four years, and dies, B. after he is of the age of twenty-one years may release this legacy. 10 Co. 47. 51, 52. 5 Co. 70, 71. Co. Lit. 265. Lit. § 446. Co. 111. 113. 174. Dyer 57.

So a covenant to do a future act may be released before it be broken. And it seems also the donee of a statute or recognizance may release to a feoffee of part of the land, and so for himself of the execution of that land. And if I grant to J. S. that if he does such thing he shall have an annuity of 20l. during life; J. S. may release this before the condition be performed.

And if I make a feoffment to J. S. to divers uses with power to revoke it, I may release this power to one that has an estate of freehold in possession, reversion or remainder in the land. And yet if I make a feoffment of J. S. with proviso, that if B. revokes, that the uses shall cease; in this case B. cannot release this power. And a remote possibility that is altogether uncertain cannot be released. And therefore if the son of the disseisor releases to the disseisor in the life-time of his father, this release is void. And so if the donee of a statute releases his right to the land of the donor before execution; this release is void. And so if a plaintiff releases to a bail in the King's Bench before judgment given, this release is void. So if one promises to pay me 10l. upon the surrender of my land to him, and that if he sells it for above 50l. that then he shall pay me 10l. more, and I release this to him before he does sell it, and before I do surrender; in this case this does not release the second promise, because it is not releasable. Adjudged Tr. 14 Jac. B. R.

Also debts, legacies, and other duties may be released and discharged thereby, before or after they become due. And therefore a rent or annuity may be released before the day of payment, and so also may a debt due by obligation: judgments, executions, recognisances, and the like, by apt words may be discharged by release.

(G) Things requisite in Releases of Lands and Tenements in general.

In every good release in deed, howsoever it enures, these things are requisite:

- First, that there be good releasor and a good releasee, and a thing to be released.
- Secondly, That the deed be well sealed, delivered, &c.

(H) Things requisite in Releases that enure by Way of enlarging Estates.

First, In respect of the Estate of the Releasor.

If a release tends and enures by way of enlargement of an estate, then these things are further required to make the release good.

First, He that makes the release must have such an estate in himself, as out of which such estate may be derived and granted to the releasee as is intended by the release: as if he has the reversion in fee of lands, he may release to a tenant for years, and thereby increase his estate to an estate for life or in tail, or he may pass his whole fee-simple by the release. Dyer 251.

But if there be a lessee for years rendering rent, and the reversion is granted for life, the remainder over in fee, and the grantee of the reversion releases all his right to him in the remainder, and then he in the remainder grants the reversion, and the tenant for life releases to the grantee also; in this case both these releases are void, and cannot enure as releases: however it may be if they have words of surrender in them, they may enure as surrenders. Per Justice Jones, 5 Car. Dyer idem.

So if there be lessee for years, the remainder in tail, the remainder in fee, and the tenant for years being a woman, marries with him in the remainder in fee, and he in the remainder in tail releases to him in remainder in fee; this is a void release. So if tenant for life releases to him in remainder in fee or in tail; this is void, and cannot enure as a release. And if there be tenant for life, the remainder in tail, the remainder in fee, and he in remainder releases to him in remainder in fee; this is void, and cannot enure as a release.

mainder in fee releases to the tenant for life; this will not increase his estate. And if the tenant in tail in this case releases to the tenant for life, his estate shall be no longer increased hereby than for the life of the tenant in tail. Butler's case, Trin. 5 Jac. B. R. Lit. § 598. Plowd. 556. Co. Lit. 345.

Secondly, In respect of the Estate of him to whom the Release is made.

He to whom the release is made must have some estate in possession in deed or in law, or in reversion in deed, in his own or another's right, of the lands whereof the release is made to be as a foundation for the release to stand upon; for a release which must enure to enlarge an estate, cannot work without a possession joined with an estate. And therefore the releasee must be lessee for life, years, or tenant by statute-merchant, staple, or elegit, that holds the land over for the value, or at least he must be tenant at will. And therefore if a man lets his land to another for term of years, to begin presently, and after the lessor or his heir releases to the lessee (after his entry, and being in possession) all his right in the land; this is good to enlarge the estate according to the time set down in the release: but if the release be before the term begins, or after the term begins, and before the lessee has entered, (howsoever if any rent be reserved on the lease, it may enure and be good to extinguish that rent), yet it is not good to enlarge the estate. And yet if a tenant for twenty years in possession makes a lease to B. for ten years, and B. enters, and he in the reversion releases to the first lessee for years; this is a good release to enlarge the estate. So if a man makes a lease for years, the remainder for life or years, and the first lessee enters; in this case a release to him in remainder is good to enlarge the estate. So if I grant the reversion of my tenant for life to another for life, and after release to him and his heirs; this is a good release to enlarge the estate. Co. Lit. 270. 273. 265. Lit. § 459. Plow. 423. Dyer 4. 15 H. 7. 14.

So if a man makes a lease for life or years to a feme sole, and she takes a husband, and he in the reversion releases to the husband and his heirs; this is a good release to enlarge the estate according to the words of the release. But if the case be so, that a man had an estate in possession of land, and he be now out of the possession of it, and has but a right only to it; or if he has a possession only and no estate, or if he has neither estate nor possession; in these cases a release made to such a one will not avail to enlarge his estate. Co. Lit. 273.

And therefore if a man makes a lease for life, the remainder for life, and the first lessee dies, and the lessor releases to him in remainder for life before his entry; this is a good release to enlarge his estate, for he has an estate of freehold in law, capable of enlargement by release before entry. Co. Lit. 270.

But if there be a lessee for life, the remainder for life, the remainder in tail, the remainder in fee, and the lessee for life is disseised, and during the possession of the disseisor he that has right releases to one of them in the remainder; this is void. Lit. § 451.

So if lands be given in tail, or leased for life, and the donee or lessee is disseised, and during the possession of the disseisor the donor or lessor releases all his right to the donee or lessee; this is void, and will not enlarge his estate; however if there be any rent reserved on the estate, it will extinguish the rent. Lit. 455, 456.

So if the tenant by the curtesy grants over his estate, and after he in reversion releases to the tenant by the curtesy; in this case his release is void, and will not enlarge his estate. So if an infant makes a lease for life, and the lessee grants the estate over with warranty, and the infant at full age brings a dum fuit infra etatem, and the tenant vouches the grantor, who enters into the warranty, and the demandant being the infant, releases to him and his heirs; this will not enlarge his estate; for in truth he had no estate before, and that which is not cannot be enlarged. Co. Lit. 273.

And if a lessee for life or years releases to him in remainder or reversion, this cannot be good as a release; however, if there be apt words, it may amount to a surrender. Dyer 251.

And if a man has only an occupation of land as tenant at sufferance, as when a lessee for years holds over his term, or the like, no release to him can work any enlargement of estate; for although he has a possession, yet he has no estate, and besides in this case there is no privity, which is the third thing required in these releases. Co. Lit. 271. Lit. § 461. 7 E. 4. 27.

Thirdly, In respect of Privity.

As in all these cases that enure by way of increase or passing an estate, there must be some estate in the releasor and the releasee; so there must be some privity in estate between them at the time of the release made, for an estate without privity is not sufficient. And therefore it must be between donor and donee, lessor and lessee, and the like, as in the cases before, between him in the reversion and the lessee for life or years, tenant by statute-merchant or staple, or by elegit, that keeps the land for the value. Co. Lit. 296. Lit. § 461.

And if tenant for life leases for years, and he in the reversion and the tenant for life join together and release to the lessee for years; this is a good release to enlarge the estate. Plow. 541.

So if he in reversion releases to the husband who has an estate in the right of his wife only for life or years; this is a good release. Co. Lit. 273.

So if lessee for years makes a lease of the land but for part of the term, the privity continues still, and therefore a release to him is good to enlarge the estate. But if he assigns over all the term, then the privity is gone, and therefore a release made to him afterwards is void; and then a release made to the assignee of the term is good to enlarge the estate. Per 4. 3 Co. 22.

And if a disseisor makes a lease for life or years, and after he and the disseisee join together to make a release to the lessee for life or years; this is a good release to enlarge the estate. But if the disseisor in this case makes a lease for life or years, the release is void for want of privity. Plow. 540. 14 H. 7. 4. Lit. § 518.

And if there be lessee for years, the remainder for life, and he in reversion releases to the lessee for years, or him in remainder for life, and his heirs, all his right; this is a good release to work an enlargement of estate. So if one makes a lease for life, and grants the reversion for life, and then the lessor releases to the grantee of the reversion and his heirs; this is a good release to enlarge the estate of the grantee, and here is privity enough. Lit. 273.

If A. be tenant for life, the remainder to A. in fee, and A. dies, and his heir releases his right to B. being in possession; this is a good release, and gives the fee-simple. Release 71.

But if A. makes a lease to B. for life, and the lessee makes a lease for years, and after in the life-time of the tenant for life makes a release to the lessee for years; this release is void, and will not enlarge his estate for want of privity. So if a man makes a lease for twenty years, and the lessee makes a lease for ten years, and the first lessor releases to the second lessee and his heirs; this release is void. So also if the donee in tail makes a lease for his own life, and the donor releases to the lessee and his heirs; this release is void. So if the donee in tail makes a lease for his own life, and after the donor releases to the donee and his heirs; this is not a good release. Co. Lit. 273. Lit. § 516.

Also one jointenant or coparcener may release to another, and thereby transfer all his estate, and give the whole interest unto his companion; and this is a good release to pass his or her part of the land. And if there be three jointenants in fee, and they make a lease for life, and after two of them release all their right in the land to the third; this is a good release. So if one makes a lease for life to another, and after he grants the reversion to seven, and the tenant for life attorns, and after four of the seven release all their right to the other three, and after one of the three releases to the other two; these are good releases. So if a lease for years be made to two, or to begin at a day to come, a release of one of them to the other is good to give all the term and all the land to the releasee. But it seems one tenant in common cannot release to another tenant in common. (a) Bro. Release 77. Perk. § 84. 10 H. 4. 3.

Fourthly, In respect of Words whereby it is made:

Sufficient words in law are required in such a release, not only to make a release (which is required in all releases) but also to raise and create a new estate. Therefore observe, that all releases (of whatever kind soever) are commonly made by the words remised, released, and quitted claim, as being the most antient and significant words to this purpose. And amongst these the word release is the most effectual word, as that which includes the other two, and as that which is the proper and peculiar word for this kind of conveyance. Co. Lit. 273. 401.

(a) Two tenants in common make a composition to present by turns to an advowson, and after one releaseth the other all his right in the advowson, it is a good release, and that by reason of the privity of the turn. E. 3. 37. So if a man grant the next avoidance of an advowson to two, the one may, before the church becomes void, release to the other. Bennet v. Bishop of Norwich, Cro. Eliz. 600. The reason is, that such releases are made by way of extinguishment. But after the church becomes void, then such a release is void; because then it were but a thing in action. Co. Lit. 270. b. So if a lease for years be made to two, one of them may, before the other releases to the other. Ibid.

But there are other words also by which a release may be made, as renounce, acquit, &c. and therefore it is held, that if one has common in another's land, and he by deed releases it to him thus: I renounce my common, &c. this is a good release. And if the lessor does but grant to his lessee for life that he shall be discharged of the rent, this is a good release of the rent. And it is a rule, That by what words a debt or duty may be created, by words of a contrary signification it may be released. And therefore if one acknowledges himself to be satisfied and discharged a debt, this is a good release of the debt. 9 H. 6. 35. Dyer 116. Lit. § 544. Co. Lit. 264. Dyer 307. 9 Co. 52.

And for words to raise the estate, it is usual and most safe to specify in the deed what estate he to whom the release is made shall have; and in most cases this is needful: for it is generally true, that when a release enures by way of enlargement of estate, no inheritance in fee-simple or fee-tail can pass without apt words of inheritance. And therefore if I make a lease of land to another for his life, and after I release to him all my right without saying more in the release; hereby his estate is not enlarged. But if I release to him and his heirs, by this he has a fee-simple. And if I release to him and the heirs of his body, by this he has an estate-tail. But where a release works by way of mitter estate, then in some cases there need not any words of inheritance; and in cases where releases are made between jointenants and coparceners, as where a joint estate is made to the husband and wife, and a third person and their heirs, and the third person releases all his right to the husband alone, or the wife alone. So if there be three jointenants, and one of them releases to one of the other two; in all these and such like cases there needs not any limitation of the estate, for the release is good without it. Co. Lit. 273. Lit. § 465. 468, 469.

(I) Things requisite in Releases of Lands and Tenements that only give, discharge or extinguish any Right or Title of Lands.

First, In respect of the Estate of the Releasor.

IN every good release in deed that tends and enures to give, discharge or extinguish any right or title of lands, it is also further requisite,

First, That he who makes it has at the time of making the release some right or title to release. As where one disseises me of land, and I release to him all my right in the land this is a good release. So if one disseises my tenant for life, and I (being the next in remainder or reversion in fee) do release to him that did make the disseisin; this is a good release. So if the husband makes a lease for life, and then takes a wife and dies, and the wife releases her dower to him in reversion; this is a good release. And so also if after the marriage a man makes a lease for life, the remainder in fee, and she releases all her right to him in remainder in fee, or to him in reversion; this is a good release, and will bar her for ever. Lit. § 466. Co. Lit. 265. 5 Co. 70, 71. Co. 111. 8 Co. 151.

And therefore if the releasor has only a possibility of a right, or a right happens to come to him after the release; this is not sufficient to make the release good.

And therefore if the father be disseised, and the son before his father's death releases his right to the disseisor, and after the father dieth, so that the right doth descend; this is no good release to bar the releasor of his right.

So if there be grandfather, father and son, and the father disseises the grandfather, and makes a feoffment, and the son releases in the life-time of his father, and after the father and grandfather die; this release in this case will not bar him. (a)

So if a lease be made for life, the remainder to the right heirs of J. S. and the lessor is disseised, and the eldest son of J. S. living his father doth release to the disseisor; this lease is void.

So if the donee of a statute, &c. releases to the donor all his right in the land, this is void, and he may sue execution after notwithstanding.

(a) But if such release be with a clause of warranty, then it will bar the son of all right that shall come to him after the warranty made; for albeit the release cannot bar the right, yet the warranty may rebut, and bar him and his heirs of a future right, which was not in him at the time; and the reason why a warranty being a covenant real, shall bar a future right, is for preventing circuitry of action, (which is not favoured in law) as he who makes the warranty would recover the land against the tenant, and he by force of the warranty would be entitled to have as much in value against the other person. Lit. sect. 446.

Or if the releasor have only a power; this is not sufficient to make a release good.

And therefore if a man by his will devises that his executors shall sell his land, and die, and the executors release all their right and title in the land to their heir; this is void.

Secondly, In respect of the Estate of him to whom the Release is made.

In all cases of a release of a bare right of a freehold in lands or tenements, he to whom the release is made must at the time of the making thereof in any case have the freehold in deed or in law in possession, or some estate in remainder or reversion in deed (and not in right only) in fee-simple, fee-tail, or for life, of the lands whereof the release is made: for rights of entry, and actions, and the like, are not to be transferred to strangers.

As if the disseisee releases to the disseisor himself who hath the freehold in deed, or to the heir of the disseisor before his entry, who hath the freehold in law, or to the lessee for life of the disseisor; these releases are good.

So if a disseisor makes a lease to A. and his heirs during the life of B. and A. dies, and the disseisee releases to his heir before his entry; this is a good release. Co. Lit. 267.

So if a fine sur consueance de droit come ceo, &c. or sur consueance de droit only (which is a covenant on record) be levied; or if tenant for life, by agreement of him in the reversion, surrenders to him in the reversion; or if a man do bargain and sell his land by deed indented and inrolled; or uses are raised by covenant on good considerations; in all these cases the conusee, he in reversion, bargainee, and cestuy que use, have a freehold in law in them before entry.

And therefore a release to them of the right of the land by him that hath it is good, and will bar the releasor.

But otherwise it is in cases of exchange, partition, or upon livery within the view; for in these cases no release is good until an actual entry made, for till then they have neither freehold in right nor law.

So if a disseisor makes a gift in tail, or lease for life or years of the land, and keeps the reversion, and then the disseisee or his heir releases to the disseisor all his right; this is a good release to bar his right for ever.

So if the heir of the disseisor be disseised, and the first disseisee do after release to him all his right; this is a good release to bar him.

So if a donee in tail discontinues in fee, and the donor releases to the discontinuee, and dies; this is a good release against the donor.

So if the donee in tail be disseised, and after the donor releases to the donee all his right; this is good: but in this case nothing of the reversion will pass by the release, for the donee had then nothing but a right.

But if any rent be reserved on the estate-tail, the rent is gone by the release.

So if a lease be made to one for life rendering rent, and the lessee is disseised, and the disseisor releases to the releasee and his heirs all his right; in this case although the rent be exacted, yet nothing of the right of the reversion doth pass.

And yet if a woman that hath a right of dower releases to the guardian in chivalry; this is a good release, and her right or title of dower is gone.

But if a disseisor makes a lease for years, and the disseisee releases to the lessee for years; this release is void because he hath no freehold.

But if he makes a lease for life, and the disseisee releases to the lessee for life; this is a good release.

So also a release to the disseisor after the lease for years made is good.

And if lessee for years be ousted, and he in the reversion disseised, and the disseisor makes a lease for years, and the first lessee releases to him; this is a good release. Lit. § 448, 455, 456. Co. Lit. 265, 266, 275. 1 H. 6. 4. Dyer 302.

Also in some cases a release made to one that hath neither freehold in deed nor freehold in law, is good when he hath an estate in reversion or remainder, as in the case before, where the release is made by the disseisee to the disseisor after he hath made an estate for life.

So if the demandant in a real action release to the tenant that comes in by receipt upon prayer of aid, or voucher upon a warranty; this is good.

And yet if it be before the receipt or entry into the warranty, or it be by any other besides the demandant, it is void.

So if the tenant in a real action aliens, hanging the præcipe quod reddat against him, and after alienation the plaintiff releases all his right in the land to him; this is a good release.

So if a disseisor makes a lease for life, the remainder to another for life, the remainder to a third in tail, the remainder to a fourth in fee, and the disseisee releases to either of them in remainder; this is a good release.

But if in this case tenant for life be disseised, and after he that hath right (the possession being in the disseisor) doth release to either of them in remainder; this is a void release. Lit. § 448, 449, 450, 451. 8 Co. 151.

Thirdly, In Respect of Privity.

But in all the cases of a release of a bare right to him that hath the estate of a freehold in deed or in law, generally there needs no privity to make the release good, as in the cases before of a release made to the tenant for life of the disseisor, and them that follow.

For if tenant for life makes a lease to another for life of the lessee, the remainder over in fee, and the first lessor releases all his right to him to whom the tenant made the lease for life; this is a good release and a perpetual bar, although the release be not to him and his heirs. And so it is in case of a reversion,

If lessee for years be ousted, and he in the reversion disseised, and the disseisor makes a lease for years, and the lessee that is ousted doth release to the lessee or the disseisor; this is a good release.

And yet if the disseisee do release to the lessee for years of the disseisor; this is void.

If lessee for a thousand years be ousted by the lessor, and he makes a lease for two years, and the lessee for a thousand years releases unto him; this is a good release.

But if a lessor disseises his lessee for life, and makes a lease for a thousand years, and the lessee for life releases to this lessee of a thousand years; this is void. Co. Lit. 275. Lit. § 470, 471. 10 Co. 48.

If one be disseised, and after another doth disseise him, and the disseisee releases to the first disseisor; this is a good release.

So if A. disseises B. who enfeoffeth C. with warranty, who enfeoffeth D. with warranty, and E. disseiseth D. to whom B. the first disseisee releaseth; this is a good release, and doth defeat all the mean estates and warranties. (a)

So if my disseisor leases for life, and the lessee for life aliens in fee, and I release to the alienee all my right, &c. this is a good release, and will bar me of my entry; but if my entry be gone, as if I lease for life, and my lessee be disseised, and that disseisor is disseised, and I release to the second disseisor; in this case the first disseisor may enter upon the second.

So if my disseisor in the case aforesaid make a lease for life, and the lessee for life makes a feoffment to two, and I release to one of the feoffees; this is a good release, and will bar me and my disseisor also.

So if tenant for life let the land to another for the life of the lessee, the remainder to another in fee, and the lessor releases to his tenant for life; this is a good release. Lit. § 470, 471. 478. Co. Lit. 277.

If one that hath a son within age be disseised and die, and the disseisor die seised and the land descend to his heir, and a stranger abate, to whom the son when he comes of age doth release; this is a good release.

So if one be disseised by an infant which doth alien in fee, and the alienee dies seised, and his heir entereth, the disseisor being within age, and the disseisee releases to the heir of the alienee; this is a good release.

But where an inheritance or an estate for life is released to one that is but tenant for years the release is not good without privity.

And therefore if tenant for life or in fee releases to the lessee for years of his disseisor; this is not good.

But the release of a term of years to the lessee for years of him that doth eject him, is good enough without privity, as in the case before. 9 H. 6. 43. 10 Co. 48.

But here note, that in cases of a void release of a right to an inheritance or freehold where there is a warranty contained in the deed, the warranty may be good, and be used by way of rebutter, although the release be void.

(a) If there be twenty disseised one after another, and the disseisee release to the last disseisor, this disseisee shall bar all the others of their actions and their titles; and the reason seems to be, because in many cases where a man hath lawful title and entry, although he does not enter, yet he shall defeat all mean titles by his release. Lit. § 473.

As if the son of the disseisee releases with warranty in the life-time of his father, or there be grandfather, father and son, and the father disseises the grandfather, and makes a lease with warranty and dies; in both these cases, although the son be not barred by the release, yet he is barred by the warranty. Co. Lit. 265.

Fourthly, In Respect of the Words whereby it is made.

Such words as will make a good release in the cases of releases that enure by way of enlargement of estate, will make a good release in these cases.

And note, that this kind of release is good without any limitation or specifying of the estate; for by a release of all a man's right, without saying, to have and to hold to him and his heirs, &c. in all the cases before, he that makes the release is barred of his right forever; for if I be seised of an estate in fee by wrong, and he that hath right releases to me all his right, although it be but for one hour, yet this is a good release for ever.

Of Releases of other Things than Lands or Tenements, as Seigniories, Rents, Commons, Debts, &c.

First, Of a Seigniorie, Rent-Service, Common, or the like.

If there be lord and tenant, and the lord releases to the tenant all his right that he has in the seigniorie, or all his right that he has in the land, &c. this is a good release to extinguish the seigniorie. And in this case there needs no words of inheritance or limitation; by release of all the right in the seigniorie, the same is extinct for ever, without saying him and his heirs. And yet in this case the lord may by apt words release his seigniorie to the tenant only in tail or for life, and it shall be good so long. But if a lord grants to a tenant that he shall do his suit to another manor of the lord's; or that the tenant shall give him yearly 12d. for his suit; this grant will not extinguish and determine the services or cure. Lit. § 480. Co. Lit. 280. 305. Perk. § 70.

If there be lord and tenant, and the tenant be disseised, and after the lord releases all his right, &c. to the tenant: by this release the service or seigniorie is extinct, for although a right regularly cannot be released to him that has but a bare right, yet a seigniorie may be released and extinct to him that has but a bare right in the land. But if the tenant make a feoffment in fee, and then the lord releases all his right, &c. to the tenant; this is not good to extinguish the seigniorie or services, but it will discharge all the arrearages. Lit. § 457. Co. § 8. Co. Lit. 268.

If a rent-charge, common of pasture, or any other profit appender be issuing out of my land, and he that has it releases it to me; this is a good release, and will extinguish it: but if I be disseised of the land, and have but a right at the time of the release made, the release is not good, as it is in the case of a rent-service and a seigniorie: but if lands be given to me in tail or for life, rendering rent, and I be disseised, and after the donor releases to me all his right in the land; this is a good release, and shall extinguish the rent. So if in this case I am tenant in tail, and I make a feoffment in fee rendering rent, and after I release the feoffee; this is a good release, and hereby the rent is extinct. And if two coparceners be of a rent, and one of them take the terretenant to husband, and after either of them releases; these releases will be good. Lit. § 480. 336. 357. Co. Lit. 273. 305. Lit. § 456.

If one disseises me of land, and then grants a rent-charge out of the land, and I reciting the same, grant a release to the grantee: this release it seems is good, and will bar me so as to my re-entry I shall not be able to avoid it. Lit. § 527. Co. Lit. 300.

Secondly, Of an Advowson, &c.

If two have the grant of the next advowson or avoidance of a church before it be void, of them may release to the other, but afterwards they cannot.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, Of a Condition.

If A. makes a feoffment in fee, gift in tail, lease for life or years to B. on condition that upon such a contingent it shall be void: in this case A. may before condition broken release all his right in the land, or release the condition to B. and this will be good to make the estate absolute, and to discharge the condition. So if a feoffee on condition makes a gift in tail or lease for life, and after the feoffor releases to the donee or lessee; this is a good release to discharge the condition. So if a copyholder surrenders to the use of another on condition, and this is presented to be without condition, and after the surrenderor releases him to whose use the surrender was made all his right, &c. this is a good release, and extinguishes the condition. But if a disseisor make a feoffment on condition, and the disseisor releases to the feoffee on condition; howsoever this bars the right of the disseisee, yet it does not discharge the condition. Co. 112. Perk. § 823. 764.

Fourthly, Of a Power of Revocation.

Where a power or authority is such that respects the benefit of the lessor, as in the cases of power of revocation of uses, when the feoffor, &c. has power to alter, change, determine or revoke the uses being intended for his benefit, and he releases to any one that has a freehold in possession, reversion or remainder, by the former limitation; this is a good release, and extinguishes the power, and makes the estates that were before defeasible absolute, and he excludes him from any power of alteration or revocation. But if the power be collateral, or to the use of a stranger, and nothing to the benefit of him that makes the release, as if A. makes a feoffment to B. to divers uses, provided that B. shall revoke the uses, and B. releases to any one of them that has an use; this does not extinguish the power, as in case where the power is given to A. and A. releases it. Co. 112, 113. 173, 174.

Fifthly, Of a Warranty.

If a feoffment be made with warranty, and the feoffee releases the warranty; this makes it extinct. And so it is of other warranties. But if tenant in tail releases the warranty annexed to his estate-tail, this does not extinguish the warranty. Bro. Release 88. 21 H. 7. 29. 5 Co. 27.

Sixthly, *Of Debts and other personal Duties.*1. In Respect of Persons.

Any man may release any debt or duty due to himself. Also a man may discharge or release any thing, or any wrong done to his wife before or after the marriage. And therefore if a trespass were done, or a promise were made to my wife before the marriage, I may at any time during the marriage release it. So if any wrong be done, or obligation, statute or promise made to her alone, or to her and me together at any time during the marriage, I alone may release and discharge this. And if my wife be an executrix to any other man, I may release any debt or duty due to the testator.

And if a legacy be given to a feme sole to be paid at Michaelmas next, and I marry her, and I release the legacy before the day, the legacy is gone. Per Chief Justice B. R. 17 Jac.

An infant executor may release a debt duly paid to him of the testator's debt; but if he releases that which he does not receive, it is a void release. And regularly the release of an infant is void. 5 Co. 27. Ruffell's case.

2. In Respect of the Time.

An executor before probate of the will may release a debt or duty due to the testator, and this release is good to bar him. 5 Co. 27. 9 Co. 39.

A future or contingent promise may be released and discharged before the contingent happens. Trin. 4 Jac. in Elton's case.

A debt on an obligation or rent may also be released before the day of payment as well after, but not by the same words: and therefore if one promises to J. S. that upon the surrender of J. S. he will pay him 110*l.* and after the promise and before the surrender he releases this debt; this discharges the debt. But if the promise be, that if the surrenderee shall sell the land, and shall have 500*l.* and then he shall pay the surrenderor 100*l.* more, and the surrenderor before sale releases this sum; this is no discharge of it. And yet a release of the promise is a discharge of it. And if A. promises to me, that if J. S. does not pay me 100*l.* 1 October that he owes me, that A. will pay me the 100*l.* 1 November, and I 10 September release to him this debt, or all actions and demands; this release is not good discharge this promise. But by a release of the promise the same is discharged. Hil. 6 Jac. B. R. Brisco v. Heirs.

3. In Respect to Words.

And all these releases must be made by apt words, and such as the law shall judge sufficient for that purpose. 9 Co. 53.

And in all these cases care must be had there be no mistakes; for mistakes will make releases and confirmations void as well as other grants. And therefore if A. makes a release to B. in this manner: Know, &c. that I A. of B. have remised, &c. B. all actions which the same B. has against A. whereas it should be, which the same A. has against B. this release is void. Bro. Release 56. 58.

If a man releases to another all actions, and does not say further which he has against him; this is as good a release as if these words were inserted, Quod necessario subintelligitur non deest. Bro. Release 29.

(K) The Force and Virtue of a Release, and how it shall enure and be construed.

First, In Respect of the Persons; and where a Release made by one shall bind another, and where not; and where a Release made to one shall enure to others, or not.

Where divers join in any suit or action to recover any personal thing of which they are to have the joint benefit or interest when the law does not compel them to join, the release of one of them shall bar all the rest. And therefore if two men join in an action of debt, trespass, or the like, and one of them alone releases to the defendant; this is a bar to the other plaintiffs also. So if a statute or an obligation be made to two or more, and one of them releases it to the conusor or obligor; this is a discharge of the whole duty, and a bar to the rest, so that they can make no use of the statute or obligation. But if divers be charged in an action, and they for the discharge of themselves only join in a suit or action, where also they can do no otherwise, being compelled by law to join; in this case the release of one of them shall not hurt the others. And therefore if divers join in a writ of error, attaint, or audita querela, and one of them releases to the defendant in the writ; this will not bar the rest of their remedy; but they may go on in their suit notwithstanding. Co. 22. Bro. Release 84. 94. Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 3.

If there be two or more executors, and one of them alone releases a debt or duty to the executor before judgment obtained in a suit had by all the executors against the debtor; this shall bar all the rest.

But it is otherwise after judgment obtained. 21 H. 7. 4. A release made to the tenant in tail, or for life of the right of the land, shall avail and enure to him that hath a reversion or remainder in deed, and so e converso. A release made to him that hath a remainder or reversion will avail and enure to the benefit of him that has the estate-tail for life, or years precedent. As if a disseisor makes a lease for life, and the disseisee releases to the tenant for life; this shall enure to the disseisor. So if he or a tenant for life makes a lease for life, the remainder for life, the remainder in tail, the remainder in fee, and the disseisee or first lessor releases all his right to any of them in remainder; this shall enure unto and benefit all the rest. And if the husband makes a lease of his wife's land to one for life, the remainder to another in fee, and the wife after his death releases all her right in the land to him in remainder; this shall enure to the lessee for life. Co. Lit. 275. 290. 267, 268. 8 Co. 151.

If a disseisor makes a lease for life, and the disseisee releases all his right to the tenant for life; this shall enure to the benefit of the disseisor. But if the disseisee releases no more to the tenant for life but all actions; this release will not benefit him in remainder or reversion after the death of the tenant for life. Co. Lit. 275.

If a disseisor makes a feoffment to two in fee; and the disseisee releases to one of the feoffees; this shall enure to both. Lit. § 472.

If a tenant in tail be disseised by two, and he releases to one of them; this shall enure to them both: but if the king's tenant be disseised by two, and he releases to one of them; this shall not enure to the other. So if two jointenants make a lease for life, and then disseise the tenant for life, and he releases to one of them; in this case his companion shall have no benefit by it. Co. Lit. 276.

If a tenant in fee-simple be disseised by two, or two do abate or intrude, and he releases to one of them; the other shall have no benefit thereby. But if tenant for life after he is disseised releases to one of the disseisors; this shall enure to both. Lit. § 422. 512.

And if there be two disseisors, and they make a lease for life or years, and after the disseisee releases to one of the disseisors; this shall enure to them both, and to the benefit of the lessee for life also. Co. Lit. 276.

And if a lessee for years be ousted, and he in reversion disseised, and the lessee releases to the disseisor; the term of years is hereby extinct, the disseisee may take advantage of it, and enter presently.

But if two jointenants in fee be disseised by two disseisors, and one of the disseisees releases to one of the disseisors all his right; this shall enure to the other, for this extends but to a moiety.

If tenant for life be disseised by two, and he in the reversion and the tenant for life join in a release to one of the disseisors; this shall not enure to the other. But if they severally release their several rights, their several releases shall enure to both the disseisors. Co. Lit. 276.

If a mortgagee upon condition after the condition broken be disseised by two, and the mortgagor that has the title of entry releases to one of the disseisors, this shall enure to both. And the like law is for an entry for mortmain, or a consent to ravishment, &c. Id.

If there be lord and two jointenants, and the lord releases to one of them; this shall avail his companion. Co. Lit. 269.

If tenant in fee-simple makes a feoffment in fee, and after the lord releases to the feoffor; this shall not enure to the feoffee to extinguish the feignory. But if he releases to the feoffee; this shall not enure to the feoffor to extinguish the feignory.

If there be lord and tenant, and the tenant makes a lease for life, the remainder in fee, and the lord releases to the tenant for life; the rent is hereby wholly extinguished, and he in remainder shall take advantage of it: as when the heir of a disseisor is disseised, and the disseisor makes a lease for life, the remainder in fee, and the first disseisee releases to the tenant for life; this shall enure by way of extinguishment to him in remainder, viz. to the lessee for life first, and after to him in remainder. Co. Lit. 279.

If two tenants in common of land grant a rent of forty shillings out of it, and the grantee releases to one of them; this shall not enure to the other. But if one be tenant for life of lands, the reversion in fee to another, and they join in the grant of a rent out of the lands, and the grantee releases either to the tenant for life, or to him in reversion; this shall enure to the other, and extinct the whole rent. Co. Lit. 267.

If two men gain an advowson by usurpation, and the right patron releases to one of them; this release shall enure to them both.

If two be bound jointly and severally in any obligation, or other specialty, and the obligee, &c. releases to one of them; this shall enure to discharge the other also, if it be a good release, as to him that makes it. But otherwise it is in case of a release made by the king. 5 Co. 59. Co. Lit. 232. Lit. § 376.

And if two commit a trespass on another together, and he on whom it is made releases to one of them; this shall enure to discharge the other. If husband and wife and J. S. purchase to them and the heirs of the husband, and after J. S. releases all his right in the land to the husband; the wife shall not have benefit by this, but it shall enure to the husband alone. And if there be two women joint disseisores, and the one takes a husband and the disseisee releases to the other; in this case the husband and wife will take no benefit by this. And if the disseisee releases to the husband, this shall enure to him and his wife and the other women. And if one that has a rent out of my wife's land releases it to me and my heirs; this shall enure by way of extinguishment, and my wife shall have advantage of it. And yet if the words be, grant and release the rent to the husband and his heirs. heirs, the husband may take as a grant if he will. Dyer 319. Co. Lit. 273. 276.

4 H. 8. 6.

But here note, all these cases of releases when one man will take advantage of a release made to another, he must have the release to shew and plead. Co. Lit. 232.

If I be disseised, and I release to the disseisor all actions I have or may have against him; this is but personal, and shall not be expounded to bar my heir after my death of his remedy; neither will it bar me of my remedy against his heir after his death. So if I deliver goods to another, and afterwards I release to him all actions, and then he dies, by this I am not barred so, but I may sue his executors. Co. 51. 22 H. 6. 1.

See more in title Confirmation hereafter.

Secondly, In Respect of the Thing released.

A release of all actions without any more words, is better than a release of all actions real All actions:

ly, or a release of all actions personal only: for by a release of actions, or a release of all manner of actions without more words, are released and discharged all real, personal and mixed actions depending, and all causes of suit for any real or personal thing: as appeals for the death of an ancestor, conspiracies, suits by scire facias to have execution of a judgment, and detinue for charters. And if two conspire to indict me, and I release to them all actions, and after they go on with their conspiracy; by this release I am barred to do any thing against them. By this release also of all actions, a debt due to be paid upon a statute or an obligation at a day to come, although the release be before the day, is discharged, and by this also the statute itself, if it be at any time before execution, is discharged. And if one be pay 40*l.* at four days, and some of the days are past, and some to come, and the debtee makes such a release; by this the whole debt is discharged. Also in a scire facias upon a fine judgment this release is a good plea in bar. But this release of all actions will not discharge executions, or bar a man of taking out executions, except it be where it must be done by scire facias. Neither will it discharge or bar a man of suits by audita querela, or writ of error, or reverse an erroneous judgment; neither will it discharge covenants before they be taken, nor will it discharge any thing for which the lessor had no cause of action at the time the release made; as if a woman has title of dower, and releases all actions to him that the reversion of the land after an estate for life; or a man is by an award to pay me at a day to come, and before the time I make such a release; or I make a lease rendering rent, or an annuity is granted to me, and before the rent-day I make the lessee or the lessor such a release; in these cases, and by a release in these words without more, the debt, rent or annuity, is not discharged. 8 Co. 153. 5 Co. 28. 70. Kelw. 113: Lit. 286. 290. 292. 289. Lit. § 492. 505, 506. 512, 513. Bro. Stat. 39.

And if a man has two remedies or means to come by land, as action and entry; or by writ, as action and seizure, or the like; in this case by a release of all actions he does not bar himself of the other remedy. Et sic e converso. Lit. § 496, 497.

And if a man covenants to build a house, or make an estate, and before the covenant is taken, the covenantee releases unto him all actions; by this the covenant itself is not discharged. And yet after the covenant is broken, this release will discharge the action of covenant given upon that breach. Co. Lit. 292.

By a release of all a man's right into any lands or tenements without more words, all Rights.

manner of rights of action and entry the releasor hath to, in or against the land, is released and discharged; for there is jus recuperandi, prosequendi, inrandi, habendi, retinendi, percipiendi, possidendi; and all these rights, whether they accrue by fine, feoffment, descent or otherwise are extinct and discharged; so that if the releasee has got into the land of the releasor wrong, by this release the wrong is discharged, and the releasee is in the land by good title.

Also by this release are discharged and released all titles of dower, and titles of entry in a condition or alienation in mortmain. And if a woman has title of dower after an estate for life, and makes such a release to him in reversion, this bars her. By such a release also from the lord to the tenant, the services are extinct. 8 Co. 151. Plow. 484. 7. 8. 3 Co. 29. 6 Co. 1. Co. Lit. 345.

But this release will not bar a man of a possibility of a right that he has at the time of the release, or of a right that shall descend to him afterwards. And therefore if the devisee of a statute before execution releases all his right into the land to the terretenant, or the heir of the disseisee in the life-time of his father releases to the disseisor all his right; these releases do not bar them. Nor will this release bar a man of an audita querela, and such like things. If the tenant in a real action after the demandant has recovered the land, releases to him him all his right in the land; this bars him of a writ of error for any error in the proceedings in that suit. 10 Co. 47. Co. Lit. 289.

And if there be lord and tenant by fealty and rent, and the lord by his deed reciting the tenure, releases all his right in the land, saving his said rent; by this release the right of the feignior, save only of the feignior of the rent and fealty is extinct. And if the lord releases to the tenant all his right to the land and feignior, salvo sibi dominio suo, &c.; hereby the services only, not the tenure, is extinct. Co. Lit. 150. Dyer 157.

And if one has a rent-charge out of my land, and makes such a release of all his right to the land to me that am the terretenant without exception of the rent; hereby the rent is extinct and gone for ever. Perk. § 644.

Title.

By a release of all a man's title into lands or tenements, without more words, is released and discharged as much as is released by the release of all a man's right; and both these releases have the like operation: for howsoever title strictly and properly is where a man has lawful cause of entry into lands whereof another is seised, for which he can have no action, yet it is commonly taken more largely, and includes a right also. And titulus est justa causa possidendi quod nostrum est. Kelw. 484. 6, 7, 8. Co. Lit. 265. 345.

Entries or rights of entry.

By a release of all entries or right of entry a man has into lands, without more words, a man is barred of all right or power of entry into those lands upon any right whatsoever. And if a man has no other means to come by the land but by an entry, and he has released that, by these words he is barred for ever. But if one has a double remedy, viz. a right of entry, and an action to recover his right by, and then releases all entries; by this he is not barred of his action. 8 Co. 151.

Actions real.

By a release of all actions real, without more words, are discharged all real and mixed actions then depending, and all causes of real and mixed actions not depending. And therefore all causes of suing of assizes, writs of entry, quare impedit, actions of waste, and the like, which the party has at the time of the release made, are hereby discharged. But this release will not bar him that makes it of any causes of action that shall arise and accrue afterwards. Neither will it bar him of any appeal of death or robbery, writ of error, or such like thing; nor of any thing which a release of all actions will not bar. And yet when land is to be restored or recovered by judgment in a writ of error, this release is a bar to the writ of error. So if a judgment be given upon a false verdict in a real action, a release of all actions real is a bar in an attain. Lit. § 492, 493. 495. 8 Co. 151. Lit. § 115, 500. Co. Lit. 288, 289.

Actions personal.

By a release of all actions personal, without more words, are discharged all personal actions then depending, and all causes of personal actions wherein a personal thing only is to be recovered; and therefore hereby are discharged all causes of suing out of actions of debt, trespass, detinue, or the like. Also all mixed actions, as actions of waste, quare impedit, an assize of novel disseisin, writ of annuity, appeal of maihem, and the like. Bro. Release 47. Co. Lit. 285. 9 H. 6. 57. Lit. § 502.

And if debt, &c. or damages be recovered in a personal action by false verdict, and the defendant brings a writ of attain; or if a writ of audita querela be brought by the defendant in the former action to discharge him of execution; by this release the defendant in both cases is barred of his suit. Co. Lit. 209.

Also when by a writ of error the plaintiff shall recover or be restored to any personal thing only, as debt, damage, or the like; as if the plaintiff in a personal action recovers any debt, &c. or damages, and be outlawed after judgment; in this case in a writ of error brought by the defendant upon the principal judgment, this release will bar him: but where by a writ of error the plaintiff shall not be restored to any personal or real thing, this release is no bar; as if a man be outlawed in an action personal by process upon the original, and brings a writ of error, and then releases; this is no bar to him. Co. Lit. 288. Lit. § 503.

If a man by wrong takes or finds my goods, or they be delivered to him, and I release to him all actions personal; notwithstanding this release I may take my goods again, altho' I be barred of my action by the release. Neither is this release a bar in any appeal of robbery or death. Neither will it bar in any case where a release of all actions will not bar. Neither is it any bar to an action of debt brought for an annuity, granted for a term of years for any arrearages that shall grow due after the release. Nor for any rent or sum of nomine pænæ, when the release is before the same day, or nomine pænæ happens. Neither is it a bar in such real actions wherein damages are recoverable only by the statute, and not by the common law, as in a writ of dower, entry sur disseisin in le per, Mordance, Aile, &c. Lit. § 497, 498. 50. Co. Lit. 292. 285.

Debts.

By a release of all debts, without more words, are discharged and released all debts then owing from the releasee to the releasor upon specialties, or otherwise, all debts due altho' upon upon statutes; and therefore if the conusor himself, or his land, be in execution for the debt, and he has such a release, he must be discharged: and so he cannot be upon a release of all actions. Co. Lit. 76. 291. Fitz. Audita Querela 3.

By a release of all duties, without more words, a releasor is barred, and the releasee Duties: discharged of all actions, judgments and executions; also of all obligations. And if the body of a man be in execution, and the plaintiff makes him such a release, hereby he shall be discharged of execution, because the duty itself is discharged. And if there be rent or services behind to the lord from his tenant, and the lord makes such a release to his tenant; by this the arrearages are released. 8 Co. 153. Co. Lit. 291.

The word suits is somewhat a more large extent than actions, for by a release of all suits, Suits. without more words, is released and discharged as much as by a release of all actions. And hereby also are discharged all executions in the case of a subject. But in the case of the king it doth not release executions. And it does not release a covenant before it be broken. 8 Co. 154. 157. 5 Co. 70. Co. Lit. 291.

By a release of all quarrels, without more words, all actions real and personal, and all Debates, causes of such actions, are released and discharged. So likewise by the release of all con- Quarrels and troverses, or by the release of all debates. But this will not bar the releasor of any causes controversies. of suit that shall arise after, and was not at the time of the release: as the breach of a covenant which shall be after, although the covenant be before, is not discharged hereby. Co. Lit. 292. 8 Co. 157. 5 Co. 70.

By a release of all covenants, without more words, all covenants then broken; and all Covenants. that shall be after broken that were then made and in being, are discharged. Quid destruit medium destruit finem. Co. 112. 10 Co. 51. Co. Lit. 292.

And therefore if a lessee covenants to leave a house leased to him at the end of the term, as it was at the beginning of the term, and the lessor before the end of the term releases to the lessee all covenants; this discharges the covenant. But this release discharges nothing else but covenants. Adjudged Hil. 4 Jac. Hancock's case.

By a release of all statutes from the conusor to the terre-tenant, without more words, Statutes. the statute is discharged. And yet if he releases all his right in the land of the conusor; this will not discharge the land of execution. 10 Co. 47.

By a release of all errors and writs of errors; all errors and writs of error, even before Errors. they be brought, are extinct and discharged. And if a man be outlawed in a personal action by process upon original, and makes such a release; this will bar him. 2 Co. 16. Lit. § 503.

By a release of all warranties or covenants real, all warranties then made and being are Warranties. for ever discharged. Lit. § 148.

By a release of all legacies, without more words, a man bars himself of all the legacies Legacies. given him in presenti or futuro, so that if he be to have a legacy at twenty-four years old, and at twenty-one years of age he releases to the executor all legacies, or this legacy in particular; this is a bar to him of this legacy for ever. And yet a release of all demands in this case is no discharge of this legacy. 10 Co. 51. Dyer 56. Co. Lit. 76.

By a release of rent, the rent is extinct and discharged whether the day of payment be Rent. come or not. But a release of all actions will not discharge a rent before the day of payment comes. Co. Lit. 292.

By a release of all promises or assumpsits, without more words, a man may bar himself of Promises. a contingent or future thing that by other words could not be released; as if a man promises to me that if J. S. does not pay me 100*l.* the tenth of March next, that he will pay it me the twentieth of that month, and before the time I release to him all actions and demands; this will not discharge the promise. But if I release to him all promises, this will bar me, & sic de similibus. Adjudged Hil. 16 Jac. B. R. Briscoe v. Heires, 10 Co. 51. But as to promises by one person for another, see the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3.

By a release of all judgments, without more words, he that maketh it is barred of the Judgments. effect of any judgment he has against the releasee; for if execution be not taken out, he is now barred of it. And if the releasee, or his land, &c. be in execution, he, and it shall be discharged thereof by audita querela.

And by a release of all executions, without more words, a man is barred of taking or Executions. having out any execution upon any judgment either before scire facias or after. But if after execution be made by capias ad satisfaciendum, elegit, or fieri facias, the plaintiff releases to the defendant all executions, he cannot plead such a release; but he must have an audita querela, and that he may have to discharge him of execution. Lit. § 507. 8 Co. 151. Co. Lit. 290.

By a release of all appeals, all appeals of felony, of death, of robbery, of rape, of Appeals. burning, of larceny depending, and all causes not yet moved also, are discharged. Co. Lit. 287, 288.

- Advantages. By a release of all advantages, it seems actions of debt upon account are discharged. 8 Co. 150.
- Conspiracies. By a release of all conspiracies, all conspiracies past are discharged, and such also as are only begun and shall be prosecuted and perfected after the release, are likewise hereby discharged. Kelw. 113.
- Forgeries. By a release of all forgeries before publication, the forgery is discharged, but not the publication; and therefore the releasor may take his remedy for that notwithstanding. 10 Co. 48.
- Demands and Claims. A release of all demands, is the best release of all; and the word demands is the most effectual word of all, and indeed includes and comprehends within it most of all the releases before. By a release therefore of all demands, without more words, are released all rights and titles to land, warranties, conditions annexed to estates before they be broken or performed, and after they are broken. Also by this release are released and discharged all statutes, obligations, contracts, recognizances, covenants, rents, commons, and the like. Also all manner of actions real and personal, appeals, debts and duties. Also all manner of judgments and executions. Also all annuities, and arrears of annuities and rents. And therefore if a man has a title of entry by force of a condition, &c. or a right of entry into any lands; by such a release the right and title is gone. And if a man has a rent-service, rent-charge, estovers, or other profit to be taken out of the land; by such a release to the tenant of the land it is discharged and extinct. Co. Lit. 291. 8 Co. 154. Lit. § 501. 509, 510.
- And therefore if a termor for years grants the land by indenture to A. rendering rent, and at the end of the first year he releases to the grantee all demands; the rent is hereby extinct during all the time. And a release of all claims it seems is much of the same nature. Adjudged Pas. 17 Jac. B. R. in Wotton's case.
- But by a release of all demands, or of all claims, any such thing as whereof a release cannot be made, as a mere possibility, or the like, is not released. 5 Co. 70.
- Neither will this release discharge a covenant or promise that is future and contingent before it be in being; nor a covenant before it is broken: and therefore if the lessee of a house covenants to leave it as well in the end of the term as it was in the beginning of his term, and before the end of the term the lessor releases to the lessee all demands: this is no bar to an action brought for a breach of the covenant afterwards. Adjudged Hil. 4 Jac. B. R. Hancock's case.
- And if a man in consideration of a sum of money given to him by a woman sole, assumes to her, that if she marries one M. that he will pay to her after the death of M. 100*l.* by the year, if she survives him, and she marries him, and the husband releases all demands, and then dies; this is no bar to the duty. So if one promises a woman that if she will marry him, that he will leave her worth 100*l.* if she survives him, and before the marriage she releases to him all actions and demands; this does not discharge the promise. Hil. 6 Jac. B. R. Belcher and Hudson's case.
- Note, That all these words are of the same force, when they are joined with other words, as when they are alone.
- To one good for all, or of one thing good for several, &c. If two tenants in common of land grant a rent-charge of 40*s.* out of it to one in fee, and the grantee releases to one of them; this shall extinguish but 20*s.* for that the grant in judgment of law is several. Co. Lit. 267.
- If one has several causes of action against two, and makes a joint release to them; this shall be taken to be a release of all joint, and several causes of action. 19 H. 6. 4.
- So if an executor has some cause of action for himself, and some for his testator, and he releases all actions indefinitely; this release discharges both sorts of actions. Bro. Release 29. 31.
- If the tenancy be given to the lord and a stranger, and to the heirs of the stranger, and the lord releases to his companion all his right in the land; this shall enure not only to pass his estate in the tenancy, but also to extinguish his right in the seignory. Co. Lit. 280.
- If there be lord and tenant of two acres, and the lord releases all his right to one of them to the tenant; hereby the services are extinct for both. So if one has a rent-charge out of twenty acres, and releases all his right in one acre, hereby all the rent is extinct. And yet if A. leases Whiteacre to B. for life rendering rent, and afterwards releases part of the rent, this is good only for such part. Perk. § 71. Bro. Release 85. 9 Ed. 3.
- If I be seised of land in fee, and make a lease of it to one for life, and after I release all my right in the land for the life of the tenant for life, so as neither I nor my heirs shall have claim or challenge any thing or right in that land for the life of the tenant for life; by this release nothing is extinct or discharged but the causes of action of waste that were then, and not any cause that shall happen afterwards. Bro. Release 65.
- If a statute be entered into the twentieth of April, and a conusee by a release dated the nineteenth of April (meaning to except this statute) releases all debts and demands till the making of the release; by this release the statute is discharged: but if the words had been to the day of the date of the release, contra. Dyer 307.

If a promise be of two parts, and he to whom it is made releases one part; this is a release of both. Per justice Dodderidge, Trin. 14 Jac.

If A. on the first of January enters into an obligation of 40l. to B. and B. on the thirteenth of July makes a deed thus: It is agreed between B. on the one part, and A. on the other part, that upon good considerations B. doth acknowledge himself fully satisfied and discharged of all bonds, debts or demands whatsoever from the beginning of the world to this day by the said A. and that he the said B. is to deliver all such bonds as he has yet undelivered to A. except one bond of 40l. yet unforfeited, which is for the payment of, &c. which was the obligation before: in this case it was adjudged a good release and discharge of all the bonds excepting this one, and that this exception shall go to all the premisses. 9 Co. 53.

Thirdly, In Respect of the Time or Estate.

A release of a right or an action, cannot be for a time, but it will be for ever. And therefore if a release be made to any one that has a fee-simple by wrong by him that has the right, for one hour, one year, for life or years; this is a good release for ever. And if the disseisee releases all his right in the land to the disseisor without naming his heirs, or setting down any time how long the releasee shall have the land, or the right of the disseisee therein; this is a good release for ever, and makes the estate of the disseisor good for ever, and so makes a good estate in fee-simple without the words, his heirs, &c. And if the disseisor or his heir makes a gift in tail, or a lease for life, and the disseisee releases all his right to the donee or lessee for life, to have and to hold for life only; this is a good release of his right for ever. But if the disseisee disseises the heir of the disseisor, and makes a lease for life, (which is a release in law) by this the right is released during that time only. So if one jointenant or parcener releases to the other all his right in the land, without the word heirs, or any more words; this release gives to his companion his whole interest for ever. And when the lord or grantee of a rent releases to the tenant, or terretenant generally; by these releases a fee-simple is transferred without the word heirs, &c. and yet the lord may release his seignior to his tenant, to hold to him in tail or for life, and this shall be taken and enjoyed accordingly. But if the lord releases the seignior to his tenant without the word heirs put in the deed, the same is extinct. Lit. § 467. 470. Co. Lit. 273. 264. 280. Melw. 88. Co. Lit. 9.

And if I let land to a man for term of years, and after I release to him all my right which I have in the land, without using any other words in the deed; or release to him, to have and to hold for his life; in both these cases he has an estate for his life only. And if I release land to a man for his own life, and after release to him, to have and to hold for his own life; hereby he has but an estate for his own life. But if I make a lease to him for another's life, and after release to him, habendum to him for his own life; by this he has an estate for his own life. But if I be seised of land in fee-simple, and let it to another for life years, and then release all my right to him, to have and to hold to him and his heirs; hereby he has the fee-simple. And if I release all my right to him, to have and to hold to him and the heirs of his body; hereby he has an estate-tail. Lit. § 545, 546. 465. Plow. 26. Dyer 263.

And if one be seised in fee of a rent-service or charge, and grant it first for life, and then release it to the grantee, to hold to him and his heirs, or to him and the heirs of his body; this shall enure to an enlargement according to the agreement. But if one grants a rent-charge out of the land de novo, and after releases to the grantee all his right in the rent, to have and to hold to him in fee-simple or fee-tail; this does not enlarge the estate. Lit. 549.

And if tenant in tail or for life makes a lease for years, and after by deed releases all his right to the lessee for years in possession, to hold to him and his heirs for ever; this will not make the estate of the lessee good for longer time than the life of the releasor. Lit. § 606. Co. 24 Ed. 4. 28.

If one makes a lease for ten years, the remainder for twenty-years to another, and he in remainder releases all his right to the lessee for ten years; in this case the releasee has an estate for thirty years, and no less; for one lease for years cannot drown in another. Co. 273.

If I let land to a feme sole for her life, or for years, and she takes a husband, and after release to them two, to hold for their lives; this shall enure no further than the intent; in the first case he shall hold jointly with his wife, but in her right whilst she lives, and after after for his own life, if he survives; and in the last case they shall have the freehold jointly. Lit. §. 526. Co. Lit. 299, 300.

A. had a judgment for 6000*l.* against B. B. gave A. a legacy of 5*l.* and died; A. on receipt of this 5*l.* gave the executor of B. a release in this manner: *I acknowledge to have received of C. 5*l.* left me as a legacy to B. and do release to him all demands which I have against him as executor of B. and have for any matter whatsoever;* and it was adjudged, that the generality of the words all demands should be restrained by the particular occasion mentioned in the former part thereof, viz. the receipt of the 5*l.* legacy, and should not be a discharge of the judgment. Lev. 101.

Release to an administrator of all right to the personal estate will not discharge a bond given by the intestate. 2 Ld. Raym. 786.

If a release of all debts by an administrator will discharge a debt due to the intestate where there is a debt due to the administrator in his own right. 2 Ld. Raym. 1306.

A release by A. and B. is joint and several. 2 Ld. Raym. 1199.

A man promises 7*l.* for a release; this promise is not discharged by the release. Ld. Raym. 235. 664.

General words in a release restrained by a particular recital. Ld. Raym. 664.

General subsequent words in a release shall be restrained by foregoing special words. Ld. Raym. 235, 236.

A bond given to a woman, with condition to leave her a sum of money, is not released by intermarriage. Ld. Raym. 515.

If a release of all demands will discharge a bond before condition broken. Ld. Raym. 518. 522.

A release cannot be pleaded as made in another county, unless it be debated there. Ld. Raym. 184.

(L) Where Releases shall be avoided and set aside.

IT is the constant rule in equity, that where there is either suppressio veri, or suggestio falsi, the release shall be avoided. Vern. 20. Will. 240.

In chancery a release was set aside by a subsequent accident, having relation to the original equity: a man seised of a term for years in church land, purchased the fee of the trustees for sale of church lands, in the time of Oliver Cromwell, and then settled the same on his wife for a jointure, and died; the wife released to the executors all her right to the personal estate; and afterwards the fee was evicted, on the restoration of king Charles the Second. And notwithstanding that, and the release, the wife was decreed to hold for so many years of the term as she lived, she being in possession, &c. Chan. Ca. 47.

A man who was possessed of a lease for three lives of a rectory in Kent, devised the rectory by will, but that being void, it came to his three daughters, as coheirs and special occupants: and there being a suit concerning this rectory in chancery, the husband of one of the daughters fearing to be in law, and being made to believe that he should be obliged to pay large costs; on this suggestion he released the arrears that should be coming to him for his share of the profits of the rectory (his share amounting to 1000*l.*) to the other sisters, who were to bear the charge of the suit: this release was set aside and declared void; and it was held, that misapprehension in the party shall avoid this release. Vern. 32.

If a child releases to his father his orphanage part which he is intitled to by virtue of the custom of the city of London; and this release is obtained by threats, or unduly; it shall be set aside in equity. Will. 639.

Revocation and new Declaration of Uses.

Of Revocation and new Declarations.

(A) What a Revocation and new Declaration is.

A Revocation is a destroying or making void a deed or will, which existed before the act of revocation.

And a revocation and new declaration, is a deed made pursuant to some proviso contained in a former deed or conveyance, giving power to revoke or call back something granted, and by a new declaration to create a new estate of the lands; after which revocation and declaration the lands shall settle accordingly.

There were no powers of revocation at common law, but a man might have a condition of re-entry. But now these provisos, containing power of revocation, are crept into voluntary conveyances, and are become very frequent, and pass by raising of uses according to the stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. for being coupled with an use, they are allowed to be good, and not repugnant to the former estates; as if one seised in fee covenants to stand seised to the use of himself for life, and after to the use of his son in tail with divers remainders over, provided that he may revoke any of the said uses; and afterwards he revokes them, he is seised in fee again without entry or claim. But in the case of a feoffment or other conveyance, whereby the feoffee or grantee is in by the common law, such proviso would be merely repugnant and void. Co. Lit. 237. a. It would be void as to destroying the feoffment, but it might be good as to revoking the uses to which the feoffment was made.

(B) The Effect of a Revocation.

THE revoker is seised again without entry or claim, Co. 173. b. for he being tenant in possession, cannot enter upon himself.

But he cannot bring trespass without entry. Carter 78.

Where in a trust-term to raise portions there is a power for the husband, with the consent of the trustees to revoke the uses in a settlement; this suspends the vesting of the portions. 2 Will. 102.

Of two voluntary settlements, if the first is made without a power of revocation against the intent of the party, the second shall prevail. Will. 581.

(C) Who may revoke.

A Man ought to be of as good disposing memory when he revokes his will, or his deed, as when he makes it. Cro. Jac. 497. pl. 3.

(D) What may be revoked.

SOME things may be revoked of course, though they are made irrevokable by express words; as a letter of attorney, a submission to an award, a testament or last will; for these of their nature are revocable. 8 Co. 82.

(E) Revocation, how made, and when defective may be helped.

THE revoker may revoke part at one time and part at another. But he can revoke one and the same part but once, without a new power of revocation to the uses newly limited. Co. 173. b. 3 Salk. 316.

A deed is not revocable because it has an immediate effect, without a power reserved in the deed itself: in revocations at law all circumstances must be observed, or the power is not well executed; and there can be no revocation in equity that is not good in law, unless the party's intention be hindered by fraud or accident; for the law has been liberal in expounding powers of revocation; and where the law expounds a thing according to an equitable construction, equity ought not to extend it farther: yet where there is a deliberate intent to make a new settlement, and a man goes as far as he can to make it, equity may supply a defect; but here the party had not done all that he could do. 3 Chanc. Ca. 86. 9. 108. 126.

Equity may supply a defective revocation, but cannot make a revocation where there is none. 2 Vern. 69, 70.

(F) In what Cases a Person may make a Revocation and new Declaration both, or only one of them.

IF a man by indenture declares the uses of a fine, with a clause to revoke and limit new uses, he may by deed revoke and limit new uses at his pleasure: but if upon such indenture declaring the uses, he reserves a power of revocation, and does not also reserve a power to limit new uses, he can only revoke, and not limit new uses, by virtue of the estate raised by the first fine. 1 Sid. 343, 344. But see Chanc. Rep. 242.

A power of revocation once executed is at an end, unless in the deed of revocation and new declaration there is a power to revoke the uses thereby declared. Abr. Ca. Eq. 342.

Where there is no power of new limitation in a deed by power to revoke, one may do so; for he who has power to revoke has power to limit. Chanc. Ca. 46.

The limitation of new uses is good where the express power in the first deed was only to revoke. Chanc. Rep. 242.

Where a man has power to revoke an estate-tail, he cannot out of it create a fee. 3 Lev. 214.

By the same conveyance the old uses are revoked, new uses may be created, where the former cease ipso facto without entry or claim.

Because the ancient uses cease ipso facto without entry or claim, (but not so as to bring assumpsit, Carter 78.) and the law shall adjudge priority of operation of the same deed, though it be sealed and delivered at one and the same instant: and therefore in construction at law, it shall be first a revocation, and then a limitation of new uses. Co. 174. a. b. 42.

(G) What Act, Deed or Will, is a Revocation.

BY a bargain and sale, &c. or feoffment of lands given by will to uses, the will is revoked, because a will cannot take effect till after the testator's death. Dyer 74. Lev. 108.

A. levied a fine to the use of B. and his heirs for the payment of his debts, reserving a power to revoke by deed indented; and afterwards, by a writing subscribed and sealed, he covenanted to levy (and afterwards levies) a fine to other uses; this is a good revocation: but if the fine had been levied before the deed extinguished, it had extinguished the power, and so no revocation (of that which had no being) could have been of the deed. Vide Skin. 52. 71. Comb. 11.

An uncle covenanted by indenture with his nephew, for the advancement of his blood, to stand seised to the use of himself for life, and afterwards to the use of his nephew in tail. Proviso, that if the uncle by himself, or any other person during his life, should deliver or offer to the nephew a gold ring, to the intent to make void the uses, then all the uses should be void. And afterwards he was attainted of treason; the queen (Eliz.) made a letter of attorney to two persons to tender this ring, which was done, and the ring refused: this is a sufficient tender, and determines the uses. Judgment affirmed by act of parliament. 7 Co. 11. a. 14. b. 15.

D. had a power to revoke a deed by writing, subscribed by him in the presence of two or more witnesses: he made his will in writing without making any express revocation; this is a good revocation and execution of the power. T. Raym. 295. 301. Vide Hob. 312. 2 Will. 415.

Where a subsequent act shall amount to a revocation by implication, it must be a necessary implication, and wholly inconsistent with the former deed or will. If a devise is in fee, a lease subsequent does not revoke it; and if a devise be for forty years, and afterwards the testator grants a lease for twenty years of the same premises, that is no revocation, only pro tanto. A mortgage subsequent to a devise is no revocation, but pro tanto. 2 Vern. 496.

In 1675 A. made his will, and gave the bulk of his estate to B. as his nearest kinsman. In 1681 A. made a lease and release, reciting the will, but with some variance; and mentioning that the intent of the deed was to dispose of the estate according as in the will, and to confirm and not revoke it; and then the deed disposed of the estate, some to the C. though the main bulk be settled on B. In which deed was a power of revocation, on tender of a shilling, by writing under hand and seal in the presence of six witnesses, whereof three to be peers, and then to limit new uses. In 1687 A. made another will, and thereby gave his estate in a different manner, viz. the bulk to M. whom he supposes to be his kinsman, instead of B. The question thereupon was, whether or not the last will had revoked the deed in equity; for there was no tender of money, and but three witnesses to this will, and not one of them a peer, so that in law it was plainly no revocation, because the power was not pursued. The validity of the deed was tried upon an ejectment in B. R. by direction of the chancery, where the title was found for B. Holt, Treby and Powel, who assisted the lord keeper, were of opinion that the last will was no revocation of the deed. And the lord keeper Sommers concurred with the judges, that there was not sufficient ground in equity to set aside the deed; therefore he decreed the bills of M. &c. should be dismissed. 3 Chan. Ca. 55, &c.

A. devised lands in fee to B. and then made a mortgage in fee of the same lands: this is an absolute revocation in law of the devise; contra if it had been a mortgage for years: but it is not a total revocation in equity. Vern. 329, 330. 347. 97. 141. Salk. 174. 2 Will. 334.

A. devised six houses to his wife in bar of dower, and devised one moiety of his real and personal estate to his daughter B. and the other moiety to his daughter C. Afterwards A. upon B's marriage with J. S. covenanted to settle a moiety of his real estate to the use of himself for life, remainder to J. S. and B. Though this is but a covenant, and therefore at law no revocation of the will, yet being for a valuable consideration, in equity it is tantamount to a conveyance, and consequently in equity a revocation of the will as to the six houses devised to the wife; so that J. S. was intitled to one clear moiety of the real estate, and to an account of the rents and profits from the testator's death; but it being the testator's intention that his wife should have the six houses, she should have a satisfaction out of the remaining moiety. 2 Will. 332, 333.

A. mortgaged a manor, and then devised it to B. for life, remainder to his first, &c. son in tail, remainders over; afterwards A. (who was whimsical) fancying he should marry C. made a lease and release of the premises to D. and E. and their heirs, in consideration of the intended marriage, to the use of himself and his heirs till the intended marriage took effect, then as to part in trust for C. and her heirs in lieu of dower, &c. There was no further progress towards the marriage, but A. died without altering his will; the honour descended to B. who soon after died; and his eldest son brought his bill for a redemption of the mortgage and a conveyance of the estate, and the defendants, the cousins and co-heirs of A. brought a cross bill, that they might redeem, &c. whereupon the question was, Whether this lease and release was a revocation of the will? Held that the lease and release would have been a revocation of a devise of a legal estate, and that equitable estates are governed by the same rules; the will is in disheison of the heir, who is always favoured. The co-heirs decreed the redemption. Abr. Ca. Eq. 411, 412.

A father devised lands in trust to permit his daughter to receive the rents, &c. till her marriage or death; and if she married with consent of her mother, &c. then to convey the same to her and her heirs; but if she died before marriage, or married without consent, then to convey to other persons. The daughter married in her father's life-time with his consent, and he settled part of those lands on her and her husband, and died. This settlement is no revocation of the will as to the devise of the other lands. 2 Vern. 720. See the case of Mr. Fitzgerald and Lord Fauconberge before.

(H) How Revocations are interpreted.

Revocations are favourably interpreted, because many mens' inheritances depend upon them. Co. Lit. 237. a. Skin. 72. Fitz. Gib. 214. But see 27 Eliz. c. 4. whereby voluntary estates made with power of revocation; as to purchasers, are made in equal degree with conveyances made by fraud and covin to defraud purchasers.

(I) What is an Extinguishment of a Power of Revocation, or not.

THE making a feoffment in fee, or levying a fine, &c. of any part extinguishes the power pro tanto; but if of the whole, all is extinct. Where uses are to be revoked by deed indented and inrolled, and a fine is levied before enrolment, this has extinguished the power of revocation: so a feoffment or release to any one who has a freehold in possession, reversion or remainder, is a revocation; for this power is not merely collateral to the land, but favours of the interest of the land. Co. 173. b. Salk. 316.

If he who has such a power has no present interest in the land, nor shall have any thing of the ceaser of the estate, a feoffment or fine of the land is no extinguishment of his power, because it is merely collateral to the land.

A fine or feoffment may extinguish a future power of revocation. Co. 112. b. Vide Vin. 35. 52. 71.

And a power of revocation, as well present as future, may be released by him who has such power, to any one who has an estate of freehold in the land in possession; reversion or remainder. Co. 113. b.

A man made a conveyance to the use of himself for life, with remainder over; and a power to revoke, to which last purpose he after levied a fine, and by deed revoked the former uses, and declared new uses; the fine being levied before the deed extinguished his power. Vent. 368. 371. 2 Show. 368. Vide Skin. 35. 52. 71. Comb. 11. See before (A).

Mortgage is but a revocation pro tanto. 2 Ld. Raym. 968. A power of revocation may be executed in part at one time and in part at another. Ld. Raym. 908.

Another Deed of Revocation of Uses.

TD all Christian People, to whom these presents shall come, G. W. of London sendeth greeting. Whereas by indenture bearing date the, &c. day of, &c. year of our lord, &c. Between me the said G. W. of the one part, and *W. A Settlement, reciting that a Father by his Will had bequeathed a certain Sum of Money to Trustees to be laid out at Interest, and the Interest to be applied towards the Maintenance of one of his Sons who was a Lunatick. The Mother by this Deed makes a further Settlement (on the Lunatick) out of her own proper Monies, with a Proviso in Case he was restored to his Sanity.

THIS Indenture Tripartite, made, &c. Between J. A. of, &c. and R. A. (son and heir apparent of the said J. A.) of the first part, W. G. of, &c. and A. G. of, &c. (brother of him the said W. G. late of, &c. her late husband, deceased, of the third part. Whereas the said T. G. the said late father of them the said W. G. and A. G. and husband of her the said A. G. in and by his last will and testament in writing, bearing date, &c. G. and A. G. his (the said testator's) said sons, into the hands of the said J. G. his said son; but if the said J. his son should happen to die before his former senses should be restored, then his will was, that all such and so much of the said 300*l.* and interest as should not be expended, should after such the decease of the said J. his (the said testator's) son be paid to the executors or administrators of the said J. his son, and of his said will made the said A. G. then his wife, executrix; as in and by the said recited last will and testament of the said T. G. relation being thereunto had, it doth and may more plainly appear: And whereas the said A. G. and A. G. her sons the sum of 210*l.* of her own proper monies, to be with the said — laid out in purchasing the messuage, &c. to be settled as herein after is mentioned: Now this Indenture witnesseth, that for and in consideration of the said several and respective sums of — and — to the said J. General words, which may be altered as the case may require.

Agreement not to revoke.

On Surrenders.

(A) Surrender what. See 2 Bur. Rep. 1072.

A SURRENDER (sursum redditio) properly taken, is the yielding or delivering up of lands or tenements and the estate a man has therein, unto another that has a higher and greater estate in the same lands or tenements.

But it is sometimes improperly applied to other things. Co. Lit. 337. b.

He who surrenders, is called the surrenderor, and he to whom it is made is called the surrenderee.

A surrender is a particular sort of conveyance that works by the common law. 2 Vent. 201.

(B) Of Kinds of Surrenders.

THERE are three kinds of surrenders:

First, a surrender properly taken at the common law.

Secondly a surrender by custom of lands holden by custom or of customary estate.

(a) If the parties have any suits depending in any courts of law, they ought to be excepted, because the arbitrators cannot intermeddle therein, unless referred to them by the court.

(b) If the award concerns lands, &c. the lands must be specified.

Thirdly, a surrender improperly taken, as of a deed or grant of a rent charge of a patent, and of land in fee simple to the king.

1st, The surrender properly taken is of two sorts, expressed or implied.

1st, expressed or in deed, which is when it is done by apt words, and the express agreement of the parties.

2d, the law or implied, which is when it is wrought by consequence and operation of law, or when the law interprets or enures some thing done to another intent, to make a surrender of it.

And in the first it is sometimes by word only, and sometimes by writing.

And when it is by writing it is said to be an instrument testifying by apt words, that the particular tenant of the lands or tenements for life or years, consents and agrees that he who has the next or immediate remainder or reversion thereof, shall also have the particular estate of the same in possession and that he yields the same to him. Co. Lit. 337, 338. 6 Co. 69. Plow. 106, 107. West's Symb. b. 2. C. 460. 2 Bur. Rep. 1072.

(C) The Nature and Effect of a Surrender.

THE fruit and effect of a surrender is, that it passes the estate of the surrenderor to the surrenderee, and that hereupon the estate of the surrenderor is drowned and extinct in the estate of the surrenderee; and yet not so, but that to some purposes it shall be said to have continuance still. And therefore if tenant for life grants a rent-charge, and after surrenders his land; in this case the rent-charge shall continue notwithstanding the surrender. So if lessee for life makes a lease for years rendering rent, and the lessee for life surrenders his estate; in this case, although the primitive estate for life be yielded up, yet the derivative estate for years shall continue, but the surrenderee shall not have the rent reserved upon the lease for years. So if lessee for life or years breaks a covenant with his lessor, and after surrenders his estate to him, his breach of covenant is not hereby saved, for the lessor may have an action of covenant still notwithstanding the surrender. Co. Lit. 338. Co. 96. Bro. Surrender 47. Perk. § 591.

And if one seised of land grants a rent out of it in fee, and this rent is extended on a statute, or granted for less time to another, and then the grantee surrenders the deed of the grant of the rent to the tenant of the land; in this case the rent shall continue as to him that has execution, and the grantee. And if one makes a lease for years rendering rent, and the lessee surrenders his estate to the lessor; hereby the rent is extinct: but if the lessor grants the rent to a stranger before the surrender, contra. And if one leases for years, and the lessee lets parcel of his term to his lessor rendering rent, and after the lessee surrenders his whole estate, in this case the rent is determined. 7 Co. 39. 8 Co. 145. Bro. Sur. 42.

Where there is no particular method in the lord's court, or custom within the manor for the suffering a recovery of copyhold lands for barring of an intail, a general or common surrender is sufficient, though the intail is of a copyhold trust or legal estate. 2 Vern. 585. 705.

(D) What shall be said a Surrender in Law of Lands; and by what Means an Estate shall be surrendered in Law, or not.

IF lessee for life or years takes a new lease of him in reversion of the same thing in particular contained in the former lease for life or years; this is a surrender in law of the first lease: as if lessee for his own or another's life in possession or reversion takes a new lease for years; or a lessee for forty years takes a new lease for fifty years; the first lease in both these cases is surrendered. 14 H. 8. 15. Plow. 194. Dyer 28. 10 Co. 67.

And this rule holds although the second lease be for a less time than the first; as if lessee for life accepts a lease for years, or lessee for twenty years accepts a lease for two years. Perk. § 617. 5 Co. 11.

And although the second lease be voidable, as being made upon condition; as if lessee for twenty years takes a new lease for twenty years, upon condition; as if such a thing happens the second lease shall be void, and the thing does after happen; in this case both these leases are become void: as where the lessor grants the reversion to the lessee upon condition, and after the condition is broken. Fitz. Surrender 3. Co. Lit. 218. 37 H. 6. 17.

Or if the second lease be made by tenant in tail, or the like; as if a man makes a lease for years of land, and then makes a feoffment to another of the land, and then takes back an estate to him and his wife of the land; and then makes a new lease to the lessee for ten ten years; this is a surrender in law of the first lease. But if the second lease be merely void; then it is otherwise. Dyer 140, 141.

And therefore if the lessor by words of covenant only promises to his lessee, that he shall have a new lease, and never actually makes it; this is no surrender in law. Dyer 272.

And this rule holds also, although the second lease be to the lessee and a stranger, or to the lessee and his wife. Dyer 177, 178. 5 Co. 54, 55. Kelw. 70.

And although the second lease be by word only, and the first lease be by deed, if so be that the thing granted by the lease be such a thing as may pass by word without writing. Dyer 140, 141.

And although the second lease be in another's right; as if the husband has a lease for years in the right of his wife, and then takes a new lease to himself in his own name. Dyer 178. And although the first lease be to begin presently, and the second be to begin at a day to come, or e converso. Pas. 40 El. Co. Lit. 338. 6 Co. 69. 5 Co. 11. 10 Co. 53. 67.

And although there be a mean estate between; as if land be let to A. for years, and after let to B. for years, to begin after the first term, and the assignee of A. takes a new lease. So if one demises land for ten years to one, and after demises it for ten years to another, to begin at Michaelmas, and after the first lessee accepts a new lease. For in all these cases there is a surrender in law of the first leases. Dyer 93. 112.

And if there be two lessees for life or years, and one of them takes a new lease for years; this is a surrender of his moiety; whereby it appears that a surrender in law may be made of some estates which cannot be surrendered by a surrender in fact; for fortior est dispositio legis quam hominis. And hence it is, that a corporation aggregate may make a surrender in law without deed, although it cannot make an express surrender without deed. Dyer 46. 2 Co. 60. 6 Co. 69. 10 Co. 67.

But if the lessee only licenses the lessor to make a feoffment, and gives livery of seisin; or gives livery of seisin for him as his attorney; or licenses him to enter into the land, and no more; neither of these things shall be said to be a surrender in law. So if the second lease be made of another, and not of the same thing whereof the first lease is made; as where the first lease is of the land, and the second is made of a rent or other profit to be taken out of the land; or the first is of a manor, and the second of the bailiwick or stewardship of the manor; or the first is of a park, and the second is of the keepership of the park; in these cases there is no surrender of the first lease. Also if the second lease be not a good lease, perhaps it shall not be construed a surrender. Perk. § 608. Bro. Surrender 48. 6 Co. 69. Trin. 5 Jac. adjudged. See 2 Co. 17. Lane's case.

But if the first lease be of the land itself, and the second lease is of the vesture of the same land; this is held to be a surrender of the first lease. Trin. 5 Jac. Sir Jo. Chamberlain's case. See Dyer 200.

So if the second lease be not to begin until the first lease ends, the taking of this second lease is no surrender of the first lease. So it has been said, if one makes a lease of Black-acre in Dale, and the lessee accepts a second lease of all the lands of the lessor in Dale, in general words, and the lessor that makes the lease has divers other lands there besides this acre; that this is no surrender of the first lease. 5 Co. 11. Sed quære of this, for others do much doubt it.

So if one enters into land and makes a lease for the trial of the title only, and after the lessor (he and the lessee being both out of possession) makes another lease of the same thing to the lessee; this is no surrender of the first lease: but if the lessor enters before he makes the lease, contra. Per cur. B. R. 9 Jac.

(E) Where Copyhold Lands shall pass without a Surrender.

A Man devised all his real estate for the payment of debts, and was seised of several freehold and copyhold lands, but had not surrendered his copyhold lands to the use of his will, and died, leaving three sons; and part of the copyhold lands was of the nature of Borough English. Per Lord Chancellor—If the copyhold passes, the youngest son, who is intitled to such part thereof as is Borough English, must contribute to pay the debts; that as between the sons it was a doubtful case; but with regard to the creditors, if there was not an estate sufficient for the payment of debts without the copyhold lands, it was his opinion these ought to pass. Will. 443.

(F) Things requisite in a good Surrender of Lands.

TO make a good surrender in deed of lands, and to make them pass by such a surrender, these things are first of all required:

First, That the surrenderor be a person able to grant and make, and the surrenderee capable to receive a surrender, and that both have estates capable of a surrender.

Secondly, That it be made by deed, and not by word without writing, unless of copyhold or customary estates.

Thirdly, That it be made of such things whereof a surrender may lawfully be made, for a surrender cannot be made of lands in fee-simple or tail, nor of right and titles, but only of estate for life or years.

Fourthly, That there be words or deeds, and words sufficient to make the mind of the surrenderor appear, and that he be willing to give up his estate in the land to the surrenderee.

Fifthly, The surrenderee must agree to accept of it; for till then the surrender is not perfect.

Of all which more fully hereafter.

(G) Of the Parties between whom a Surrender is made, and their Estate and Possession.

IN a surrender it is requisite that the surrenderor be a person able to grant and make, and the surrenderee a person capable and able to take and receive a surrender, and that they both have such estates as are capable of a surrender: and for this purpose observe,

First, That the surrenderor has an estate in possession of the thing surrendered at the time of the surrender made, and not a bare right thereunto only.

Secondly, That the surrender be to him that has the next immediate estate in remainder or reversion, and that there be no intervenient estate coming between.

Thirdly, That there be a privity of estate between the surrenderor and the surrenderee.

Fourthly, That the surrenderee must have a higher and greater estate in the thing surrendered than the surrenderor has, so that the estate of the surrenderor may be drowned therein.

Fifthly, That he has the estate in his own right, and not in the right of his wife, &c.

Sixthly, And that he be sole seised of his estate in remainder or reversion, and not in jointenancy.

As for examples, infants, femmes covert, mad and lunatick men, and all such like persons as are disabled to grant, are disabled to make a surrender, and none but such as may grant their land may surrender their land. A corporation aggregate cannot make an express surrender without a deed, but it may make such a surrender by deed. And such persons as are disabled to take by a grant, are disabled to take by a surrender; and such as may be grantees may be surrenderees: and therefore a surrender to an infant is good. 10 Co. 67.

If the husband has a lease or estate for years in the right of his wife, he alone, or he and his wife together, may surrender it. But if the husband has an estate for life in the right of his wife, being tenant in dower, or otherwise, and he alone, or he and she together, surrender this; this surrender is good only during the life of the husband, except it be made by fine. Bro. Surrender 44. Perk. § 612, 613.

One executor may surrender an estate or lease for years which the executors have in the right of their testator. 21 H. 7. 25.

If there be two tenants in common, and one of them has the particular estate, and the other the fee-simple; as where an estate is limited to two and the heirs of one of them, and he that has the estate for life aliens his part to a stranger; in this case the alienee may surrender to the other jointenant. So if there be three jointenants for life, and the fee-simple is limited to the heirs of one of them, and one of the jointenants for life releases to the other, and he to whom this release is made surrenders to him that has the fee-simple; this is a good surrender of a third part.

A lessee for life or years may surrender to him that is next in remainder in fee-simple, fee-tail, or to him in reversion in fee; and this is a good surrender. And a surrender may be made to the grantee of the reversion before attornment, so as attornment be afterwards made. (Vide tit. Grants.) And in case of the surrender of an estate for life, there needs no livery of seisin, as in the case of the grant of an estate for life. A lessee for years of a term term to begin at a day to come, cannot surrender it by an actual surrender before the day the term begins, as he may by a surrender in law. Fitz. Surrender. Perk. § 584. 586, 587. 600, 601, 602. Co. Lit. 338. Bro. Surr. 4. 4 H. 7. 10. 6 Co. 69. Dyer 251. 358. 280.

If lessee for life be disseised, or lessee for years be ousted, and before his entry, or the getting of the possession again, surrenders his estate to him in reversion; this surrender is void. So if a woman that has title of dower, surrenders it to him in reversion before she has recovered it, this surrender is void. And yet if lessee for years after his term is begun and before his entry, when no body keeps from him the profits, surrenders his estate; this is a good surrender; but if another enters before him, and keeps him out, it seems otherwise. Perk. § 600, 601, 602, 603.

If there be lessee for years, the remainder for life, the remainder or reversion in fee, and the lessee for years be ousted, and he that ousted him dies seised, and then the lessee for years enters, and then the tenant for life surrenders to him in remainder or reversion in fee; this is not a good surrender, for there is in this case but a bare right of remainder for life and in fee; but if the lessee for years had not been ousted, it had been a good surrender. If there be lessee for years, the remainder for life, the remainder in fee; the lessee for years may surrender to the lessee for life, and so may the tenant for life, to him in remainder or reversion in fee; but if there be tenant for life, the remainder for life, the remainder in fee; in this case the second tenant for life cannot surrender to him in remainder in fee. Perk. § 605. Dyer 251.

If a lease be made for life or years to A. the remainder for life to B. the remainder in fee-tail to C. and the first tenant for life or years surrenders to C. or to the lessor, B. the next in remainder for life being then living; this is not a good surrender; neither can it take effect as a surrender in respect of the intervenient estate. And so some say the law is, if the middle remainder be but for years only: As if a lease be made for years, the remainder for years, and the first termor surrenders his interest to the lessor; this is no good surrender. Sed quare. Perk. § 588.

For it should seem that a future interest will no more hinder an actual surrender of the first lessee than a surrender in law. And so also it seems the law is for a concurrent lease, which for the latter part of it is in the nature of a future interest. But if in this case it happens that the middle remainder is void; as where a lease is made to A. for life or years, the remainder to a monk (who is a person incapable) for life or years, the remainder to J. S. in fee; in this case A. the first tenant may surrender to him in remainder in fee, and the surrender is good. Dyer, 93. 112. Plow. 190. 432. 433.

If lessee for twenty years makes a lease for five years, and the lessee for five years enters, and after the lessee for twenty years surrenders to him in reversion or remainder; this is a good surrender. So also if the two lessees join in the surrender. So also if the first lessee surrenders first, and the lessee for five years surrenders after; but if the lessee for five years surrenders to him in the reversion or the remainder, before the surrender of the lessee for twenty years; this cannot take effect as a surrender, for two causes;

First, Because there is a remnant of the term, as an intervenient estate to hinder the drowning of the term.

Secondly, Because there wants a privity between the lessee for five years, and him in reversion. Perk. § 604. 14 H. 7. 3. Plow. 541. Bro. Surr. 16.

If tenant in fee-simple surrenders to the lord paramount of whom the land is held; this can never take effect as a surrender, unless it be in a special case where the lord has cause to have a cessavit. Bro. Surr. 9. Fitz. Surr. 10.

So if tenant in tail surrenders to him in remainder or reversion in fee-simple, this cannot take effect as a surrender. So if lessee for life surrenders to him in remainder for years, or tenant for the life of B. surrenders to him that has an estate for the life of C. these are void surrenders; for the estates of them to whom they are made, are not capable of such surrenders, for they are not greater than the estates of the surrenderors, and therefore not able to drown the estates surrendered. And yet if lessee for life of another, or for his own life surrenders his estate to him in remainder that is tenant for his own life; this is a good surrender; for an estate for a man's own life is greater, in judgement of law, than an estate for another man's life. And hence it is, that if a lease be made to two for their lives, the remainder to a third person for his own life, and one of the tenants for life surrenders his estate to him in remainder for life; this is a good surrender for a moiety. Perk. § 589, 590. Co. Lit. 42, 3, 61.

If lessee for life or years surrenders to him in remainder or reversion that has no good estate in the remainder or reversion, as where the remainder or reversion is granted by word only, (vide stat. of frauds) or being granted by deed, there is no attornment of the tenant to the grant, or the like; this surrender is not good. 2 Co. 66.

And yet if tenant in tail makes a lease for life, whereby he gains a new reversion (but defeasible), and the tenant for life surrenders to the tenant in tail; this shall be a good surrender. So if a woman inheritrix has a husband, and they have issue a son, and the husband dies, and she takes another husband, and he lets the land for life, and the wife dies; and the tenant for life surrenders his estate to the second husband; this is a good surrender to most purposes. Co. Lit. 338.

If a feme sole be seised of land in fee, and she makes a lease thereof to a stranger for life, and then takes a husband, and the lessee surrenders to the husband; this is no good surrender, neither can it enure so, because he to whom it is made has not the reversion in his own but his wife's right. Perk. § 622.

(H) Of the Place where the Surrender is made.

BEFORE the statute of frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3. it was requisite in every good surrender, made by word and without deed, that it should be made in the same county where the land to be surrendered lay; but by writing a man might make a surrender of lands that lay in any other county, and in what place soever it lay. And a surrender might be, by word or writing, of lands lying within the same county, in any place out of the land: And therefore if tenant for life surrendered to him in reversion in any place out of the land within the same county, and the surrenderee agreed to it, the freehold was in him presently. Bro. Surr. 2. 8. Fitz. Partit. 5. Perk. § 583.

But now by the said statute § 3. No leases, estates or interests, either of freehold or terms of years, or any uncertain interest, not being copyhold or customary interest, of, in, to or out of any messuages, manors, lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall be assigned, granted or surrendered, unless it be by deed or note in writing.

(I) Of the Things surrendered.

CARE should be taken that a surrender be made of such things, of which it may lawfully be made; for surrenders may not be made of estates in fee-simple, fee-tail, nor of rights and titles only of estates for life or years, nor of part of an estate for life or years; as if a man has a lease for ten years, he cannot surrender the last seven years, and keep to himself the three years. But otherwise one may surrender any kind of estate for life; as by dower, by the courtesy, or as tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct or for years, or years determinable upon lives; and of any messuages, houses, lands, commons, rents, or the like, that are grantable from one to another, and such surrenders are good. Bro. Surr. in toto. Perk. c. Surr. in toto. 5 Co. 11. Co. Lit. 338.

If I have a rent in fee for life or years, issuing out of another man's manor or other lands, I may surrender it; for if I deliver the deed of the grant of the rent, to be cancelled to any one that has any estate of the manor or land in fee-simple, for life or years, in possession or remainder, either solely by himself, or jointly with others, this is a good surrender, and hereby the rent is extinct and gone. But one that is tenant in tail of a rent cannot surrender it, neither will the delivering up of the deed in this case determine the rent. 14 H. 7. 2. Perk. § 585. 590. 591. 596. 598. 608.

And if one be seised of land out of which a rent is issuing in fee, and is disseised, and during the disseisin, the grantee of the rent surrenders his rent, and gives up his deed; it seems this does not extinguish the rent, yet the grantee has no remedy for his rent when he has delivered up his deed. Perk. § 594.

And yet if one be seised of land in fee, out of which a rent is issuing in fee, and he dies without heir, so that the land escheats, and before the lord enters upon his escheat, he who has the rent, surrenders the deed of the rent to the lord; this is a good surrender to extinguish the rent. Perk. 595.

And if the grantee of a rent-charge in fee grants the same to him in fee that is seised of the land in fee, this shall enure to extinguish the rent; but if he grants it to one that has only an estate for life, contra. Perk. 597.

Before the stat. 4 G. 2. c. 28. leases for life, &c. could not be renewed without a surrender of all the under-leases, and the under-tenants might have refused and prevented it. But now by the said statute, it is enacted, that if any lease for life or years, where there are under-tenants by lease, shall be duly surrendered in order to a renewal, and a new lease is made and executed by the lessor; the new lease shall without a surrender of all the under-leases, be be good and valid to all intents and purposes: And the lessees, by virtue of such new lease, shall be intitled to the rents of the under-tenants, and have like remedy for recovery thereof; and the lessees shall hold the lands as if the original lease had been kept on foot.

(K) How a Surrender is made, and by what Words.

IN a surrender there should be words, or words and deeds sufficient to make the mind of the surrenderor to appear that he is willing or desirous to part with, and yield up the thing surrendered into the hands of the surrenderee. And herein observe, that although the words surrender, give or yield up, be the most significant and proper words whereby to make a surrender, yet any other words, especially if it be in the surrender of a lease for years, that do testify and declare the will and assent of him that is the particular tenant, that he in the remainder or reversion shall have the estate of the tenant, is sufficient to pass the estate by way of surrender. And therefore if lessee for life or years by word or writing says, that he will hold the land no longer, and wishes him in reversion or remainder therefore to enter; or that it is his desire that he shall enter into the land, and have it and his estate therein; or that he is content that he shall have his estate, or have his lease; such or any such like declaration as this made to him in reversion or remainder, will be a good surrender. Perk. § 607, 608, 609. Bro. Sur. 1. 35. 37. 17. 21 H. 7. 7. Dyer 251.

So if lessee for years delivers his indenture to a stranger, to deliver it and all his estate up to him in reversion, and appoints the stranger to deliver and surrender it to him in reversion, and he does so, and he in reversion accepts thereof; this is a good surrender: but otherwise it is of an estate for life; so if the particular tenant does, by the words, give, grant or confirm, pass his estate to him in reversion, and he enters and agrees to it, this is a good surrender: And by all these surrenders the estate will pass by way of surrender, except it be in some special cases where the intents of the parties plainly appear to be that the estate shall not pass by way of surrender. But if a lessee, for life or years, only goes from the house or land, and carries away his goods and cattle, and so waives the possession for a time, either because the lessor shall not distrain them for rent behind, or the like, and thereupon the lessor enters and enjoys it; this is no surrender, neither is this a good yielding of his estate. Sleigh and Bateman's case, H. 37 Eliz. B. R.

And in such a manner, and by such words as before, any thing that may be granted by word without writing, may be surrendered by word without writing, so as it be made within the same county where the thing surrendered doth lie. And this holdeth true, although the estate to be surrendered was created by deed; (but see the statute of frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3.) but such things as commons, rents, advowsons, reversions, remainders, and the like, that cannot be granted without deed, cannot be surrendered without deed. And therefore if a lease be made for life, the remainder for life, by word of mouth without any writing; he in remainder for life cannot surrender his remainder for life without deed. So where one has a rent, advowson, or the like, as tenant in dower, or by the courtesy; this cannot be surrendered without deed. Perk. § 581, 582, 583. Fitz. Surr. 1. Co. Lit. 338.

And in case where there is any special matter to be contained in the surrender, as reservation of rent, condition, or the like; there for the most part it must be by deed, or it will not be good. And therefore if tenant for life declares himself by word of mouth to be contented and agreed that he in the reversion shall have the land and his estate therein, rendering ten shillings a year rent, or paying such a sum of money; or upon condition that if he survives the lessor, he shall have it again, &c. this is no good surrender. Dyer 251. Bro. Surr. 16.

And a surrender may be made also upon a condition precedent or subsequent; as if it be with reservation of rent, that if it be not paid it should be void; but if it be an estate for life that is so surrendered, it must be made by writing indented; and so likewise the law is of the surrender of a lease for years upon a condition, or however it is most safe so to do. Perk. § 624. 623. Co. Lit. 218. See the Statute of Frauds.

IN a surrender it is necessary that the surrenderee agrees to and accepts of it; for until then the surrender is not perfect; but if the surrenderee once agrees to it, he cannot afterwards disagree, for his first agreement perfects the surrender. But the actual entry of the surrenderee into the land is not necessary. And therefore if tenant for life or years surrenders to him in reversion out of the land, and he agrees to it, he has the land in him presently. And yet he may not bring an action of trespass against any man, for any trespass done upon the land until he has made his entry. Perk. § 608.

But observe, that in the cases before where things may not pass by way of surrender, either because of an intervenient estate, or the like; if there be sufficient words in the deed it may avail to other purposes, and may enure and pass the thing by way of grant; but then if it be an estate for life that is intended to be surrendered, there must be livery of seisin made upon the deed. And therefore if there be lessee for years, the remainder for life or years, the remainder in fee, and the lessee for years in possession surrenders and grants all his estate to him in remainder in fee; howsoever this deed cannot enure as a surrender, yet it shall enure as a good grant of the estate of the lessee for years unto him in remainder in fee. Perk. § 588, 589.

There must be an agreement of the surrenderor and surrenderee, otherwise nil operatur. 2 Vent. 206.

Where a deed of surrender is made to him in reversion, if he be present he must either agree or disagree. 2 Vent. 206.

But it has been a great doubt, where a deed of surrender is made to him in reversion in his absence and without his knowledge, whether his agreement is not intended, and that the law shall suppose an assent till his disagreement appears: it was the opinion of Ventr. that it should; and the house of lords, upon a writ of error, gave judgment accordingly. 2 Vent. 206. 2 Lev. 284. 1 Show. 296. 3 Mod. 296. 301. Parl. Cases 150, 151. 2 Salk. 618. Co. Lit. 266. b. But Pollexfen C. J. and Powel and Rokeby justices were of opinion, that it was no surrender till the surrenderee had notice of the deed of surrender, and agreed to it.

(M) Where a Surrender in pursuance of a Bond shall be compelled in Equity.

A. Seised of a copyhold estate, attempts to surrender it to the use of his will, with an intent to devise it to B. his sister's son; but a surrender not being practicable by reason of some accidents, he prevailed with his sister, who was his heir at law, to give a bond to her son, conditioned to surrender at his request upon payment of 200*l.* A. died, B. received the rents and profits some time, and then died intestate, leaving only two sisters. The mother administered, and having procured herself to be admitted tenant of the copyhold devised it by will to one of her daughters and sister of B. The other sister of B. brought her bill against the devisee for a specific performance of the condition of the bond, by which she would be intitled to a moiety of the land. And it was decreed, that the mother should be considered as a trustee for B. and that a surrender and conveyance should be made accordingly, upon the payment of 200*l.* with interest from the death of A. 10 Mod. 518, 9 Mod. 62.

(N) Where a Feoffment, Lease, Grant or other Act made, or done by the Tenant for Life or Years, shall be deemed a Surrender, or not.

First, Where it is made to him in Reversion or Remainder.

IF any kind of tenant for life of land infeoffs him in remainder or reversion of the land, or grants his estate to him in remainder or reversion; this shall enure as a surrender. And if lessee for years before his term begins, makes a feoffment to him in reversion or remainder, or grants his estate to him; this shall enure as a surrender. And if lessee for life grants his estate to him in reversion, the remainder in fee to another; this shall enure as a surrender, and this remainder is void. But if such a tenant for life makes a lease to him in remainder or reversion for the term of the life of him in remainder or reversion reversion; this shall not enure as a surrender, because it does not give the whole estate, but shall enure by way of grant. So if lessee for life makes a lease to him in remainder in tail for term of the life of him in remainder; this shall not enure as a surrender, but as a grant, and shall end with the life of the grantee. Bro. Surr. 3. 5. 49. Co. Lit. 42. Perk. § 616. 620. 623.

If a lessee for forty years makes a lease for thirty-seven years on a condition, and after grants his estate to him in reversion, and the second lessee attorns; this shall enure as a surrender. Pasch. 7 Jac. B. R.

If there be a tenant for life, the remainder in tail to a stranger, and the remainder in tail to another stranger, the remainder in fee to the tenant for life, and the tenant for life make a feoffment to the first tenant in tail; this shall enure as a surrender of the estate for life, and as a grant of the reversion in fee also. Perk. § 621.

If tenant for life takes a husband, and then her husband and she by deed indented make a lease to him in reversion for the life of the husband; this shall not enure as a surrender, but as a grant. Co. Lit. 42.

If there be tenant for his own life, the remainder to S. J. for his own life, and the first tenant for life surrenders to him in remainder for the life of him in remainder; this shall enure as a surrender, and is no forfeiture; but if he grants it to him for the life of a stranger, and makes livery of seisin, this is a forfeiture. Bro. Surr. 17.

If lessee for life, the reversion being in jointenants, grants the lands to one or all of the jointenants for twenty years; this shall not enure as a surrender, but as a grant; for there remains an interest in the lessee still as a mean estate. Perk. § 615.

If lessee for years makes him in reversion or remainder his executor; this shall not enure as a surrender, although it gives him the whole estate. Bro. Surr. 52.

If lands be given to the husband and wife, the remainder to J. S. and the husband discontinues in fee, and takes back an estate to him and his wife, the remainder to W. N. and his wife, and wife claims in by the second estate, and surrenders to W. N. this shall not enure as a surrender but as a grant. Bro. Surr. 36.

Secondly, When it is done and made to him and a Stranger.

If lessee for life or years grants his estate to him in remainder or reversion, and a stranger; this shall enure as a surrender of the one half to him in reversion, and as a grant of the other moiety to the stranger. Bro. Surr. 11. 2 Co. 61. 3 Co. 61.

And yet it is said that if lessee for life of land grants his estate to him in the reversion and two others, that hereby they have a joint estate, and the survivor shall have the whole. Perk. § 619.

If lessee for life makes a lease for his own life to the lessor, the remainder to the lessor and a stranger in fee; this shall enure as a surrender of the one moiety, and a forfeiture of the other moiety. Co. Lit. 335.

If tenant for life surrenders to the husband of a woman tenant in tail or in fee; this shall enure as a grant, not as a surrender. And so also it seems in the law when the surrender is to the husband and wife. Bro. Surr. 20. 24. 23.

And if B. be tenant for life, the remainder to C. in tail, the remainder to D. in tail, and B. enfeoffs C. and S. his wife in fee; this shall not enure as a surrender, but it is a forfeiture: So that if C. dies without issue, D. may enter. Bro. Surr. 46.

If there be lessee for life, the reversion to two coparceners, and one of them takes a husband, and the lessee grants his estate to her and husband; this shall not enure as a surrender, but as a grant. Perk. § 623. 21 H. 7. 40.

And if tenant for life grants his estate to the husband and wife, she having the reversion, if she be an infant and within age at this time; it seems this shall enure as a surrender, not as a grant. Bro. Surr. 347.

Thirdly, When it is done both with the Tenant and in him in Reversion or Remainder.

If tenant for life or years, and he in reversion or remainder by word without deed in a feoffment; it shall be said the surrender of the estate for life or years to him in the reversion, and the feoffment of him in the reversion.

But if he in reversion enfeoffs the tenant for life without any deed; this shall enure first as a surrender of the lease for life, and then as a feoffment. Plow. 140. Dyer 358.

But see the statute of frauds.

Fourthly, When a Grant, &c. is made of the same Land, or a Thing out of the same Land, &c.

If the lessee of a manor accepts of a lease of the bailiwick of the same manor during his lease; this is not any surrender of his term, because it is distinct, and of another thing than what was leased before, and there appears no intention that it should be a surrender. Cro. Jac. 176, 177. Noy 12. 2 Roll. Abr. 496.

But where the lessee for years of a house accepts a grant of the custody of the same house; this is a surrender, because the custody of the same thing let before is another interest in the same thing leased, and cannot stand with the first lease. Cro. Jac. 177. pl. 16. Dyer 200. pl. 62. 2 Roll. Rep. 357.

If a lessee for years take a grant of a rent-charge out of the same land for life; or if a lessee for life takes a grant of a rent-charge for years; that is not any surrender, because he might have the benefit of that rent after the estate in the land is determined.

But if lessee for life takes a grant of a rent-charge for life out of the same land; this is a surrender, for otherwise the rent-charge cannot take effect. Cro. Jac. 177. pl. 16. 2 Roll. Abr. 496. Cro. Eliz. 873. Moor 636.

Where an officer, who holds by grant his office for his life, accepts another grant of the same office to him and another, it is not a surrender of the first grant. Vide 1 Vent. 297.

(O) In what Cases a defective Surrender, or the Want of a Surrender may be supplied, or not.

A Defective surrender of a copyhold estate, devised as a provision for younger children, grandchildren, a wife, or when devised for payment of debts, has been supplied in equity: so has the want of a surrender when grounded upon a long possession and enjoyment, in which case a surrender will be presumed; and the surrender might be lost or mislaid, without the default or negligence of the party, being kept by the lord and his steward, who are oftentimes changed, and not so careful as they should be. 1 Chan. Rep. 108. 1 Vern. 132. 195. 2 Chan. Ca. 195. Lucas 497. Will. 61. 2 Will. 490. See Abr. Ca. Eq. 122, 123, 124.

Although a court of equity will in all cases supply a surrender for payment of debts, yet not for a wife against an heir at law, who would be disinherited thereby; or for younger children against an elder, to make them in a better condition than the elder. Abr. Ca. Eq. 124.

In case of gavelkind copyhold, equity will supply the want of a surrender, as well for an elder son as a younger. 2 Vern. 163.

But where a man having a bastard daughter is seised of lands, which by the custom of the manor could only pass by deed, surrender and admittance, does by deed, in consideration of 300 l. therein mentioned to be paid by the daughter, grant and convey those lands to her and her heirs; and she is admitted, but no surrender is made; and at the foot of the admittance there is a proviso, that her reputed father should hold those lands for his life; and in the deed there was a covenant for further assurance: it was decreed, that equity could not supply this surrender in favour of a bastard daughter; that though her father might be obliged by the law of nature to provide for her, yet she was to be considered as a mere stranger to him; that though the father might have a great affection for her, yet that was no such affection as would raise an use at law; that the covenant for further assurance being only auxiliary and depending on the original conveyance, if that be void, the covenant must be void or repugnant. Abr. Ca. Eq. 123. Prec. Chan. 475.

If A. contracts with B. for the purchase of a copyhold estate, and pays the purchase money, and B. agrees to surrender the premises at the next court, but dies before the next court, or any surrender made; equity will supply the want of it. 2 Chan. Rep. 218.

So where A. surrenders a copyhold by way of sale or mortgage, but the surrender is not presented in time, and A. becomes a bankrupt, the surrender shall be supplied against the assignees. Will. 280. 2 Vern. 564. 609.

A man being seised of freehold and copyhold lands, devised both for the payment of debts and legacies, but the copyhold was not surrendered to the use of his will, and the freehold was sufficient for the debts; upon which the question was, whether the court would supply the want of the surrender, and lay the legacies on the freehold, and the debts on the copyhold, as when there are simple contract creditors, and bond or judgment creditors, and personal assets not sufficient to pay both: but it was held, that the surrender could could not be supplied for the sake of legatees, especially when they are mere strangers, as in this case they are. Abr. Ca. Eq. 124.

(P) How a Surrender shall be construed and taken.

A Surrender in general shall be taken most strongly against the surrenderor, and most beneficially for the surrenderee; and therefore if I hold by the lease of A. one acre for life, and another acre for years, and I surrender to A. all my lands, or all my land I hold by his lease; by this surrender both the acres are surrendered. But if the surrender be of all the lands I have or hold for life, or of all the lands I have or hold for years of the lease of A. contra. And if I hold one acre for life by the lease of the father of J. S. himself, and I hold another acre for life or years by the lease of J. S. himself, and I surrender to J. S. all the land I hold by his lease; by this the land that I had by the lease of his father does not pass. Perk. § 610, 611.

A surrender to one jointenant shall be construed to enure to them all. But if tenant for life or years grants his estate to one of the joint-tenants in reversion; this shall not enure as a surrender to them all, but as a grant to him alone. Perk. § 615. Bro. Surr. 54. Co. Lit. 192.

If the lessor makes and the lessee takes a new lease upon condition; this surrender in law is absolute, and although the condition be broken, yet the first lease is gone. But if the lessee surrenders or grants his estate to the lessor upon condition; this condition if it be broken may revest the estate. Co. Lit. 218.

Surrenders of copyhold lands must be governed by the same rules as conveyances at common law. Wil. 16. Ld. Raym. 630.

Surrender may be to the steward out of the manor, but not admittance. Ld. Raym. 76.

Steward of a manor may be retained for years without deed, and may hold courts, but cannot take surrenders out of court. Ld. Raym. 159.

Surrender may be made to a person appointed by a deputy-steward as his deputy for that purpose. Ld. Raym. 658.

Devise of a copyhold on condition to pay money to J. S. if the condition be broken, J. S. must be admitted, and make an entry before he can surrender. Ld. Raym. 726.

Officer at will may surrender to the king, and the will is not determinable by the officer. Ld. Raym. 51.

Surrender of a copyhold to the use of A. and B. equally to be divided, &c. makes a tenancy in common. Ld. Raym. 622.

Lessee for years may surrender to a reversioner for years who has a shorter term. Ld. Raym. 402.

A deed of surrender made by non compos is void. Ld. Raym. 315.

Conditional surrender of a prebendary's lease good to warrant a renewal. 2 Stra. 1201.

A surrender of tenant for life shall be presumed on a recovery of forty years standing. 2 Stra. 1129.

By 29 G. 2. c. 31. Females covert may surrender leases in the court of Chancery or Exchequer, in order to renew the same.

Wills.

Of Wills and Testaments.

(A) Wills, Testaments and Devises, what.

A Testament is the full and complete declaration of a man's mind, or last will of what he would have to be done after his death.

It is in Latin testamentum, i. e. testatio mentis, the witness of a man's mind; and to devise by testament is to speak by a man's will what his mind is to have done after his death; and this is sometimes called a will, or last will, for these words are synonyma, and are promiscuously used in our law; howsoever by the civil law it is only said to be a testament when there is an executor made or named in it, and when there is none, but a codicil only; for a codicil is the same that a testament is, excepting that it is without an executor; and a man can make but one testament that shall take effect, but he may make as many codicils as he will.

And by the common law where lands or tenements are devised in writing, although there be no executors named, yet there it is properly called a last will; and where it doth concern chattels only, a testament.

He who makes the testament is called the testator; and when a man dies without a will, he is said to die intestate. Terms of the Law. Co. Lit. 111. a. Swinh.

A testamentary schedule without witnesses or an executor declared a will. 2 Ld. Raym. 1282.

(B) Kinds of Wills and Testaments.

THERE are two sorts of wills or testaments: first, in writing, which is where the mind of the testator in his life-time, by himself, or some other by his appointment, is put in writing. Or, secondly, by word, or without writing, which is where a man is sick, and for fear that death, or want of memory or speech, should surprize him that he should be prevented if he stayed the writing of his testament, desires his neighbours and friends to bear witness of his last will, and then declares the same presently by word before them; and this is called a nuncupative or nuncupatory will or testament: and this being after his death proved by witnesses, and put in writing by the ordinary, is of as great force for any other thing but land, as when at the first in the life of the testator it is put in writing. See of Nuncupative Wills, post.

A codicil is also in writing or by word, as a will or testament is.

The civilians have other divisions of wills and testaments, as solemn and unsolemn, privileged and imprivileged, whereof the common law makes no mention. Perk. § 476. Co. Lit. 111.

(C) The Parts of a Will or Testament.

EVERY complete testament consists of two parts: 1. The making of devises, or giving of legacies. 2. The making and ordination of an executor; for a will or testament can be no more without, than a codicil can be with an executor.

(D) A Devise or Legacy what, and a Devisor and Devisee or Legatee, who.

A Devise or legacy is where a man by his will gives any thing to another: The first of these terms is properly applied to a gift of lands, and the last to a gift of goods or chattels; and therefore,

A devise is strictly where a man by his will gives his lands to another after his decease. And a legacy is where a man by his testament gives any chattel to another to have after the death of the testator; but the word is promiscuously applied to the one and to the other.

And he who gives by such a will is called the devisor, and he to whom the thing is given, the devisee or legatee.

(E) Kinds of Devises or Bequests.

A Devise is sometimes simple and without condition; as where I give my land to another and his heirs, or I give 20*l.* to another, without more words.

And sometimes it is with a condition, which is when there is a quality added to the devise or legacy whereby the effect of it is suspended or hindered, and it is thereby made to depend on some future event.

And this condition may be made almost by any words; as if I give to one my land if he pays 20*l.* to my daughter; or so as he pays 20*l.* to my daughter; or paying 20*l.* to my daughter; or I give one 20*l.* if he marries my daughter, or when he shall marry my daughter; or I give my wife 20*l.* a year whilst she shall live unmarried; or I give to him, or to whomsoever shall marry my daughter, 20*l.* or the like; in all these cases the devise is conditional. The first kind of devise is called by the civilians a simple assignation, and the latter a conditional assignation. Dyer 317. 74. Co. Lit. 217. Swinb. 132. 134. 136.

(F) Executor and Administrator, who.

A N executor, in a large sense, is taken for any one that is appointed to have the disposition and ordering of the goods and chattels of a man that is dead.

And an administrator is he that has the goods and chattels of a man dying intestate, committed to his charge by the ordinary for want of an executor.

And his power, benefit and charge, is in all things equal to the power, benefit and charge of an executor. Vide Terms de la Ley. 8 Co. 135. 9 Co. 40. Co. Lit. 209. Plow. 288. But now as to his benefit, see the Statute of Distribution of the Intestate's Estate.

(G) Kinds of Executors and Administrators.

T H E R E are three kinds of executors: The first is à lege constitutus, who is therefore called legitimus, and such a one is the ordinary of the diocese, who has ordinary jurisdiction in matters ecclesiastical. The second is à testatore constitutus, who is therefore called testamentarius; and he is strictly and properly called an executor, and is defined to be one appointed by a man's last will and testament to have the disposing and administration of all or part of a man's goods or chattels, and to perform a man's last will and testament according to the contents thereof. The third is ab episcopo constitutus, who is therefore said to be dativus. Vide ut supra. And such a one is an administrator.

And an executor or administrator is sometimes universal or total, i. e. one that has the power and disposition of the whole personal estate committed to him.

And sometimes he is particular or partial, i. e. one that has the power and disposition of some part of the estate, or of all the estate for a time only, committed to him.

And sometimes he is absolute, i. e. such a one that has an absolute power of the estate as executor or administrator: and sometimes he is conditional, i. e. one that has a limited and conditional power of the estate only. Dyer 4. Bro. Executor 155. 6 Co. 19.

And in both cases he shall be charged and chargeable for so much as is committed to him as the testator or intestate himself; for this cause the executor is said to represent the person of the testator; for as to the estate committed to his trust, he may charge others, and be be charged himself, sue and be sued, as the testator himself might. And the estate he has by his executorship is said to be in him to the use of the testator, and in his right; and what he does in the disposition of his estate is said to be in the right and to the use of the testator also; and the administrator has the same power and property over and in the goods and chattels, the same remedy by suit, and so far shall be charged as the executor, for they differ not in nature but in name only. And yet the administrator is but the ordinary's deputy, and he may revoke the administration, or call the administrator to an account. Co. Lit. 209. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 11. 8 Co. 135. 9 Co. 40.

(H) The Nature and Effect of a Will or Testament, and of a Codicil.

A Will or testament is of that nature, that it differs much from other acts and deeds that men do and execute in their life-time; for although it be made, sealed and published in never so solemn a manner, yet it has no life nor virtue in it until the testator's death; for it is a maxim in law, Omne testamentum morte consummatum est, & voluntas ambulatoria usque ad extremum vite exitum; it is therefore resembled until death to the interlocutory sentence, and after death to the definitive sentence of a judge. And hence it is said, Sed legum servanda fides, suprema voluntas quod mandat fierique jubet parere necesse est. Swinb. 12. Dyer 143. Co. Lit. 112. Lit. § 168. 4 Co. 61.

And for this reason a man may alter or make void his will at his pleasure; and he may make as many new wills and testaments as he will, and there is no way to bar a man of this liberty.

And the latter testament always revokes and overthrows the former; but otherwise it is of a codicil, (Lit. § 168. Perk. § 478.) for a man may make as many of these as he will, and make no testament at all, (Swin. 13, 14.) or if he makes a testament, he may afterwards make as many codicils as he will, and one of them will not overthrow the other; for in the first case they must be all annexed to the letters of administration, and the administrator must perform them; and in the latter case they must be all annexed to the testament, and the executor must take care to perform them. Bro. Testament 20.

A testament therefore is said to have three degrees: 1st. An inception, which is the making of it. 2dly. A progression, which is the publication of it. 3dly. A consummation, which is the death of the testator. Plow. 343, 344.

In grants therefore the first is of greatest force, but in testaments the last is of greatest force. Co. Lit. 112.

But when a testament is perfect by the death of the party, it as effectually gives and transfers estates, and alters the property of lands and goods, as acts executed by deeds in the life-time of the parties; for hereby descents of lands are prevented; and a man may make estates in fee-simple or fee-tail, for life or years, of lands, tenements, rents, reversions or services, as effectually as by deed, and these estates also will be good without any livery of seisin or attornment. And hereby also rents, and power to distrain for them, may be referred, conditions created and annexed to estates, or things devised. Lit. § 167, 168.

And therefore they that take by devises of lands are said to take in the nature of purchasers. Perk. § 505.

And if therefore a tenant in tail makes a feoffment to the use of himself in fee, and after devises the same land to his wife in fee, and dies, the son is not remitted though the father dies seised, for the devise prevents the descent. Dyer 221.

(I) Things requisite in making a good Will.

IN making a good will these things are requisite:

- First*, That the testator be capable to make a will relative to his person.
- Secondly*, That the testator at the time of making his will, have animus testandi, i. e. a mind to dispose or make a will.
- Thirdly*, That the mind of the testator in making a will be free, and not moved by fear, fraud or flattery.
- Fourthly*, That the will be made in the form prescribed by law.

See post. for things requisite in a good devise.

(K) Who are capable of making Wills.

AS it is observed before, to the making of every good will or testament it is requisite that the testator be a person able to make a testament, and not disabled for any special cause, either in respect of his person, mind or condition, or in respect of the thing whereof the testament is to be made. Therefore observe,

Infant.

That an infant, until he be of the age of twenty-one years, can make no will of his lands by statutes of 32 & 34 H. 8. But by special custom in some places where land is devisable by custom, he may devise it sooner. And of his goods and chattels, if he be a boy, he may make a will at fourteen years of age, and not before; and if a maid, at twelve years of age, and not before; and then they may do it without and against the consent of their tutor, father or guardian. Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. c. 5. Perk. § 503, 504. Bro. Custom 50. Swinb. 37, 38.

And yet some say an infant cannot make a will of his goods and chattels until he be eighteen years of age. Co. Lit. 89.

It has been agreed in equity, that a female may make a will at twelve years of age of a personal estate; and a male at seventeen years, or fifteen, if he be a person of discretion. 2 Vern. 104. 469.

Feme covert.

That a feme covert cannot make a will of her lands or goods except it be in some special cases; for of her lands she can make no will with or without her husband's consent (Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. c. 5. 4 Co. 51. Bro. Testament 13); of the goods and chattels she has as executrix to any other, she may make an executor without her husband's consent; for if she does not so, the administration of them must be granted to the next of kin to the deceased testator, and shall not go to the husband. 12 H. 7. 14. Perk. § 502. Fitz. Executor 40.

But of them she can make no devise with or without her husband's leave, for they are not deviseable; and if she devises them, the devise is void. Plow. 526. Fitz. Executor 109.

And of the things due to the wife whereof she was not possessed during the marriage, as things in action, and the like, she may make her will, at least she may make her husband executor of her paraphernalia, viz. her necessary wearing apparel, being that which is fit for one of her rank. Some say she may make a will without her husband's leave, others doubt of this; however all agree that she, and not his executor, shall have this after her husband's death, and that the husband cannot give it away from her. And of the goods and chattels her husband has either by her or otherwise, she may not make a will without the licence and consent of her husband first had so to do. But with his leave and consent she may make a will of his goods, and make him her executor if she will. And it is said also, that if she does make a will of his goods, (in truth without his leave and consent) and he after her death suffers the will to be proved, and delivers the goods accordingly; in this case the testament is good; and yet if the husband gives the wife leave to make a will of his goods, and she does so, he may revoke the same at any time in her life-time or after her death, before the will be proved. But a woman after contract with any man may before the marriage make a will as well as any other, and is not at all disabled hereby. 12 H. 7. 24. 18 Ed. 4. 11. Perk. § 501. Fitz. Executor 5. 28. 109. Bro. Testament 11.

A wife whose husband is banished for life may make a will as a feme sole. 2 Vern. 104. 469.

Lunatick.

A mad or lunatick person during the time of his insanity of mind cannot make a will of lands or goods; but such a one as hath his lucida intervalla, clear or calm intermissions, may during the time of such quietness and freedom of mind make his will, and it will be good.

Idiot.

So also an idiot, i. e. such a one as cannot number twenty, or tell of what age he is, or the like, cannot make a will, or dispose of his lands or goods; and although he makes a wife, reasonable and sensible will, yet it is void. But such a one as is of a mean understanding only, that has grossum caput, and is of the middle sort between a wise man and a fool, is not prohibited to make a will. Perk. § 503, 504. 24. Swinb. 37. 40.

Old man.

So also an old man that by reason of his great age is childish again, or so forgetful that he forgets his own name, cannot make a will, for a will made by such a one is void.

Drunken-man.

So also it seems a drunken man, that is so excessively drunk, that he is deprived of the use of reason and understanding, during that time may not make a will; for it is requisite that when the testator makes his will, that he be of sound and perfect memory, i. e. that he

he have a reasonable memory and understanding to dispose of his estate with reason.

Swinb. 42. 6 Co. 23.

A man that is both deaf and dumb, and that is so by nature, cannot make a will. But a Deaf and man that is so by accident may by writing or signs make a will, And so may a man dumb. that is deaf or dumb by nature or accident.

And so also may a man that is blind. Swinb. 53.

Blind.

An alien born cannot make a testament of lands or goods.

Alien.

A traitor attainted from the time of the treason committed can make no will of his lands or goods, for they are all forfeited to the king; but after the time he has a pardon from the king for his offence, he may make a will of his lands and goods as another man. Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 11. Swinb. 54.

Traitor.

A man that is attainted or convicted of felony cannot make a testament of his lands or goods, for they are forfeited; but if a man be only indicted, and dies before the attainder, his will is good for his lands and goods both. And if he be indicted, and will not answer upon his arraignment, but stands mute, &c. in this case his lands are not forfeited, and therefore he may make a will of them. Plow. 258, 259.

Felon.

And if a man kill himself, his will as to his goods and chattels is void, but as to his lands is good. Plowd. 261.

Felo de se.

A man that is outlawed in a personal action cannot make a will of his goods and chattels so long as the outlawry continues in force, but of his lands he may make a will. Fitz. Descent 16.

Outlawed person.

The head or any of the members of a corporation may not make a will of the lands or goods they have in common, for they shall go in succession. Fitz. Testament 1.

Corporation.

But note, that however the wills of traitors, aliens, felons and outlawed persons are void, as to the king or lord that has right to the lands or goods by forfeiture or otherwise, yet the will is good against the testator himself and all others but such persons only.

Note.

And note also; by the civil law the wills of divers others, as excommunicate persons, hereticks, usurers, incestuous persons, sodomites, libellers, and the like, are void. But by our law the wills of such persons, at least as to their lands, are good by the statutes that enable men to devise their lands.

But all other persons whatsoever, male or female, old or young, lay or spiritual, rich or poor, at any time before their death, whilst they are able to speak so distinctly or write so plainly that another may understand them, and understand that they understand themselves, may make wills of their lands, goods and chattels, and that although they have sworn to the contrary; and none are restrained of this liberty but such as are before named. Swinb. 155, &c. Vide stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. Perk. § 496.

All other persons.

(L) Of the Testator's Resolution to make a Will.

TO the making of a good will it is necessary, that he who makes it have at the time of the making of it animus testandi, i. e. a mind to dispose, a firm resolution, and advised determination to make a will, otherwise it will be void; for it is the mind, not the words of the testator, that gives life to the will; for if a man rashly, unadvisedly, incidently, jestingly or boastingly, and not seriously, writes or says that such a one shall be his executor, or have all his goods, or that he will give to such a one such a thing; this is no will, nor to be regarded. And the mind of the testator herein is to be discovered by circumstances; for if at the time he be sick, or sets himself seriously to make his will, or requires witnesses to bear witness of it, it shall be deemed in earnest; but if it be by way of discourse only, or of somewhat he will do hereafter, or the like, it shall be taken for nothing. Swinb. 9. 131. 324, 325.

(M) Of the Occasion or Motive to make a Will.

IN a good will it is necessary that the mind of the testator in making of it be free, and not moved by fear, fraud or flattery; for when a testator is moved to make his testament by fear, or circumvented by fraud, or overcome by some immoderate flattery, the same is void, or at least voidable by exception. And therefore, if a man by occasion of some present fear or violence, or threatening of future evils, does at the same time, or afterwards by the same motive, make a will; it is void not only as to him that puts him so in fear, but as to all others, although the testator confirms it with an oath. But if the cause cause of fear be some vain matter, or being weighty is removed, and the testator afterwards, when the fear is past, confirms the testament; in this case perhaps the will may be good. And if a man by occasion of some fraud or deceit be moved to make a will, if the deceit be such as may move a prudent man or woman; and if it be evil also, the will is void, or voidable at the least; but if the deceit be light and small, or if it be to a good end; as where a man is about to give all his estate to some lewd person, from his wife and children, and they persuade the testator that the lewd fellow is dead, or the like, and thereby procure him to give his estate to them; this is a good will. And one may by honest intercessions and modest persuasions procure another to make himself or a stranger executor to him, or the like; and this will not hurt the will. Also a man may use fair and flattering speeches to move the testator to make his will, and to give his estate unto himself, or some friend of his; except it be in case where the flatterer first beats or threatens him, or puts him in fear; or to his flattery joins fraud and deceit; or the testator is a person of weak judgment, or under the danger of government of the flatterer; as when the physician shall persuade his patient under his hand to make his will, and give his estate to himself; or the wife attending on her husband in his sickness shall neglect him, or continually provokes him to give her all; or where the persuader is importunate and will have no denial; or where there is another testament made before; for in all these cases the will will be in danger to be avoided. And if I be much privy to another man's mind, and he tells me often in his health how he intends to settle his estate, and he being sick, I of my own head draw a will according to his mind before declared to me, and bring it to him, and ask him, whether this shall be his will, or no? and he considers of it, and then delivers it back to me, and says yes; this is a good will: but if otherwise some friends of a sick man of their own heads shall make a will, and bring it to a man in extremity of sickness, and read it to him, and ask him, whether this shall be his will? and he says yes, yes; or if a man be in great extremity, and his friends press him much, and so wrest words from him, especially if it be in advantage of them, or some friends of theirs; in these cases the wills are very suspicious. Swinb. 283, 284, 285, 286.

But as touching these two last things, quare, how they shall avail in the wills of land, which are not regulated so much by the civil law.

(N) Things requisite in a good Devise.

IN a good devise these things are requisite:

First, That the devisor be a person capable to devise, both with respect to his person, and the thing devised.

Secondly, That the devisee be capable to receive the thing devised, either at the time of making the devise, or at least when it is to take effect.

Thirdly, That the devisor at the time of making the devise, have animum testandi, i. e. a mind to make a devise.

Fourthly, That the will of the devisor be free, and not drawn or coerced by fraud, flattery, fear, or the like.

Fifthly, That the devise be made in due manner and form.

Sixthly, That the thing devised be a thing deviseable.

Seventhly, That it be devised upon lawful terms and conditions.

Eighthly, That there be words sufficient to make his mind known.

Ninthly, That it be proved after the death of the devisor.

Tenthly, And if it be a devise of land, that the devisor be solely seised, and not jointly with another; and that he be seised in fee-simple, and that the devise be in writing.

See before what is a good will.

(O) Who may make a Devise, or not.

WHOEVER may make a will or testament may make a devise; et sic e converso. And therefore Infants.

Infants may not devise their lands till they are twenty-one years old, nor their goods and chattels till they be fourteen years old, or as some say, till they be eighteen years of age.

Feme coverts.

Feme coverts cannot devise their lands to their husbands or others, either by or without their husband's consent, although there be a custom to enable them thereto. Co. Lit. 112. 4 Co. 61. Bro. Devise 32.

And spiritual persons, as archbishops, bishops, deans, archdeacons, prebends, parsons, Spiritual vicars, or any member in a corporation, may not devise the lands or goods they have in the right of their churches and corporations. Perk. § 496.

(P) What Things may be devised or bequeathed.

LANDS, tenements and hereditaments, for the nature and quality of them, are devisable as well as other things; and therefore by the custom of some places, lands in possession, reversion or remainder are deviseable in fee, for life or years.

And a man that has a lease for life or years of land, may devise the land at his pleasure during his term.

But by the antient common law, in favour to heirs, the lands that a man had in fee-simple were not devisable by testament, except only in some special places by custom of the place, as gavelkind lands, in Kent, and lands within certain borough towns, as London, Oxford, &c. and by the custom of those places such lands are devisable. And in some places the custom is, that they may devise their purchased lands only; and in other places, that they may devise their lands descended also: and in some places, that they may devise for life only; and in other places, in fee-simple and fee-tail also. And in all these places where such customs are, they may devise their lands now as they might have done before the statute; for the statute has not destroyed their custom: and therefore at this day, they who have lands in such places, have their election either to devise according to the power given them by the custom, or by the statute, and in the first case the devise is good against the heir for the whole; and in the last case it is good against him for two parts in three only. Dyer 371, 155. 6 Co. 16. 8 Co. 83. Co. Lit. 111. Perk. § 497. 499, 500, 538. Lit. § 167.

Lands, tenements, hereditaments in possession, reversion, remainder.

Lease. Devises by common law.

By custom.

Also by the common law, the uses of lands were devisable as goods and chattels were, at the pleasure of him that had them. But otherwise and in other cases lands and tenements might not be devised and disposed by will, until the statutes 32 H. 8. c. 1. and 34 H. 8. which enabled owners of land in socage tenure, in possession, reversion or remainder, to devise and dispose thereof, or any rent, common, or other profit appender out of it, to any person in fee-simple, fee-tail, for life or years, at his pleasure. Note, that the other tenures in these acts mentioned, by stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. are turned into free and common socage.

Common law. Statute law.

So that now by the said statute of H. 8. a man who has lands in fee-simple may devise them in fee-simple, fee-tail, for life or years absolutely or conditionally at his pleasure. And therefore,

If a man devises his land to one for life, the remainder in fee or fee-tail to another; or devises his land to B. the remainder to the next heir-male of B. and the heirs-male of the body of such heir-male, or the like; these are goods devised.

But for the better understanding these things, observe, that this statute does not enable men to devise land who are disabled by law in respect of their persons or minds; as infants, femes covert, men de non sane memorie, &c. nor such as are disabled in respect either to the nature of their lands, as copyholders, (for copyhold lands are not devisable unless surrendered to the use of the will, which is the common practice) or of the estate they have in the land, as tenants in tail, or pur auter vie, or jointenants; for these can no more devise the land which they so hold, than they could before the statute. But such as are seised of land in common, or coparcenary, may devise their land as well as those who are solely seised. And if two are jointenants for life, the fee-simple to one of them, he who has the fee-simple may devise it after the death of his companion. These statutes do not enable those who are seised of lands in fee, in the right of their houses and churches, to devise the same lands, and therefore bishops, deans, parsons, vicars, masters of hospitals, or the like, can no more devise the lands belonging to their bishopricks, &c. than they could before the statute; but the lands which they are seised of in their own right, they may devise as other men. Co. Lit. 111. Perk. § 500, 539, 540. 496, 497, 498. 544. Lit. § 287. Dyer 210. Old Nat. Br. 89.

Hereditaments which are not of any yearly value, are some of them devisable, and some not: for if the king grants to one and his heirs bona & cattalla felonum & fugitivorum vel utlagatorum, fines and amerciaments within such a manor or village; in this case the owner can neither devise these things to another, nor leave them to descend. And yet if one has a manor with a leet, waif, estray, or the like, as appendant or appurtenant, there by the devise of the manor with the appurtenances these things may pass as an incident to the manor; but if a man has a hundred with the goods of felons, outlaws, fines, amerciaments, retorna brevium, and other such casual hereditaments within the same hundred, and these have been usually let to farm for a rent, they may be devised, or left to descend, 10 Co. 81. 3 Co. 32. Co. Lit. 111.

Right to land.

A man must have a right to and possession of the land he devises, or else the devise is not good; and therefore if a disseisor devises the land he has got by disseisin, this devise as to the devisee is void. And if a man be disseised of his land, so that he has nothing but a right thereof left, and then he devises his right, or devises the land, this devise is void. Plow. 485.

And if one contracts for land, and pays his money for it, but has no assurance of the land, and he devises this land to another; this cannot be a good devise of the land, but perhaps the devisee in a court of equity may compel him that received the money to assure and settle the land according to the devise. Nevil's case. (a)

Another man's land.

And if one devise another man's land, this devise is void; but if he after the devise made purchases this land, the devise is good. Plow. 344. Fitz. Devise 7.

If a man bargains and sells land to me on condition to re-enter; if he pays me 10*l.* and I covenant that I will take the profits until default of payment, and he makes a lease for six years of it to another, and after breaks the condition; in this case I may devise this land and the devise will be good. Adjudged Powlesley and Blakeman's case.

Rent, common, feignory, &c.

A feignory, rent, or the like thing, is devisable as land is, and will pass without the attornment of the tenant. The like of a reversion. And a man may devise a rent de novo issuing out of land, or a rent issuing out of land that is in esse before; and therefore if a man makes a lease for life or years rendering rent, the lessor may devise this rent. So if a rent be granted to one and his heirs, the grantee may devise it. So a man who is seised of land in fee may devise any rent or profit out of it at his pleasure, although the rent or profit amounts to the value of the whole land; as if one has three acres of land worth three pounds a year, and he devises 3*l.* rent out of it; this is a good devise of the whole rent. Perk. § 538. Lit. § 585, 586. Dyer 253, 140. F. N. B. 121. Co. Lit. 111. 8 Co. 83. 3 Co. 33.

Things incident to houses or lands, as doors, windows, wainscot, &c. Trees, grafs.

Where a man is seised of a house in fee, and may devise the house itself, he may devise the doors, windows, wainscot, or the like incidents of the house. And where a man may devise the land itself, he may devise the trees or grafs growing upon the land. quando licet id quod majus, videtur & licere id quod minus. But where the land itself is not devisable, such things incident or annexed to, or growing, or being upon it, are not devisable. And therefore the tenant in tail for life or years of land may not devise the houses or windows, doors or wainscot of houses, or trees or grafs being or growing thereupon. 4 Co. 63. Perk. § 512, 518. 11 Co. Rich. Liford's case, Kelw. 88.

Use.

Where a man has an use that is not executed by the statute of uses, but remains at the common law, he may devise it. And therefore if one be possessed of a term of years, and grants it over to another to the use of the grantor, he may dispose of this use by his will, for it is in the nature of a chattel. But if a man has such a use in jointenancy, he cannot devise it. Perk. § 530. Dyer.

Goods and chattels.

All manner of goods and chattels real and personal may be devised by will. And therefore leases for years of lands, for years of rent, common, or the like, cattle, as oxen, sheep, horses, &c. gold, silver, money, plate, household stuff, as beds, &c. Corn, wool, and implements of husbandry, may be devised by will; and not only those a man has at the time of the devise, but those a man is to have or may have afterwards. And therefore it is held, that a man may give his corn that shall grow on such a ground the next year after his death, or the wool or lambs his flock of sheep shall yield the year after his death; and that these devises are good: but if in this case there should be no such corn growing in that ground, nor any lambs or wool arising out of his flock that year, the legacy is fruitless. And yet if one devises to J. S. twenty quarters of corn, or twenty lambs, to be paid out of his corn that shall grow, or out of his flock the next year, and there be not so much corn, or not so many lambs, or not at all growing or arising; yet this is a good devise, and the things must be paid. In like manner if a man gives to J. S. a horse, or a yoke of oxen, yet the devise is good, and must be performed.

Choses in action.

Things in action, as debts, and the like, although they are not grantable by deed in the life-time of the party, yet they are devisable by will. And therefore if the testator by his will gives any debt due to him on an obligation, or on a contract, or the like; this is a good devise. And the thing devised may be had thus: the testator, if he pleases may make the legatary executor as to that debt; or if he does not, the legatary may sue the executor in the spiritual court, or in some court of equity, and thereby compel the executor either to recover it himself, and so to pay it to the legatary, or to give the legatary power to sue for and recover it himself in the executor's name. But if it be such a cause of action as is altogether uncertain, as where a man may have an action against another for taking away his goods, or to compel him to make an account, or the like; this is such a cause of action as is not devisable. Swinb. part 3. § 5. Perk. § 511. 525.

(a) Prideaux v. Gibbon, 2 Ch. Ca. 144. Archerley v. Vernon, 9 Mod. 78. Greenhill v. Greenhill, Pre. Chan. 320. 2 Vern. 79. 2 P. Will. 631. Potter v. Potter, 1 Vez. 437. 494. Gibson v. Mountford, 1 Vez. 494. Langford v. Pitt, 2 P. W. 629. for the law on this head.

And yet possibilities and incertainties are in divers cases devisable. And therefore if one has money to be paid him on a mortgage, he may devise this money when it comes; as if I enfeoff a stranger of land, upon condition that if he does not pay me 20*l.* such a day, that I may re-enter; I may devise this 20*l.* if it be paid, and the devise is good although it be made before the day of payment come. Perk. § 527. Dyer 272. Plow. 520.

And if a man be possessed of a term of years, and devises all the residue of that term of years that shall be to come at the time of his death; this devise is good, and yet such a grant by deed is void. Child's case, 17 Jac. B. R.

Emblements, i. e. the corn that is sown and growing upon a man's ground at the time of his death, and which himself should have reaped if he had lived to the harvest (as in most cases he shall where he sows it) are devisable. And therefore if a man has land in fee-simple, fee-tail, for life or years, and sows it with corn, he may devise the corn at his death to whom he pleases; and yet if lessee for years sows his land so little while before his term expires, that it cannot be ripe before the end of the term, and he dies, he cannot devise this corn; for if he had lived he could not have reaped it after the end of the term.

And by stat. 20 H. 3. c. 2. widows may bequeath crops on their dowers.

Obligations, counterparts of leases, and such like things, are devisable; but in this case the devisee cannot sue upon the obligation in his own name, nor enter for the condition broken upon the lease if there be cause, but he may cancel, give, sell or deliver up the obligation or counterpart to the obligor or lessee. And whatsoever shall come to the executor after the death of the testator as the right of his executorship, may be devised by the will of the testator. Perk. § 527.

The goods and chattels which a man has jointly with another are not devisable. And therefore if there be two jointenants of goods or chattels, as where such things are given to two, or two buy such things together, and one of them devises his part to a stranger; this devise is void: inasmuch that if in this case the testator makes the other jointenant his executor, the will as to this is void, and he shall not be charged as executor for those goods, but he shall have them altogether by right of survivorship. Perk. 526. Lit. § 287. Doct. & Stud. 167.

The goods and chattels which a man has in right of another are not devisable; and therefore an executor or administrator cannot devise the goods and chattels he has as executor or administrator, for such a devise is void. However the executor may appoint an executor of the goods of the first testator, which the administrator cannot do; and of the profits, that arise by the goods and chattels the executor or administrator has during the time of his administration, he may dispose of.

The goods and chattels belonging to colleges and hospitals may not be devised by the wills of the masters or governors thereof, nor the goods and chattels belonging to other corporations by the mayors, bailiffs or heads thereof. Plow. 525. Bro. Administrator 7. Fitz. Administrator 3.

And the goods and chattels that church-wardens have in right of the church, are not devisable. Perk. § 496. 498, 499. Doct. & Stud. lib. 2. c. 39. p. 224.

All the chattels real that a man has in the right of his wife by her means, and all the obligations made to her dum sola, or during the time of her coverture, and the chattels real or personal that his wife has as executrix to any other, are not devisable by the testament of the husband. Perk. § 560. Doct. & Stud. c. 7. p. 19.

A devise of lands purchased after making the will is not good. Ld. Raym. 438.

(Q) Of naming Things devised.

ALL such things as are devised must be properly named, or otherwise described, where by the mind of the testator may be known; for if he errs in the name or substance of the thing devised, or if it be so incertainly devised and described that it cannot be perceived ceived what he intends, the devise is void. And therefore if one devises a piece of ground by the name of a messuage, except it be so called, the devise is void. And yet by the devise of the use, profit or occupation of land, the land itself is well devised; and by the devise of land itself the reversion thereof may be devised. But if one, intending to devise a horse, devises an ox; or, meaning to give gold, gives apparel; these legacies are void, unless his meaning appears by some circumstance to be otherwise; as if a man has but one horse, and he is called Arundel, and he devises his horse Buchephal; this legacy is good enough. And if a man gives all his money in such a chest, when in truth there is no money in that chest; or gives to another the 10*l.* which J. S. owes him, when in truth J. S. does not owe any such money; this devise is void. And yet if the devise be thus, viz. I give to A. B. 10*l.* and I will that the same be paid of the money I have in such a chest, or of the money which such a man owes me; the devise is good, although there be no money in the chest nor owing: And if one gives 10*l.* remaining in such a chest, whereas in truth there is but 5*l.* in the chest; the legacy is good for the 5*l.* But error and mistake in the quantity and quality of the thing devised, when the same for the substance of it is certain, does not hurt; and therefore if the testator, meaning to give the fourth part of his goods, gives one half; or meaning to give 50*l.* gives 100*l.* or e converso, meaning to give a greater gives a less quantity or sum; the legacy is good, and the legatary shall have as much as the testator did mean. If a man gives his white horse, when he has but one horse and that is black; this is a good devise of the horse. Swinb. part 7. c. 5. Plow. 525. Perk. § 500.

the thing.

If the thing devised be under such general words that the mind of the testator cannot be known by it, the devise is void; and therefore if the testator says, I do bequeath something, or I bequeath a substance, or I bequeath a body, or I bequeath, or the like; these are void for uncertainty: So if he says, I do give lands, or I do give goods, these devises are void: And yet if the testator gives a horse, an ox, a gold chain, or the like, indefinitely; the devise is good although he has no such thing. But if one devises thus, I give lead, money, wheat, oil, or the like, and does not say what quantity; this legacy is void for uncertainty, or at least the executor may deliver what quantity thereof he will, and that shall satisfy the legacy. Swinb. part 7. c. 10.

(R) Who may be a Devisee or Legatee.

REGULARLY whosoever may be a grantee may be a devisee or legatee; and therefore,

A devise made to any person or persons male or female, children or strangers, laymen or clerks, debtors or creditors, infants, or men of full age, women sole or covert, colleges, universities, corporations, or the like, are good. Perk. § 505. 510. Swinb. 222.

A devise to an infant in the mother's womb at the time of the death of the testator, is void. Dyer 303, 304. Per cur', Mich. 13 Jac. B. R.

Yet if it happens to be born before testator's death, the devise is good. Terms de la Ley, tit. Devise. For it is a rule, That the devisee must be capable of the thing devised at the time of the death of the devisor; if it be then to take effect in possession; or if it be a remainder, he must be capable of it at the time when the remainder shall happen, or otherwise the devise is void. 9 Jac. B. R.

And a man may devise his lands, goods or chattels to his own wife, as well as to any other. Lit. § 168.

(S) Of naming the Devisee or Legatee.

A Devisee must be certainly named and described; for if a devise be to a person altogether uncertain, the devise is altogether void; as if I give my land to my best friend, or to my best friends; or to a vicar, and do not say what vicar, and no averment; these are void devises. Mich. 19 Jac. B. R. Crumpe v. Bodie.

If one has two sons of one name called J. S. and he devises to his son J. S. without any distinction; this is void for uncertainty: but in this case perhaps an averment, which son is meant, may help. So if one gives to J. S. 20*l.* and there be two or more of that name; this devise is void, unless it can be proved by something which of them be meant. So if one in his will gives a legacy to a man uncertain, and no such man is to be found, and the meaning of the testator cannot be known; this devise is void for uncertainty. And yet a devise to him who shall marry my daughter is good: and he who marries her in my life life-time or after my death shall have it. If a man devises any thing ad pias causas, as to the church, or to the poor; not expressing what church or poor; perhaps this is a good devise. So if a man gives 20*l.* to his kindred, it is said this is a good devise, and that a reasonable exposition shall be made thereof as near the testator's intent as may be, viz. that those in the next degree shall have it first, and then those in the next degree to that shall have it afterwards; and if it be a devise to the kindred of another man, that they shall have it equally. Sed quære of this devise, for it seems altogether uncertain. 6 Co. 68. Swinb. 293, 294, 295, 296.

So if a man gives to J. S. or J. D. 20*l.* this is held a good devise although it is somewhat uncertain, and the disjunctive shall be taken for a copulative, and so J. S. and J. D. shall both take by this devise; but if one of them be nearer of kin than the other, then it is said he shall have it for his life, and the other afterwards. And if one devises 20*l.* to A. or B. which of them J. S. will appoint; this is good, and he whom J. S. appoints shall have it. Swinb. part 7. § 9.

And if one devises to J. S. and his children; this is good and certain enough, and hereby he and his children shall take the thing devised together. Ibid.

(T) Of the Devisee's Capacity to take by the Name whereby he is described.

THE person to whom a devise is made must not only be capable, and certainly described and named, but he must also be capable by the name whereby the devise is made to him, or otherwise the devise is void; as,

If a devise be to the heirs of J. S. J. S. being living; it is void. And yet if lands or goods be devised to the executors of J. S. and J. S. dies before the testator, and makes executors; this is a good devise to the executors. And if a man devises his land to J. S. for life, the remainder to the next of kin (or next of blood) of J. S. this is a good devise of the remainder. And if a man devises goods to the parishioners of the parish of S. to the use of the church; this is a good devise, and the church-wardens may recover it. And if a man devises ecclesie Sancti Andrea de Holborn; this is a good devise to the parson of that church. And if a man devises to the city of London, university of Oxford, or to Queen's college in Oxford; these are good devises. But if one devises to the commonalty of a guild, which is not incorporate, as to two of the middle men of the guild of the fraternity of the Whiteacres of London, or the like; this devise is void. Fitz. - Devise 27. Plow. 523. Perk. § 509, 510. Bro. Corporation 55.

(U) Of misnaming the Devisee.

IF the devisee be capable, well named, and capable by that name, if his name be truly set down, yet if his name be not so, but mistaken, the devise is void. And therefore, If one intending to give 20*l.* to J. S. devises to J. N. 20*l.* this devise is void both to J. S. and J. N. except the person be certainly denoted and described by some other circumstance; as to J. N. the son of J. S. my landlord, or the like. So if one devises to the abbot of St. Peter, when the foundation is the abbot of St. Paul; this devise is void. And if one devises to a corporation, and there be none of that name at the time of the devise, nor during the life of the testator; this devise is void; and so if there be a college made after that name. Dyer 4. Perk. § 505. Swinb. 289, 290.

But if one devises a thing to the wife of J. S. and before the deviser dies, and she takes another husband, and is called by another name; yet this devise is good. So if one gives a legacy to J. S. dean of St. Paul's, and the chapter there and their successors, and before the death of the deviser J. S. dies, and another is made dean; this devise is good notwithstanding this mistake. Plow. 344.

(W) Of the Words of a Devise.

THE form of words in a devise is not at all regarded; and therefore if one says, I give, institute, desire, appoint or will, that J. S. shall have my land, or that J. S. shall have 20*l.* or let J. S. have my land, or 20*l.* all these devises are good. And if one devises that his feoffees of his land shall be seised of the land to the use of J. S. and his heirs, or to the use of J. S. and the heirs of his body; or if such a man devises that his feoffees shall make an estate of the land to J. S. and his heirs, or to him and the heirs of his body; this is a good devise of the land in fee-simple or fee-tail. Swinb. part 4. § 4. Plow. 23. Dyer 23.

And if a man makes a feoffment of his land to the use of his last will; and then devises that his feoffors shall be seised to the use of J. S. this is a good devise of the land per intentionem. Pas. 9 Jac. Newman's case.

And if I devise that J. S. shall have, hold and occupy my land for his life; this is a good devise of the land for his life. Plow. 546. 4 Co. 66. 8 Co. 95.

If a man has a lease for years of land, and he devises his lease, or his term, or his farm, or the profits or occupation of the land; by any of these devises his whole lease and all his interest in the land is given as well as by any other form of words. Dyer. 4. 122. 33. 128. Co. 83. 6 Co. 42.

Direction in a will, that the heir shall renounce all his right in such lands to a younger son, amounts to a devise. Ld. Raym. 187.

(X) Of the Intent of making a Devise.

TH E Intent of making a devise should be good; for devises to wicked ends or upon wicked conditions, as to the end that the devisee shall kill a man, or because he has killed a man, or the like, are void. And when the cause or motive is false, as because one is my cousin, or has lent me money, I devise to him 20l. and he is not my cousin, or did not lend me money; these devises are void. Swinb. 289.

(Y) Of the Manner and Form of making Wills and Testaments, and of Revocations of them.

First, Of naming an Executor.

IN making a good will it is necessary that the form and order which the law prescribes be observed in the disposition. And therefore first, There should be an executor named in all wills of goods and chattels, and that the executor named be capable of the executorship; for this is said to be the head and foundation of the will: for if there be never so many legacies given; and no executor made, this disposition is but a codicil, and cannot properly be called a will or testament; for in this case the party dead is said to die intestate, and the administration of his goods must be granted to the widow or next of kin; whereas, on the other side, if an executor be appointed, although there be no legacy given, yet this disposition is and is properly said to be a will. Swinb. 112. Bro. Testament 20.

Where no executor is named in a will, administration with the will annexed is usually granted.

Secondly, Where it must be in Writing.

If a will be of lands or tenements, it must be in writing, and it must be committed to writing at the time of the making thereof; and it is not sufficient that it be put in writing after the death of the testator, being first made by word of mouth only, for then it is but nuncupative still. But if the will be first made by words of mouth, and be afterwards written, and then brought to the testator, and he approves it for his will; or if the testator, when he declares his mind, appoints that the same shall be written, and thereupon the same is written accordingly in the life-time of the testator; these are good wills of land, and as good as if they be written at the first. If therefore one be very sick, and another comes to him and asks him, whether his wife shall have his land? And he says yes; and a clerk being present puts this in writing, without any precedent commandment or subsequent allowance of the sick man; this is no good will of the land. So if one declares his whole mind before witnesses, and sends for a notary to write it, and dies before he comes, and he writes it after his death; this is no good will for his lands, but a good nuncupative will for his goods and chattels, except he declares his mind to be, that it shall not be his will unless it be put in writing; for then perhaps it may not be a good will for his goods and chattels. So if he that writes the will cannot hear the party speak, and another that doth stand by the sick man tells him what he says; in this case if there be none others present to prove that he reported the very words of the sick man; this will be no good good will of the land. But if a notary takes a direction from the sick man for his will, and after goes away and writes it, and then brings it again, and reads it to the testator, and he approves it; or if it be written from his mouth by the notary according to his mind, and his mind were to have it written, although it be not shewed or read to him afterwards, these are good testaments. So if the notary does only take certain rude notes or directions from the sick man, which he agrees to, and they be afterwards written fair in his lifetime, and not shewed to him again, or not written fair until after his death; these are good wills of lands. If a sick man bids a notary make a will of his lands, but does not tell him how, and the notary makes a devise of it after his own mind; this is no good will; and yet if it be after read unto and approved by the testator, it may be good. And so if a will be found written in the testator's house, and not known by whom, and it be read unto and approved by the testator; this is not a good will in writing for lands and goods. Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. Perk. § 476, 477. Dyer 72. Plow. 345. 4 Co. 60. Dyer 53.

And uses of lands before the statute of uses might, and lands and tenements devisable by custom, and goods and chattels, may be disposed by word without writing, and such wills of such things so made are good.

But now by the statute of frauds and perjuries, 29 Car. 2. c. 3. § 5. All devises and bequests of any lands or tenements devisable shall be in writing, and signed by the party devising the same, or by some other person in his presence, and by his express directions, and shall be attested and subscribed in the presence of the said devisor, by three or four credible witnesses, or else they shall be utterly void and of none effect.

And by § 6. No devise in writing of lands, tenements or hereditaments, or any clause thereof, shall be revokable, other than by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing declaring the same, or by burning, cancelling, tearing or obliterating the same by the testator himself, or in his presence, and by his directions and consent: but all such devises and bequests shall remain in force until the same be burnt, &c. in manner aforesaid, or unless the same be altered by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing of the devisor, signed in the presence of three or four witnesses, declaring the same.

See of Nuncupative Wills.

Thirdly, On what, and in what Hand and Language a Will may be written.

It is not material in what matter or stuff, whether in paper or parchment, nor in what language, whether in Latin, French, or any other tongue, nor in what hand or letters, whether in secretary hand, Roman hand or court hand, or in any other hand a will be written, so that it be fair and legible, that it may be read and understood; neither is it material whether the same be written at large, or by notes or characters, usual or unusual, as XX s. for twenty shillings, or when the figure 2 is used instead of the letter A, if it be usual in the testator's writing, or the like, for the will is good notwithstanding. So also if some words be omitted, or sentences improper used, when the intent and meaning is apparent; as where a man says, I make my wife of this my last will and testament, leaving out the word executrix, yet the will is good, and this shall be understood: but if it be so done as it cannot be read, or by reading the mind of the testator cannot be known, then the will is void, and of no force. In the like manner as a nuncupative will is when the words spoken are so ambiguous, obscure and uncertain, that thereby the meaning of the testator cannot be known or understood. Swinb. Part 4. § 25, 26.

Fourthly, Of the Testator's Sealing and Subscribing his Name.

Where writing is needful, (as in the case of disposition of land it is) there sealing the will, or subscribing the testator's name, is not necessary. And therefore if a man by himself or another makes a will of his land, and does not put his seal or name to it, if he agrees to it, this is a sufficient will. Perk. § 476, 477.

Sealing a will is signing. 2 Stra. 764.

Fifthly, Of Interruption in the making a Will.

If whilst the testator is making his will, and whilst he intends to proceed farther at that time, either by adding, diminishing or altering, he be suddenly stricken with sickness, or insanity of mind, whereby he cannot proceed, but gives it over in the midst, and so he dies; it seems in this case the whole will is void. And yet if a man begins his will, and makes perfect perfect devise to one, and then of himself he gives over till another time; or if a man makes a perfect devise to one, and then dies before he can make any devise to any others; it seems these are good wills for as much as is done. And therefore it is said, if one commands another to make his will, and by it to devise Whiteacre to J. S. and his heirs, and Blackacre to J. N. and his heirs, and he writes the devise to J. S. and his heirs, and the testator dies before he can write the devise to J. N. and his heirs; this is a good devise to J. S. but a void devise to J. N. and his heirs. But if a man bids the notary write a devise of his land to J. S. upon condition, and the notary writes a devise to J. S. but the testator dies before he can write the condition; in this case the whole devise is void. Swinb. 6. part 7. § 10. 3 Co. 31.

But a man may if he pleases make a will of part of his goods, and die intestate for the rest, and the disposition which he makes is good for so much. Swinb. 188.

Sixthly, Of the Proof of a Will.

The last thing required to the perfection of a will, is the proof of it; for if it be never so well made, and be in truth the will of the testator, yet if it cannot be by proof made to appear so, it is but a void will, and of no force at all.

First, That a nuncupative will must be proved by two (now by stat. 29 Car. 2. there must be three) witnesses at the least, and those must be such as are without exception.

Secondly, A written will, when it is written with the testator's own hand, proves and approves itself, and therefore needs not the help of witnesses to prove it. And for this cause, if a man's will be found written fair and perfect with his own hand after his death, although it be not subscribed with his name, sealed with his seal, or have any witnesses to it, if it be known or can be proved to be his hand, it is held to be a good testament, and a sufficient proof of itself; but if it be sealed with his seal, and subscribed with the name of the testator, and can be proved by witnesses, it is the more authentick. And when it is found amongst the choicest evidences of the testator, or fast locked up in a safe place, it is the more esteemed; for if it be written in another hand, and the testator's hand and seals, or one of them, not to it, although it be found in such a place as before, yet some proof will be expected of it further by witnesses in that case; and if a writing be found under the testator's own hand, yet if it be but a scribbling writing, written copywise, with a great distance between every line, without any date, in strange characters, with many interlineations, and lying amongst his void papers, or the like; this will not be esteemed a sufficient will, nor a good proof of it; but it shall be accounted rather a draught or image of the testator's will, for a direction to him after to make his will by; and yet if it can be proved that the testator did declare himself that this should be his will, this will be a good will, and a good proof of it.

Thirdly, If it be proved that the testator said his testament was in such a schedule in the hands of J. S. and J. S. produces a writing deposing it to be the same; this is a sufficient proof: but if he says withal, it is written with his own hand; then it seems some other proof, as by comparing hands, or the like, that it is his hand wherein it is written, will be expected.

Fourthly, If the witnesses will prove the writing produced to be the last will of the testator, or that he said it was, or it should be his last will, or that it was the same writing that was shewed to them, and whereunto they are witnesses; although they never heard it read, or set their hands to it, it is a sufficient proof. Swinb. part 7. § 13. part 4. § 25.

Fifthly, All persons male and female, rich and poor, are esteemed competent witnesses to prove a will, save only such as are infamous, as perjured persons, and the like, and such as want understanding and judgment, as children, infants, and the like, and such as are presumed to bear affection, as kindred, tenants, servants, and the like. A legatee is reputed a competent witness to prove any other part of the will but his own legacy, or to prove any thing against himself touching his own legacy, but not otherwise. And therefore where there are two witnesses of a will wherein either of them have somewhat bequeathed unto himself; this will cannot be sufficiently proved for those legacies, but for the rest of the will it may be sufficiently proved.

Sixthly, Where there is no question nor opposition moved or had about or against a will, there the oath of the executor alone is esteemed a sufficient proof of it, and in that case regularly no other proof is required. And where more proof is necessary, as in the cases before, it is in the discretion of the ordinary what proof to admit and allow; and those witnesses for number, nature and quality, or that other proof that he deems and accepts for sufficient, is is sufficient; and the will so proved by such witnesses, or other proof, is sufficiently proved.

Swinb. part 4. § 21.

My advice to all who have lands (says he) is, that you take care, by the advice of learned counsel, by act executed, to make assurances of your lands according to your true intent, in full health and memory, to which assurances you may add such conditions, or provisos of revocation, as you please. For (says he) I find great doubts and controversies daily arise on devises made by last wills, sometimes in respect of tenures of lands, sometimes by pretences of revocations, which may be made easily by word, (but now revocations must be in writing by the statute of Frauds) also in respect of obscure and insensible words and repugnant sentences, the will being made in haste: and some pretend that the testator, in respect of extreme pain, was non compos mentis, and divers other scruples and questions are moved upon wills.

Lord Coke's advice concerning the disposition of lands and making wills.

But if you please to devise your lands by will;

First, Make it by good advice in your perfect memory, and inform your counsel truly of the estates and tenures of your lands.

Secondly, If your will concerns inheritance, make it indented, and leave one part with a friend, lest after your death it be suppressed.

Thirdly, At the time of the publication of the will call credible witnesses to subscribe their names to it. Note; By the statute of Frauds there must be three or four witnesses to a will of lands or tenements.

Fourthly, Let all the will be written with one and the same hand, and in one and the same parchment, for fear of alteration, addition or diminution.

Fifthly, Let the hand and seal of the devisor be set to it.

Sixthly, If it be in several parts, let his hand and seal be put, and the names of the witnesses subscribed to each part.

Seventhly, If there be any interlining or rasure in the will, let a memorandum be made of it.

Eighthly, If you make any revocation of your will, or of any part of it, make it in writing, by good advice. 3 Co. 36. a. b. It must be in writing by the statute of Frauds.

(Z) Of Nuncupative Wills.

See before concerning the Kinds of Wills.

BY stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. § 19. For the prevention of fraudulent practices, it is enacted,

1. That no nuncupative will shall be good, where the estate thereby bequeathed shall exceed the value of thirty pounds, that is not proved by the oaths of three witnesses (at the least) that were present at the making thereof. (And by stat. 4 Ann. c. 16. § 14. it is declared, that all such witnesses as are and ought to be allowed to be good witnesses upon trials at law, by the laws and customs of this realm, shall be deemed good witnesses to prove any nuncupative will, or any thing relating thereto.)

Nor unless such nuncupative will were made in the time of the last sickness of the deceased, and in the house of his or their habitation or dwelling, or where he or she has been resident for ten days, or more, next before the making of such will, except where such person was surprised or taken sick, being from his own home, and died before he returned to the place of his or her dwelling.

§ 20. That after six months passed after the speaking of the pretended testamentary words, no testimony shall be received to prove any will nuncupative, except the said testimony, or the substance thereof, were committed to writing within six days after the making of the said will.

§ 21. Bequests in Wills.

A Bequest of one Shilling to an extravagant Son.

Whereas I did several years since give to E. H. my wicked son, a good estate of inheritance, at, &c. at the yearly value of 150 l. which he might have improved, but my said son and his wife, by their vain riotous living and unjust dealings, have contracted great debts, and he has lately sold and been cheated of all the said estate, and hath ruined himself and his children, and hath very lately defrauded me of several very considerable sums of money, and he is now by his wicked practices endeavouring to defraud me and E. H. his eldest son, of an estate at — the purchase whereof I paid with my own proper monies, and am resolved to give the same estate to E. H. my grandson, and therefore I give and bequeath unto my said son E. H. one shilling of lawful money, and no more.

A Bequest to an imprudent Son on account of Marriage.

Whereas my eldest son W. H. hath highly offended and disobliged me (the testator) his mother, grandmother, and all his friends and relations, by his late improvident marriage, and in other parts of his conduct in life, and hath rendered himself unworthy almost to be called or taken notice of as a son; but howsoever it is not my design or intention wholly to discard him, but to make some provision for him during life; and therefore I do hereby order, will and direct my two sons J. and H. H. their executors and administrators, to pay unto my said son W. H. 40 l. per ann. by four equal quarterly payments, for and during the term of his natural life; and I do hereby charge and make chargeable and liable all such part of my personal estate, as my said sons J. and H. H. shall be intitled unto by virtue of this my will, with the payment of the said annuity to my said son W. accordingly.

A Bequest to an imprudent extravagant Son.

Whereas I have bestowed on my son J. B. a liberal education, having at the expence of 8 or 900 l. bred him up at the university of Cambridge to qualify him for holy orders, the which, through the imprudence and follies of my said son, hath in a great measure exhausted that patrimony which I intended to have left him at my decease: Now I do hereby declare that the annuity or rent-charge of 20 l. per ann. herein after particularly devised for his use and benefit, shall go in full discharge and satisfaction of all right, title, interest, claim and demand whatsoever which he may or can any way pretend to have or claim, of, in or to all or any part of my real or personal estate; (then testator devises his real and personal estates to his two daughters) Upon Trust that the said M. and F. (the daughters) and the survivor of them, and her heirs and assigns, do and shall from time to time, by and out of the clear yearly rents and profits of the same premises, well and truly pay, or cause to be paid into the proper hands of my said son J. but not into the hands of any other person or persons whatsoever, one annuity or yearly sum of 20 l. of, &c. clear of all taxes and deductions whatsoever, for and during the term hereafter mentioned, by four equal quarterly payments in the year; (that is to say) the feast, &c. by even and equal portions; the first of the said payments to be made on such of the said feasts as shall next happen after the decease of my wife; And it is my exprefs will and meaning, that the said annuity shall continue to be paid and payable to my said son in manner aforesaid, during so many years of his life, as he my said son shall not alien, sell or assign the same, nor attempt to alien, sell or assign the same to any person or persons whatsoever; but if, &c. then and in such case the said annuity, and the trust hereby created and declared of and concerning the same, shall cease, determine, and be utterly void, and the same shall sink into my real estate for the benefit of the person or persons who shall be intitled to the same by virtue of this my will; And upon this further trust, &c. (Power of distress for non-payment of the annuity; vide Marriage Settlements); And in Case my said son shall die, leaving issue of his body lawfully begotten, then upon trust, that out of the rents and profits of the said premises, the said annuity or yearly sum of 20 l. clear of all taxes, shall go and be equally divided and paid to and amongst such issue as shall be living at his decease, and to their heirs for ever (with like power of distress, &c.)

To pay the son's annuity of 20 l.

If he attempts to sell the annuity to cease and sink into the inheritance. To the son's issue (if any) for ever.

A Bequest of 500 l. to a Nephew for his Maintenance and Education &c. with Remainder to three Nieces.

I G E V E I give to — (my executor herein after named) his executors, administrators and assigns, the sum of 500 l. upon the several trusts, intents and purposes herein after mentioned touching the same, viz. U P O N this special trust, that he my said executor, his executors, administrators or assigns, shall from my death pay and apply all the interest and produce to arise or be made of the said 500 l. for and towards the better education and maintenance of my nephew L. J. until such time as he shall be fit or qualified, either to go to the university, or as a clerk to some eminent good attorney; and if not so qualified, then to be bound out apprentice to some good trade: A N D M Y W I L L I S, that if my said nephew L. shall go to the university, then the said 500 l. shall be paid to him at his age of twenty-one, and that the interest and produce thereof in the mean time shall go and be paid to him for and towards his maintenance there; and in case my said nephew shall be placed out either as a clerk or an apprentice, then my will is, that my said executor shall out of the said 500 l. pay and apply so much thereof as in either of those cases shall be sufficient for that purpose, together with apparel suitable for the same; and that from and after payment thereof, my further will is, that the interest of the residue of the said 500 l. shall from thenceforth go and be paid to my said nephew towards his cloathing and expences, until his age of 21 years, and that on such age, the residue of the said 500 l. shall be to him my said nephew paid; and in case my said nephew L. J. shall happen to die before the said sum of 500 l. or the residue thereof upon the contingency aforesaid, shall become payable to him in manner as aforesaid, without leaving any issue of his body lawfully begotten; then and in such case, U P O N this further trust, and my will is, and I hereby direct and appoint, that the said sum of 500 l. or such residue thereof as shall remain unpaid upon the contingency aforesaid, shall go and be paid by my said executor unto my three nieces M. M. and H. J. (the three daughters of my late brother L. J. by his late wife H. deceased, and, sisters of my said nephew) to be paid to and equally divided between them share and share alike, and to their respective executors and administrators: P R O V I D E D A L W A I S, and my express will is, that in case I the said A. J. (the testator) in my life-time shall place or put out my said nephew L. J. either at the university, or as a clerk or apprentice; then and in such case, I hereby direct and appoint, that only the sum of 300 l. (part of the said sum of 500 l.) shall go and be upon the trusts aforesaid, and that then the sum of 200 l. (residue of the said sum of 500 l.) shall sink into the residue of my personal estate, for the benefit of such person or persons, who by virtue of this my will shall be intitled to the same; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

A Bequest of Furniture as an (a) Heir-Loom.

I G E V E I I give and bequeath unto the said M. A. and W. A. their executors, administrators and assigns, all the furniture, goods, household stuff, utensils, brewing vessels and implements whatsoever, in or belonging to my capital mansion-house wherein I now dwell (other than and except my silver plate, which I will shall be deemed, taken and accounted as part of my personal estate, and all my china ware which I give to my dear wife); E X C E P T I O N. A N D I give them (my executors, &c.) also all the orange trees and lemon trees, and all other greens and plants in, about or belonging to my said capital mansion-house of W. or the gardens to the same belonging; U P O N T R U S T nevertheless to permit and suffer the same to continue and remain as heir-looms in and about the said house, for the use of every such person and persons, who for the time being shall respectively be seised or possessed of the freehold of the same capital mansion-house and premises, by force and virtue of any devise or limitation thereof in this my last will and testament contained, or otherwise howsoever; A N D I W I L L I S that an inventory shall be taken thereof as soon as conveniently can be after my death, to the end the same may be the better preserved for the purpose aforesaid, according to the true intent and meaning of this my will; but my will and meaning is, that none of my utensils of husbandry shall be deemed or preserved as heir-looms.

An inventory to be taken. Husbandry utensils not to be heir looms.

—Then as to all the rest and residue of my personal estate whatsoever and wheresoever, or of what nature or kind soever, whereof or wherein I shall be any ways possessed of, or interested in at the time of my death, I give, devise and bequeath unto my trustees, the said — my wife G. L. and — their executors, administrators and assigns: Nevertheless upon Trust, that they my said trustees shall and do, as soon as conveniently can or may be after my death, put and place out the same in some public stock, bank or fund, or in the purchase of South-Sea stock or annuities, or otherwise upon good and sufficient security, with full power for my said trustees at any time to call in, remove or new place out the same, in such manner as they shall think fit, so as the best annual interest be made thereof, as conveniently may be without lessening the principal; And my Will is, and I hereby give and bequeath all the interest and produce of the said monies, so to be put and placed out as aforesaid, unto my said wife, during her natural life, to and for her use, benefit and disposal; And my further Will is, and I do hereby direct, that in case my said wife, after my death, shall happen to intermarry with any other husband, then and in such case my will is, that they my other trustees, the said *G. A Devise in trust to raise Childrens' Portions, and to place out and re-call the Monies in, by the Consent of the Mother, specifying when payable, and in case of Death how applicable.

- I G E N, I give and bequeath unto my good friends A. and B. their executors, &c. the sum of 10,000*l.* of, &c. to be paid by my executrix herein after named, within—
- The bequest charge. months next after my decease; AND I do by this my will charge and make subject all my estates whatsoever and wheresoever, and of what nature or kind soever, to and with the payment of the sum of 10,000*l.* unto them my trustees the said A. and B. their executors, &c. at the time aforesaid; Nevertheless upon the several trusts, intents and purposes, and subject to the proviso herein after mentioned, expressed and declared of and concerning the same, viz. Upon this Special Trust, that they my said trustees, and the survivor of them, his executors, administrators and assigns, from and immediately after the receipt of the said sum of 10,000*l.* shall and do, as soon as conveniently may be (by and with the consent of the
- Consent of the wife. said—my wife, during her life, but not otherwise, such consent to be testified by writing under her hand) and after her death, as they my said trustees shall in their discretion think fit, put and place out the said sum of 10,000*l.* and every part thereof at interest, either in some publick bank stock or fund, or else upon one or more good and sufficient securities, either real or personal; together with full power for them my said trustees, at any time afterwards, to call in, remove, change, and new place and put out the same at interest, upon such other security or securities, as they my said trustees, or the survivor of them, his executors, administrators or assigns, by and with such consent and approbation of my said wife (if living) shall think fit; And upon further Trust, and my will is, that the said sum of 10,000*l.* and all the interest and produce thereof, shall by them my said trustees, or the survivor of them, or the executors, &c. be paid and applied To and for the use and benefit of my daughter S. now living, and of all and every other my child or children lawfully begotten, as shall be living at the time of, or born in due time after my death; the same to be equally divided between my said daughter S. and all and every my said child or children, share and share alike (if more than one) and to be paid to them respectively at the several and respective ages of 21 years, or day or days of marriage, which shall first happen, for and towards their respective portions; and in case it shall happen my said daughter S. or any of my said other child or children which I shall leave at my death, shall happen to die before his, her or their age or ages, marriage or marriages as aforesaid; Then my will is, that the part or share of such child or children so dying of and in the said sum of 10,000*l.* shall go and be paid to the survivors or survivor of them at the time aforesaid, as an addition to his, her or their portion or portions; the same to be likewise equally divided amongst them (if more than one) share and share alike; and if but one, then the same to be paid to such only child at the
- Trust as to payment.
- Children to take by survivorship.

1st. Solution. I think that in regard a jointure by way of rent-charges will incumber more lands than a jointure in lands, it cannot be construed that the testator's meaning was that B. should have liberty to grant a rent-charge for a jointure; and it seems to me, that if the portion be 10,000*l.* B. may settle 1000*l.* per ann. for a jointure on his wife, for that is double so much in value as the portion.

2d. Solution. I am of opinion, that by this devise to B. he is tenant in tail of these lands, and the remainders over are in contingency, and that B. may suffer a common recovery, and thereby bar the remainders, and settle the lands as he pleases.

I am of opinion, that C. one one of the five children concerned in this devise, had a fee-simple in his share by this devise, and no estate tail, and by attaining his age of 21 years, his estate now is an absolute estate, and not subject to the devise over to the other children, though he should die in his mother's life-time and without issue.

time aforesaid; And in case my said daughter S. and all and every other child or children as I shall leave at the time of my death, shall happen to die before such age or marriage as aforesaid; then and in such case, Upon this further Trust, and my will is, that the said sum of 10,000*l.* and all the securities taken for the same, shall by them my said trustees, or the survivor of them, his executors, &c. be assigned to, and go and be paid unto, and to and for the sole use and benefit of the said — my wife, if then living, (but if dead) to her executors, administrators or assigns; And my further will is, and I do hereby order and direct, &c. (the interest to go for maintenance, &c.)

A Devise by Will and a Counsel's Opinion thereon.

I T E M, I give and bequeath unto my loving wife A. C. all and every my messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments, situate, lying and being in, &c. with their and every of their appurtenances, To have and to hold unto the said A. my said wife, and her assigns, for and during the term of her natural life, and from and after her decease, then I give and bequeath all and every the same lands, as followeth, viz. unto my children J. C. W. &c. and their heirs and assigns for ever: Provided always nevertheless, that if it shall happen that any one of my said children shall happen to die before my said wife, or he or she shall attain the age of 21 years, and without issue of his or her body living at his or her decease; then I give the share and part of the same lands, &c. of such of them as shall so first die as aforesaid, unto the eldest of the said sons that shall survive such child so dying as aforesaid, and to his heirs and assigns for ever; and that if it shall happen that more than one of my said five children shall happen to die before my said wife, and before they shall attain their respective ages of 21 years, and without any issue of his, her, or their body or bodies living at the time of such his, her, or their decease or deceases, Then I give and bequeath the respective shares or parts of and in the same lands, &c. of such child or children respectively so dying, unto the rest and other of my said five children that shall survive such as shall so die respectively, and to his, her, or their heirs for ever, to be equally divided between them. (We suppose that the second son C. died when of age.)

A Devise to an Executor of the Residuum of Real and Personal Estates, in Consideration of Friendship, and the Executor's Care and Services.

P. and his heirs, all the rest, residue and remainder of my real and personal estate whatsoever, goods and chattels, lands, tenements and hereditaments both in possession and reversion, that I shall be possessed of, or any way intitled unto at the time of my decease (after all my debts and legacies are first paid and satisfied thereout as aforesaid); to hold and enjoy the same to his own proper use and behoof, and to his heirs and assigns for ever.

and enjoy the said annuity or yearly sum of 400 l. and the said messuage or tenement, and the said linen, household-stuff and furniture unto my said wife, for and during so long time as she shall continue my widow, and not marry again; but if she shall marry again, then my mind and will is, that from the time of such her second marriage, she shall only have, receive and enjoy 300 l. a year of the said annuity of 400 l. payable as aforesaid; and that from the time of such her second marriage, or her death, which shall first happen, the said messuage or tenement, and also the said linen, household-stuff and furniture, shall remain and be to my son W. R. his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns for ever: Item, I give to my said wife E. the sum of 20 guineas for mourning to be paid to her within 10 days next after my decease, and my will and mind is, that my said wife do and shall, within three calendar months next after my decease, deliver to my two executors, herein after named, a true and particular inventory and account in writing signed by her, of all my said linen, household-stuff and furniture, and which she is to take care of and preserve, (the reasonable use and wear thereof excepted;) And my mind and will is, and I do hereby declare, that what I have hereby given to my said wife, is by me intended, and is and shall be accepted and taken by her in full satisfaction of all and whatsoever she may or can claim or be intitled to by virtue of or under the said marriage articles, or out of my real or personal estate, or any part thereof, by any means or on any account whatsoever; And I do hereby charge the said annuity of 400 l. and of 300 l. as the case shall happen to be, upon all my real and personal estate whatsoever, and do hereby subject the same to the payment thereof; Item, I give and bequeath to my daughter M. B. the executors of this my will, during the minorities of all my said children; and I do hereby nominate, constitute and appoint my said son W. R. the sole executor of this my will, from and after the time that he shall attain his full age of 21 years; and I do hereby revoke and make void all former and other wills and testaments by me at any time or times heretofore made, and do declare this only to be my last will and testament. In Witness, &c.

Another Devise in a Will to charitable Uses.

AND I do hereby direct that my executors shall, with all convenient speed after my decease, take out of my personal estate so much money as will purchase lands or rents of inheritance in fee-simple, of the clear yearly value of 30*l.* (over and besides all taxes and reprises whatsoever) which purchase shall be made in the names of my said trustees, or the survivor of them, and by them in due and legal form conveyed from time to time to other trustees, and their heirs, so as at all times hereafter to support and preserve a perpetual succession in the lands and rents so to be purchased, for the intents and purposes herein after mentioned; (that is to say) To the intent and purpose that they my said trustees or the survivor of them, and the heirs and assigns of such survivor, do and shall upon the anniversary day of my death, yearly and every year for ever, out of the rents and profits of the lands, or rents so to be purchased, well and truly pay, or cause to be paid unto five such poor boys of the parish of W. as they my said trustees shall nominate and elect out of the poor boys of the same parish yearly, who shall not severally exceed the age of 16 years, the sum of 40*s.* each, upon condition that such five boys shall, with their hands laid upon my grave stone so to be inscribed as aforesaid, respectively repeat by heart or without book, in a plain and audible voice, the Lord's Prayer, the Apostles' Creed, and the ten Commandments, in the English tongue, and shall also read the 15th chapter of the first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, and write in a legible hand two verses of the said chapter; And to this further intent and purpose, that they my said trustees, or the survivor of them, and the heirs and assigns of such survivor, do and shall issue and pay all and every part of the surplus or remainder of the said yearly sum of 30*l.* for the binding out such poor boys as aforesaid to handicraft trades or in husbandry, not giving any greater sum for the binding out of any one of the said boys than 10*l.* at most: Provided always, and my intent nevertheless is, that none of the said boys shall at any time be intitled to have or receive out of this my charity, more than one single benefaction; (that is to say) that none of them shall receive more than one sum of 40*s.* for attending at my grave-stone, nor more than one 10*l.* for binding him out an apprentice; And I do hereby further declare my mind to be, that the said yearly sum of 30*l.* shall be answered and paid, for the intents and purposes aforesaid, out of my personal estate, until such purchase shall be actually made, as herein before is directed and appointed to be made; and in case a sufficient number of poor boys cannot be found in the parish of W. aforesaid, who shall be qualified to take the benefit of this my charity as aforesaid; then and in such case my said trustees are hereby empowered to chuse or admit other boys, not exceeding the number aforesaid, nor of more adult years than is before mentioned, out of the several parishes of W. A. &c. or any of them, in the aforesaid county of S. And as for and concerning all such real estate whereof I am seised, or have any power to give or dispose, I give and devise the same, and every part and parcel thereof, unto my daughter F. R. or such other person as she shall appoint, during her life, shall from thenceforth be the school-mistress to instruct the said girls, during her life; and after her death, if the said R. D. her sister be then living, then I hereby appoint her the said R. D. or such person as he shall appoint, to be the succeeding school-mistress for the said girls, during her life; and after her death, if M. R. R. D. and M. B. in case the said E. B. sister of the said M. B. be then living, then I hereby appoint the said E. B. or such person as she shall appoint, from thenceforth to be the succeeding school-mistress for the said girls, during her life; And I do hereby further direct, that from and immediately after the decease of the survivors of them the said M. R. R. D. M. B. and E. B. that then every succeeding school-mistress for the said school, shall be nominated and appointed by such person or persons, who then for the time being shall by virtue of this my will be intitled to and have the property of my said now dwelling house in W. aforesaid; and my desire is, (if by him, her or them so thought fit) that the wife of the then succeeding vicar there for the time being, shall be the future school-mistress in case she will accept of the same; And my Will is, that the then present, and every succeeding vicar of W. shall on the first Sunday in every month catechise the said children with others in W. church aforesaid; and that, on refusal or neglect thereof, every wife of such vicar shall lose the benefit of being school-mistress to the said school: And my further Will is, that the said 20 poor girls, with others, shall be taught to sing psalms there by some proper person qualified for that purpose, who shall be always appointed by the vicar there for the time being; and that they the said charity-trustees, or the major part of them, shall, out of the rents of the same premises, pay to such person the annual sum of 20*s.* for his so doing; And also the further yearly sum of 20*s.* for psalters and testaments for the use of the children of the said school; the same two yearly sums of 20*s.* and 20*s.* to be paid at the same two feast-days by two equal half-yearly payments, clear of all deductions, and in such manner as aforesaid; And my my further Will is, that every school-mistress of the said school, together with all the said girls, shall constantly go to the said church of W. twice on every Sunday, and there attend divine service both morning and evening; and also on every festival and other days usually kept at the said church, as likewise on every Thursday lecture preached at W. church, (sickness and all other inevitable accidents only and always excepted); And further that the said 20 girls, if not nominated by me before my death, shall be chosen by the said trustees, or the major part of them, immediately after my death, and be then fixed in the said school; and that if then, or at any time then after, there shall be wanting in W. aforesaid, the full number of the said 20 girls so intitled to have the benefit of this my charity (intending dissenters children as well as church people) then and in every such case, during that time only, and as often as the same shall so happen, my will is, that they the said trustees, or the major part of them, shall choose and make up such number of girls out of some other parish or parishes next adjoining to W. aforesaid; And further, that no such girls shall be admitted to the said school before their age of seven years, nor shall there continue after the age of fourteen years; And I do hereby direct that the said charity-trustees, or the major part of them, shall four times in every year, viz. on Christmas-day, Lady-day, Midsummer-day and Michaelmas-day, or any other four days in each year as they shall think fit, have a general meeting, at some place in W. to be by them appointed, to examine into any neglects, miscarriages or irregularities that may be committed by the said school-mistress for the time being, or any of the said poor girls, and to make such reasonable by-laws, rules and orders, as to the same trustees, or the major part of them shall seem meet, so as the same be for the good and benefit of this my charity, and be made in writing, and entered in a book for that purpose to be provided and kept, for the better government and management of the said school, and of the said mistress, and 20 poor girls for the time being; And further also, that for any gross offence, miscarriage, irregularity or neglect, as shall be so judged by a majority of the said trustees, it shall and may be lawful for them to deprive, put out and amove the said poor girls, or to suspend and put out the school-mistress of the said school for the time being, (other than and except the said M. R. R. D. M. B. and E. B. and every of them, and such person or persons whom they respectively shall appoint to officiate, during their respective lives only); And further, that the said trustees shall take and be allowed out of the rents and profits of the same premises, the yearly sum of 20*s.* and no more; the same to be by them expended at such their quarterly meetings yearly; and from and after payment of the several sums of 20*l.* 20*s.* 20*s.* and 20*s.* per ann. and in such manner as aforesaid, and subject thereunto; then as to all the rest and residue or surplus of the rents, issues and profits of all and singular the same hereditaments and premises, and subject, &c.
